Times News Services

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. — President Nixon Thursday ordered Secretary of the Interior Rogers Morton to go "all out" to clear the way for construction of the Trans-Alaska oil pipeline.

Morton said after a 45-minute meeting with the President that every effort would be made to get legislation through Congress this summer authorizing him to grant the necessary rights-of-way for pipeline construction from the North Slope of Alaska to Valdez, an ice-free port 700 miles to the south.

Morton Thursday sent all Congressmen a letter, strongly arguing that it is the nation's best interests to build the pipeline across Alaska, without waiting for further consideration of an alternative route through Canada.

Congress currently is considering legislation to ease a 1920 limitation of pipeline right-of-way across federal land, whose application in the federal courts has blocked construction of the proposed line.

Morton urged the lawmakers to adopt such legislation, and not to delay the Alaska line any longer, despite some suggestions that a Canadian pipeline route would be environmentally and economically better.

It would not be better, Morton wrote, and besides, Canadian spokesmen have indicated Canada would insist on conditions unacceptable to the United States, to allow the line across their territory.

Morton said North Slope oil, which would flow at a rate of two million barrels a day if the pipeline was in full operation, would help to slow the steady increase in the price of gasoline, heating oil and other petroleum products.

"I don't see any way the price of oil can go but up," Morton said. "The question is how fast it will go."

INSURANCE FIRM FRAUD BIGGEST

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Equity Funding Corp. of America, battered by what may be the biggest fraud in the history of the insurance industry, declared bankruptcy Thursday by order of a federal judge.

State officials took control of a second subsidiary as insolvent.

Investigations into the activities of the insurance and mutual funds giant continued by state and federal agencies. Lawsuits were filed and the effect of "the Equity affair" was reportedly being felt on Wall Street.

"All we need to do in order to make this company able to meet its responsibilities is sell the movie rights to its activities," cracked Gleason L. Payne, state insurance commissioner.

A federal judge has taken control of the parent firm and Payne's office has taken over one of its insurance subsidiaries, Equity Funding Life Insurance Co.

In Illinois, where the insurance company is chartered, state insurance investigators said they drilled open a Chicago bank safety deposit box that was supposed to contain more than $24 million in bonds listed by the company as security for its policies.

The stock, once worth $61 a share, is now "totally valueless."

The core of multiple fraud and theft charges by state and federal authorities, and civil suits, is the charge that the insurance company invented customers, fabricating policyholders who never existed.

The alleged bogus policies, which made the company appear far more prosperous than it was, were then sold to other insurance companies—at least 15 of them—for millions of dollars, investigators say.

In some cases, Equity Funding Life later reported the "policyholder" had died, and collected the insurance from the other companies to pass along to his "widow," investigators said.

Six-Year Trend Fails, Food Prices Up Again

Times News Services

In March, a month during which food prices normally decline, meat, fish and poultry prices rose 2.2 per cent. This was 18 per cent higher than a year earlier, Statistics Canada reported today.

Pork prices are up 27 per cent over a year ago, poultry prices up 20 per cent and beef prices up 14 per cent pushing the cost of food consumed in the home up 11.3 per cent for the year. Restaurant meals have taken a 9.6 per cent jump.

A 5.9 per cent increase in housing helped push the consumer index up six per cent for the year to 145.7. Last year the index was 137.4 and in February it stood at 145.3.

The total food bill rose 4 per cent between February and March in marked contrast to the decreases between these two months for each of the past six years except 1971 when prices were rebounding after the end of a supermarket price war.

The usual decreases are caused by the influx of abundant vegetables from southern spring crops.

Fruit prices were up three per cent, despite a decline in the price for bananas, and vegetable prices were narrowly higher despite lower prices for tomatoes and carrots.

Fresh milk prices rose 0.4 per cent with higher charges in a number of cities, including St. John's, Nfld., Charlottetown and Vancouver. Prices for bread and other baked goods also moved upwards slightly.

Reflecting a federal sales tax cut in the Feb. 19 budget, soft drinks showed a five-per-cent decrease. There also were lower prices for coffee and tea, sugar, jelly powder and chocolate bars.

Egg prices took their usual dip at this time of year, when production increases, easing 5.3 per cent from February. But they still were 47 per cent higher than a year ago. The federal government paid farmers a bonus last spring to kill laying birds and reduce an egg surplus.

There were higher charges for new homes, for home repair and for rents.

Prices for furniture and appliances moved upward despite sales on some items. Household textiles, dishes and cleaning supplies were more expensive and floor coverings, light bulbs and toilet paper a bit cheaper.

The transport index, representing 12 per cent of consumer spending, advanced 0.3 from 133.5 in February. It per cent to 133.9 in March from 133.5 in February. It was 132.8 a year ago.

New car prices were a bit below February but this was outweighed by higher repair and lubrication charges and higher prices for batteries.

The clothing index, representing 11 per cent of spending, was 132.8 a year ago.

U.S. Troops 'Not Needed'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Nguyen Van Thieu said Thursday that South Vietnam can cope with any level of Communist attack without calling for U.S. ground or air support.

"I am very confident that our army and our people are able to defend themselves against renewed aggression," he told a National Press Club luncheon.

Thieu pledged: "I can assure you of one thing: Never, never will I ask U.S. troops to come back to Vietnam."

Thieu expressed equal assurance, in only a slightly less categorical form, about his nation's ability to dispense with U.S. air support even in event of an all-out North Vietnamese offensive.

He was asked by newsmen, "can your government survive without U.S. air power?"

"Yes," replied Thieu. There was one potentially significant qualification, however, on Thieu's disclaimer about any further requirement for U.S. military support.

A takeover of Cambodia by the Communists, Thieu said, would be "the beginning of a new war."

In that event, said Thieu, the Vietnam peace accord "doesn't mean a thing."

His statements came as Communist troops launched an artillery barrage in the Mekong Delta and stepped up their shelling of Hue in the heaviest and most widespread fighting since the Vietnam truce.

Reports of the attacks came exactly one week after the last U.S. troops withdrew from South Vietnam.

One military source said the Communist activity was designed to find a weak spot in South Vietnamese defenses and prepare for a major offensive.

U.S. planes wound up a month of nonstop bombing in Cambodia today with strikes within 10 miles of Phnom Penh against Communists encircling the capital.

LANSDOWNE FIRE CLAIMS 11 HORSES

VANCOUVER (CP) — At least 11 race horses perished Thursday night when fire swept through a barn at Lansdowne Park in Richmond.

Robert Bruce, 42, gatekeeper at the park, was taken to hospital with undetermined injuries after he was trampled by thoroughbreds fleeing the fire.

The barn, which contained about 35 horses, was reduced to a smoldering ruin within 30 minutes. Firemen said a strong wind kept the flames from spreading to four other barns, although horses stalled in them were turned free as a precaution.

Several hours after the blaze was extinguished, volunteers and SPCA workers were still rounding up horses.

There was no indication of how the fire started, and there was no estimate of the value of the race horses lost.

Food Dye Banned

WASHINGTON (UPI)

The purple dye used for years to stamp grades on meat and to color everything from ice cream to pet foods has been banned by the U.S. government because new studies indicate it may cause cancer.

But the ban may force U.S. businesses and meat inspectors to fall back on a red dye suspected of interfering with reproduction.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration Thursday revoked its approval for Violet No. 1, the technical name of the dye which has been permitted for use in the United States for the last 22 years.

The ban is effective April 10. But the FDA said it would not recall products now on the market containing the dye or any made between now and then which are so colored.

A decision on whether to ban the purple dye in Canada will be made within the next few days, Dr. A. B. Morrison, deputy minister in charge of the health protection branch, said Thursday night in Ottawa.

Thirty-three tons of the color additive were used in the U.S. last year, 30 per cent of it by agriculture department inspectors stamping the mark of grade and wholesomeness on meat.

Industry mixed much of the remainder of Violet No. 1 with Red No. 40 as a substitute for Red No. 2, linked in recent Russian studies to widespread reproductive problems.

The FDA said it was basing its Violet No. 1 ban on preliminary data from two Japanese studies made available in late January.

CALLED FOR HALT

In Montreal, a Bell Canada spokesman said the company had no immediate comment to make on the government's decision to suspend rate increases.

"We don't know what points the government wants clarified. We don't have enough information to go on at the moment."

He said the company feels it adequately presented its position during the transport commission hearings "and we don't feel there is anything we can add."

New Democrat Leader David Lewis obtained a special Commons debate on the issue Monday and called for a halt to "monopolistic gouging" of the public by Bell Canada.

He said CTC hearings on the Bell application did not provide an adequate opportunity for public participation. Liberal speakers agreed, while the CTC itself said in its decision last Friday that it is studying measures to improve public participation.

The increases apply to Ontario, Quebec, Labrador and parts of the Northwest Territories.

SILVER COIN EXPORT BAN

OTTAWA (UPI) — Finance Minister John Turner announced Thursday that Canadian silver coins were being placed on the export control list to stop the practice of smuggling them to the United States and melting them down for profit.

Recent increases in the U.S. price of silver encouraged many people to buy Canadian coins minted before 1968, take them to the United States and melt them for silver. Four Canadian quarters contain about $1.50 worth of silver.

Stupich Against Boycott

Consumer boycotts on meat are not a good idea and put meat producers in an untenable economic position, Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said Thursday.

Stupich said consumers should consider the long-range effects of their actions on the price of farm products.

"I wish they would reconsider their position," he said of the continent-wide meat boycott.

"The producer is still getting a very low income compared with almost everyone else in the community."

Stupich said the pressure on the meat producer generated by a boycott forces the market to rely more heavily on imports.

Exporting countries then have Canada at a disadvantage, he said.

The minister said he does not think the public is being gouged by retail meat dealers.

Stupich said cattlemen's incomes have not increased on the same scale as consumers in recent years. Only in the last year, he said, have cattlemen started receiving the same prices for their products that they did in 1951.

While the cattlemen's income has suffered, "the incomes of consumers have increased by leaps and bounds to the point that the purchasing power of consumers today is far higher than it was 22 years ago, he said.

Elsewhere, the United States 10th largest group of food stores announced it would roll back prices today, but most retail prices across the U.S. and Canada remained steady despite the meat boycott.

Meat prices dropped slightly on 11 mid-west markets Thursday, but meat industry employees remained the hardest hit by the boycott as it entered its sixth day. Patrick Gorman, secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, said the boycott had resulted in layoffs of an estimated 20,000 union members.

The Grand Union supermarkets, with more than 500 stores, say it would reduce prices on beef, pork, lamb and veal by at least 10 cents per pound beginning today.

In Ottawa, the agriculture department today predicted that people will buy "more meat than ever before" this spring.

S. Viet Food Chain Contaminated

By MORTON MINTZ

WASHINGTON (WPI) — Defoliation in South Vietnam has contaminated the food chain with a chemical that causes birth defects in animals, two Harvard University scientists have disclosed.

They said that, by using a sensitive new method, they detected the chemical in shrimp and in five species of fish taken from four widely separated sites in South Vietnam.

The chemical, Dioxin, is almost unrivalled in its power to deform the offspring of animals that ingest it in even tiny amounts. Its most common effects are cleft palate and kidney defects.

Studies of a possible link between defoliation and human birth deformities of any kind have been inconclusive.

Dioxin is always present as a contaminant of 2, 4, 5-T, a herbicide that, in turn, is an ingredient of a defoliant known as Agent Orange.

In South Vietnam between 1962 and 1970, military pilots — mostly Americans, but including some South Vietnamese — sprayed nearly five million acres with Agent Orange containing about 90 million pounds of 2, 4, 5-T.

In the United States, 2, 4, 5-T, Silvex and other herbicides contaminated by Dioxin are widely used to clear brush and weeds for rice and other food crops and for cattle grazing.

The Harvard scientists, Robert Baughman, a chemist, and Matthew Meselson, a geneticist, reported this week in Research Triangle Park, N.C., that their new detection method finds Dioxin in ratios as low as one part per trillion parts of body weight.

Using this method, Baughman and Meselson told a conference sponsored by the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences they examined samples of catfish, croaker, carp, sculpin, crayfish and shrimp.

They said they picked up Dioxin at levels up to 814 parts per trillion. A guinea pig swallowing substantially less, 600 ppt, has been shown to have only a 50-50 chance of surviving. Rats ingesting 125 to 500 ppt in daily oral doses produced offspring with deformities and intestinal hemorrhages.

These results led Meselson and Baughman to suggest that Dioxin "may have accumulated to biologically significant levels in food chains in some areas of South Vietnam exposed to herbicide spraying."

Cocke Views Heart Ambulance Used by Saanich Rescue Team

Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Thursday the provincial government intends to go a good deal further in developing ambulance services than just establishing standards for personnel.

Cocke made the statement at the Saanich fire hall where he had come for a look at the special ambulance for heart attack victims operated by the Saanich fire department.

Eight men in the department have received paramedical training in treating cardiac victims and have already been credited with saving at least one life.

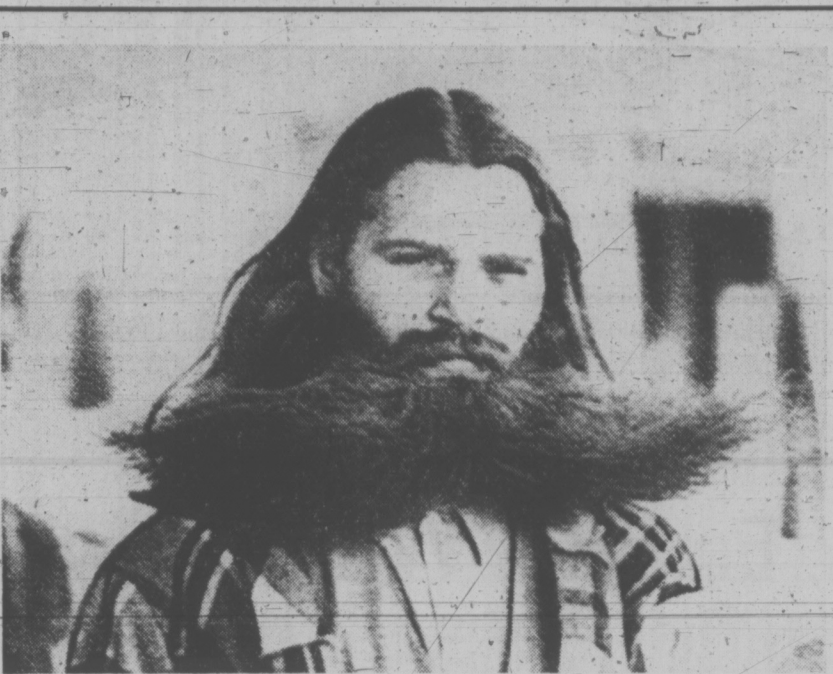

The ambulance is equipped to radio cardiograms at Royal Jubilee Hospital while bringing a patient in and crews have been taught to administer certain drugs where the patient's condition requires it.

The ambulance is also equipped with a defibrillator to restart heart beat where a patient's heart has stopped.

Cocke lauded the Saanich operation, saying it was known across the country. Government advances in ambulance service will be made in cooperation with municipalities, he said.

Thursday's tour drew municipal fire chiefs in the region as well as a delegation of administrative and elected officials from Burnaby and representatives from the professional firefighters' association in B.C.

Saanich Ald. Fred (Whitey) Severson, who is also a city fireman and president of firemen's union locally, said the union supports location of ambulance services at fire halls because of their strategic location.

Barrett Roasts Union For Interference Call

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Members and supporters of the Canadian Workers Union picketed in front of the legislature this morning to protest a Labor Relations Board decision and to appeal to MLAs.

Sixty to 70 men with placards and chanting "We Want to Vote" were to be joined by another 70 demonstrators later.

The CWU, a new union, had its application for certification at Cominco operations in Trail, Kimberley, Riondel, Benson-Lake and Salm rejected by the LRB on the grounds it was improperly constituted. The 4,000 mine workers and production workers are represented by the United Steelworkers of America.

Premier Barrett met the demonstrators for 15 minutes and promised to return to talk to them.

He told them that if the government changed any of the members of the LRB the decision would be interpreted as political interference.

"We will not interfere politically in the LRB and if we did it would be absolutely stupid," he said.

NO INTERFERENCE

"I can understand why you are as mad as you are. But no trade union tells this government what to do or what not to do and get that straight."

He said the demonstrators were asking for political interference. But if they weren't satisfied with the government, there will be another election.

"We never said there would be an immediate removal of the LRB people. We will not interfere until the labor laws are rewritten."

And this, he said, would not occur until after conferences of labor and management, one of which is scheduled in Victoria in a week.

CWU president Doug Swanson of Trail said he wasn't satisfied with Barrett's answers.

"We are asking him to give us a democratic vote. We didn't do anything wrong. They picked up a technicality. Someone doesn't want us. Does the NDP owe Steel something? I've been an NDPer all my life. Why don't they give us a vote?"

Swanson said the union will appeal the LRB decision, but by law appeals can only be made to the LRB itself.

Individual demonstrators maintained the theme "Why shouldn't we get a vote" when talking to Barrett. The premier's answer was because the LRB ruled against it.

FEW SUPPORTERS

There were a few supporters from other Canadian unions, including Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada president Fred Mullin of Vancouver, and members of the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers and the Canadian Aluminum Workers, which replaced United Steelworkers as bargaining agent at Alcan in Kitimat last year.

The demonstration was the second in seven years by a Canadian union protesting a decision of the Labor Relations Board. In 1966, 1,000 workers and supporters of Local 8 of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada at Harmac pulp mill near Nanaimo were at the Legislative Building. They obtained certification the following year.

Text of the LRB's decision in the Canadian Workers Union case was given today in the weekly report of the labor department.

It said CWU Local 1 election of officers was not in conformity with its constitution and bylaws and persons not members of the local were allowed to vote and at least four persons elected were not members at the time of the election.

It said that none of the persons elected as officers of CWU Local 2 were members and did not become members until after the vote.

The board also said it was satisfied that no further elections for officers of Local 1 or Local 2 were held before the application for certification "which would rectify the elections" held last September.

Swanson said this decision was "arbitrary, wrong and unlawful."

"We went out of our way to follow our constitution and make our elections as democratic as possible," he said.

"They are the people not practising democracy. We urge the cabinet to investigate the (CWU) constitution and case on their own."

JOURNALIST JAILED IN RHODESIA

SALISBURY (UPI) — Rhodesian freelance journalist Peter Niesewand was sentenced to two years at hard labor today for violating the country's official Secrets Act.

One year of the sentence was suspended on condition that Niesewand not be convicted again under the act during the next three years.

Magistrate J. E. U. Hamilton granted a motion appealing the sentence. No date was set for the appeal hearing.

Niesewand, 28, worked for The Guardian of London, the British Broadcasting Corp., and other news organizations.

He was arrested Feb. 29 and the charges against him were never made public. His trial was held in closed court.

The sentence raised a cry of outrage in the British press.

Geoffrey Taylor, assistant editor of The Guardian, said today in London the sentence was "unbelievably savage."

Member of Parliament Phillip Whitehead, who also belongs to Britain's National Union of Journalists, labeled the sentence "monstrous" and said he would try to raise the issue in Parliament Monday.

A BBC spokesman said "we are shocked by both the secrecy of the proceedings and by the severity of the sentence. It is intolerable that nothing should be known of the prosecution or defence case."

Reginald Freeson, another Member of Parliament, said if necessary British police should go into Rhodesia and insist on Niesewand's release.

A New Look at the Old Place

Mr. Arthur Erickson, the well known architect, has come up with some interesting proposals for improvement of the Inner Harbor, and whether or not each suggestion is followed exactly, his ideas should do much to help fashion a new approach to the city's inner waterfront.

The concept of a two-deck parking facility on the south side of the harbor, with a landscaped area on top, would provide a serviceable asset while blending with the very attractive strip park which has been created farther along the Belleville Street shoreline.

The pedestrian causeway stretching across the harbor from the Ocean Cement site to the former CPR ticket office is a new proposal which merits study. If of solid construction, there could be a problem of surface drainage into the enclosed waters by the Causeway, which tidal action might not remedy. The bridge for yachts would apparently require an attendant, which also would be a disadvantage. But it is well for Victorians to see their waterfront in terms which vary greatly from the customary views, since this will help to stretch imaginations and prepare the way for some attractive features.

There are other proposals—for the Ocean Cement site, for removal of the ferry wharfage to the south side of the harbor, for a small amphitheatre, and so on. The latter should be planned to look attractive when empty, and perhaps even have some alternative use, for while it could be made a very pleasant feature of a tourist resort city, its stage would probably be infrequently used.

The main theme of Mr. Erickson's suggestions, of course, is that the harbor should be for people, and this is a most welcome concept. It means that the view, the access, and the general area of the waterfront should be left in an open state for public use, that the harbor should present an attractive sight for participants or passers by, and constructions should blend with the existing permanent features of the Inner Harbor.

It is heartening that at last some form of deliberate planning for the whole harbor area is under way. For too long this vital neighborhood has been left to haphazard growth—an invitation to inappropriate and retrogressive proposals.

The turnout of Victoria voters in last week's aldermanic by-election was certainly nothing to cheer about, but it was not the lowest on record for such contests. It is understandable that a spokesman for the Canadian Union of Public Employees should express disappointment to the Victoria Labor Council that the labor candidate in that by-election ran well down the list, receiving less than half as many votes as the winner.

Less understandable is the CUPE spokesman's reversion to cheap name-calling, labelling the winner, Malcolm Anderson, "super scab". This is the derogatory term employed by the union member to describe a man who volunteered to help clean school classrooms when the CUPE local walked off the job, to the detriment of children whose schooling was disrupted.

The strike has been settled. And the winner of the by-election obviously had other qualifications than a willingness to help the children to overcome difficulties inflicted on them by the work stoppage.

But it might occur to the CUPE representative that if he insists on relating the outcome of the poll to the successful candidate's volunteer clean-up work he draws attention to the public reaction. The voting public liked Anderson two-to-one over the labor candidate in a community which has placed several good labor men on previous councils. They did not resort to odious name-calling.

"... now then ... with these highrises on my Boardwalk and Park Place, what are you going to do ...?"

Canada, Europe: What Now?

AMSTERDAM—To what extent are Canadian relations with the European Community nationally distinct from those of the United States? This was one of several issues the Europe-America conference did not face.

Organizers of a conference to discuss the future of North Atlantic relations must be prepared to be judged by what is left out as well as by what is discussed. The European movements and the Atlantic Councils of Canada and the United States described it as the largest non-government conference ever organized on the topic, which was "new roles and relations in the next decade."

What marked the Canadian special-interest topic was that speakers scarcely even alluded to it. There were other, but recognized, omissions. The distinguished French professor, Raymond Aron, pointed out that the U.S. and Europe are allies and also economic rivals. There was little time for the problems of that rivalry.

A French unionist remarked that the composition of the conference suggested its purpose was to ensure Europe is safe for capitalism. There was little discussion about the social Europe or, as he said, the workers' Europe. And British MP R. H. Jenkins got off a nice line with his warning against Europeans living too cozily in the rich West with eyes shut to the world outside.

co-operate in the future. Until recently I doubt if we demonstrated this clearly enough to the Europeans ...

Perhaps the doubt remains open: Certainly, if you take Europeans to mean anything more than a few civil servants in Brussels. As a Canadian you could consider the conference an irrelevant bore.

You could associate yourself with the Gaullist editor, Michel Habib-Delecluse who, in an arrogant, angry intervention, said the planning took place "in a certain spirit of mystery" and that for Gaullists the invitations came too late (although there were 16 French delegates). Alternatively you could take in the scenery and the contributions of others, mainly the Americans diagnosing both their own and Europeans' ills.

Former U.S. Undersecretary of State George W. Ball reflected U.S. im-real—Europe exerts little more than a regional influence ... There is, we might as well be frank about it, a growing resentment of America ... (Does it extend to Canada and is the U.S. view paralleled in Canada?)

Turning to the U.S., Mr. Ball suggested the emergence of a version of Gaullism rather than isolationism: "One can see this manifested in the procedural aspects of our political life—in the subordination of the legislative branch to an assertive executive, in the increasing use of the theatre, spectacle, summitry and surprise in our international affairs and in the efforts to bend the deliberations of international organizations to serve a national purpose ...

I am not suggesting that the new American Gaullism has been incorporated fully into U.S. policy today, merely that there are strong pressures in that direction. Whether or not these pressures will prevail will depend in large part on Europe's reactions, for such views would enjoy little response in America if Europe had gone farther toward achieving the vision—overly idealistic as some might think—of political unity, the concept of a Europe able to act with a single will and speak with a single voice."

There was plenty more from the Americans in similar vein. Henry Fowler, the former treasury secretary, said this would be the year when it would be determined whether one could be either a good American or a good European and a good Atlanticist at the same time.

GEORGE W. BALL

Hard Bargaining

There were explanations for these omissions. For instance, the social Europe may flow from integration but as a topic for today it pales beside the crisis of economic-trade-security relations which is already a fact. A few days before the conference opened president Nixon's Council on International Economic Policy warned Europe that the U.S. intended to be a very hard bargainer to redress the balance for unfair European trade policies.

Canada's relations with Europe are an immediate problem, as important to Canada as the U.S. concern is south of the border. The explanation that, for the organizers "Canada was an afterthought" holds no comfort. Why should this be so? In the event, Canadians were relieved just to be included.

The experience suggests we have not come as far as we should have during the last year or so. In March last year, External Affairs Minister Sharp told the Senate foreign affairs committee he was not sure the Europeans had the political will until then to make the effort needed to solve mutual problems.

He said, "They may have been inhibited by reservations about the degree to which Canadians' interests were nationally distinct, and about our wish to tience with the process of European integration. (Do Canadians understand any better than Americans that it takes more than a few years to integrate fully nine nations with centuries of distinct history?) Mr. Ball wished Europe had the confidence and strength to assume a world role equal to its resources."

"But I see little evidence of such an intention. Instead it seems to me that you Europeans are, if anything, becoming even more preoccupied with your own affairs and less concerned than ever about problems and dangers in the rest of the world ...

"Europeans have in my view become parochial so that—even conceding a unity that is more metaphorical than

Maintain Independence

Theo Sommer, editor of the German paper Die Zeit, said the European Community must resolve not to be pushed around by anyone. It must prevent Finlandization—being swallowed up politically if not militarily by the Soviets with only a semblance of autonomy left. It must also ward off Canada-ization—being pressed into economic subservience by the U.S., autonomy and freedom of choice threatened by dollar diplomacy.

Mr. Sommer's point was not well taken by some Americans. It has been suggested that the Trudeau government is having second thoughts about its drive for some form of special relationship with the European Community. Particularly, that it might be preferable to remain vigorous free traders, untied by any bloc. Listening to discussion here, one is struck by the thought that there really hasn't been enough thought in any party about the nature of a distinct Canadian interest vis-a-vis Europe.

Sympathy for the Victim

Provincial Judge Les Bewley of Vancouver is not a man to mince words when he discusses what he considers excessive sympathy toward the criminal and has, on occasion, criticized the manner in which parole is granted and administered.

The other day at Harrison Hot Springs, he turned his attention to the "ologists"—sociologists, psychologists and anthropologists—who "have persuaded members of the government that the law is misguided, the offender is most important and the victim is to be disregarded as a mere statistic."

Whether or not those who champion the cause of rehabilitation—and it is a good cause—agree with Judge Bewley, he serves a valuable purpose when he underscores the fact that the innocent victim of a crime is entitled to primary consideration.

The innocent victim is not the individual who intentionally inflicted injury, physical or otherwise, on the other party to a crime, the person who committed it.

If the law catches up with the offender and applies legal discipline, possibly with some compensation for the person who suffered, that should not end society's responsibilities. There is still some obligation to attempt to reform the transgressor, if for no other reason than simple economics. It costs too much to permit a repetition of crime, apprehension, trial and imprisonment of a criminal.

But granting all that, the judge's point is valid. The victim is entitled to greater consideration than mere listing as a relatively anonymous statistic. Any inclination to dismiss him as such can only create a backlash of public resentment against those who ignore him in their solicitude for the criminal.

The Fruits of War by Peace

HONG KONG—The policy of Japan, perhaps unprecedented in history, is to gain the fruits of war without recourse to war or, put another way, to achieve by peace all to which mistaken militarism aspired before the 1945 defeat. And, because Japan is a sagacious, remarkably disciplined and homogeneous nation, this peaceful policy is well along the road to success.

To confirm Japanese aspirations one has only to read statements of various leaders. One prominent industrialist has said: "I believe the concept of the pre-war Greater East Asia Coprosperity Sphere was right." The "sphere" to which he referred was the proclaimed goal of army and navy forces more than a generation ago—domination of Asian markets and access to its raw materials.

Europe have been the main commercial magnets but also Asia shows convincing signs of Japan's business success. There one sees blatant evidence of Japanese manufactured products, industrial subsidiaries, salesmen and tourists. Now new deals are slowly shaping up with Chinese Manchuria and Soviet Siberia.

The Japanese Phoenix arose from the ashes because of Japanese social traditions, their prodigious talents and their feverish desire to work. Moreover, to off. Now, as the global structure becomes politically pentagonal it militarily remains bi-polar, Japan has increasing room for diplomatic manoeuvre. Nevertheless it still doesn't need to spend much on arms.

In fact, the defence budget is directly linked to expenditures for education and welfare. It remains less than 1 per cent of the Gross National Product. Of course the GNP itself climbs by leaps and bounds. This allows Japan gradually to improve its armed forces to a point where they are becoming respectable vis-a-vis minor Asian powers—but not in the same league as those of China, much less Russia or America.

Japan seems to have discovered haphazardly that what Richard Nixon wrote in 1967 isn't necessarily true. Before becoming president he said: "It is not realistic to expect a nation moving into the first rank of major powers to be totally dependent for its own security on another nation."

Notwithstanding, U.S. pressure has had slight effect in persuading Japan to accept major increases in its own armed strength or its share of Asian-Pacific security burdens. There has always been just enough yield to suggest sympathy with American views but not enough to disturb a budget primarily devoted to industrial growth.

New Phenomenon

However, there is a new phenomenon to be discerned in Japanese dependence on others for its own security. No longer does it rely "totally" on the United States. It relies on the fact that Japan has become so rich, so industrious and so important that no one can risk its destruction.

The U.S.A., its biggest trading partner, must protect it. The U.S.S.R. needs its help to develop Siberia. China sees it as a prop against the super-powers. No member of the international community can tolerate the thought of anyone else disrupting Japan. It is worth too much to everyone to keep the country as it is.

TAKEO FUKUDA

Increasing Voice

Takeo Fukuda told me last year, when he was Tokyo's Foreign Minister: "We wish to use our economic strength to gain an increasing voice in the international community. Japan has no intention of acquiring great military strength. This permits us to make our economic strength even greater."

Finally, Tomisa Eizo Hashimoto, secretary general of the governing Liberal-Democratic party, adds: "Japan finds itself without a political role in international affairs commensurate with its economic power."

Most Japanese, whose clannish, hard-working, competitive society lends itself to this original approach, are aware of their new course and support it. And the search for success is obvious.

Today's best-selling books include one by Eitaro Itoyama who boasts of his "ferocious" business philosophy which enabled him to become a self-made millionaire, and another by Konosuke Matsushita, a wealthy tycoon, explaining how to surmount managerial problems.

Herman Kahn, the futurologist, predicts Japan's rise to Number One among world economic powers by the year 2000. The gap between exports and imports widens steadily. Hitherto America and day's world allowed no other avenue to success.

The evolution of international power balances, as they changed, successively favored Japan. When the United States was unchallenged as Number One, Tokyo had no need to worry about military defence. That burden was unilaterally assumed by Washington.

Under the U.S. security treaty the Japanese were still protected in the bipolar world of a Soviet-American stand-

Brave Show

May I congratulate Bud Pauls on his ethnic distinction re the Scottish military uniform (letter March 30).

I also, as an ex-military man, have known for many years the resentment of the original Scottish units of our copycatting. The fact of the much higher pay for the initiators did not lessen the resentment.

In my own view I can't believe there is any prestige in being an imitation. Tradition and heredity may have some value but not at the expense of local traditions when forming a new nation.

Again I agree with Mr. Pauls. Take off a fancy uniform and what have we: an ordinary man just like the rest of us.

Regardless of our opinion about fancy uniforms, the Scottish bravery is unquestionable. So why not leave both the bravery and the uniform where they rightly belong? —Len Skelton, 4068 Grange Rd.

I want to express a word of appreciation to the Jubilee Hospital. Having been a patient in three different wards I experienced the greatest kindness and consideration from all the staff. The happy cheerful faces of the nurses did one good and the kindness and patience with the very old—and sometimes difficult—was amazing.

Thank the Lord for the Royal Jubilee Hospital.—E.C.R.

60 YEARS AGO

From The Times of April 6, 1913:

In many parts of British Columbia the finest tree growths on the continent have existed. These have been in many instances devastated by the hand of man. The forest fires have destroyed many thousands of acres of valuable timber. Lately, efforts have been made by the Forestry Association to stop this fearful, wanton waste. But it is not only from the commercial standpoint that the loss has been suffered. Many fine specimens of various trees have been cut down and destroyed by people who do not appreciate them. The preservation of natural beauties has recently been fostered, and all governments have been seeking to lay aside park reserves.

"After the resumption of dividend payments with a special dividend of 10 cents per share on Oct. 27, 1972, a regular dividend of seven cents was paid Feb. 22, 1973, and a further regular quarterly dividend of seven cents per share has been declared payable April 27, 1973, to shareholders of record April 13, 1973."

BCFP

British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. says it is doubling its common share dividend to 20 cents, a partial restoration of the 25-cent rate paid prior to the 1971 forest industry slump.

The announcement was made by Ian A. Barclay, BCFP president, following a board meeting here. The dividend will be paid May 1 to shareholders of record April 13. The regular preferred share dividend of 75 cents has also been declared.

Barclay said the decision to boost the dividend was based on the improvement in 1972 earnings and what he termed the excellent startup of the company's new Mackenzie kraft pulp mill. In 1972, company profits were $10.8 million or $2.75 a share, compared with $5.5 million or $1.30 a share in 1971.

Thomson

The Thomson Organization, headed by Canadian-born Lord Thomson of Fleet, has announced record profits on its 1972 operations.

Over-all profits, before expenses, increased by 84 per cent over 1971 to $13.5 million. Earnings increased to $28.42 a share.

The Times newspaper is excluded from the results. The company's statement said the newspaper achieved "significant improvement" in 1972 but it had incurred losses. These losses were borne by Thomson Scottish Associates. The Thomson Organization has interests in magazines, specialist publications, book publishing, travel, transport, engineering and other areas.

TC Resources

Trans-Canada Resources Ltd. lost $1,675,953 or 63 cents a share during 1972, compared with a profit of $39,261 or two cents a share the previous year.

Most of the loss was in a write-off of $1,483,945 in mineral properties when the company curtailed exploration in that field.

Operations lost $245,000 or nine cents a share before the recovery of deferred income tax.

The company's major activity is provision of drilling services, equipment and fluids to the petroleum industry.

180 AGAINST 33 MILLION

MONTREAL (CP) — Andre J. Tasso, a 44-year holder of 180 Alcan Aluminum Ltd. shares, lost his attempt Thursday to bring about change in the giant international corporation's structure, but he believes he has made a good start.

He says he never expected to win — a feat which would have meant rallying a majority of 33-million share-votes to his side in what is believed to have been one of Canada's first shareholder-initiated proxy contests under the new Canada Corporations Act of 1971.

His two proposals — to give outsiders a majority on Alcan's board of directors and appoint a committee to oversee the company's performance — were soundly defeated by about 20 million share-votes to 900,000 share-votes.

The basic idea behind his proposals, he says, was to make Alcan — with operations in 30 countries and annual revenues of about $1.5 billion — more responsive to shareholders and the millions of individuals and institutions affected by its operations.

Tasso, a Lebanon-born chemical engineer who worked for Alcan for 16 years until 1967, says he approached management about a year ago to make bylaw changes that would require a majority of Alcan's 14 directors come from outside the company.

Company management, which holds eight of the 14 board seats, said they opposed the idea. They also rejected the suggestion that a committee headed by an outside director be set up to "carry out performance audits of the company and its management on a continuing basis."

Gold Just Short

WINNIPEG (CP) — Gold futures hit record highs in all months Thursday on the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange and contracts for delivery in April, 1973 closed only 33 cents short of the magic $300 an ounce many brokers having been waiting for.

Exchange president Thomas Mohide said trading for the

In the first four days since the year's first fiscal quarter ended, the exchange has let 70, 57, 34 and 65 contracts respectively.

House Pushes 23 Bills One Step Closer to Law

After weeks of little or no progress in pushing its heavy load of legislation through the legislature, the NDP government made considerable headway Thursday in obtaining second reading — approval in principle — for a total of 23 bills.

Most came under the jurisdiction of Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, with a handful under Health Minister Dennis Cocke. Few proved really contentious and the majority went through with minimal debate during morning and night sittings — with the afternoon given over to private members' bills.

The only piece of legislation withdrawn was the Public Disclosure Act, which Macdonald said would be held over to the fall session to allow full public discussion. (See Page 9)

Members of all three opposition parties and especially the Liberals produced a welter of criticism on individual aspects of the legislation, as well as comments and suggestions on how it could be improved.

JUSTICE FASTER

Several bills dealt with were amendments to existing legislation governing court procedures and other aspects of the administration of justice. These, Macdonald said, were generally designed to make the delivery of justice in B.C. faster, simpler, more efficient and less expensive.

Others provide for the protection of tenants, in amendments to the Landlord and Tenant Act, and citizens generally in attempting to control "usurious" practices of mortgage brokers through changes to the Mortgage Brokers Act.

In moving second reading of the latter bill, Macdonald, complimented Dave Brousson (L—North Vancouver-Capilano) on focusing public attention on the "festering problem" of shady mortgage brokers, through his speeches in the current session of the legislature.

BROAD POWERS

Macdonald noted the legislation gives the registrar of brokers broad powers to cancel or suspend the licence of a broker whose actions "constitute usury in the sense that loans are harsh or unconscionable."

He conceded that was a heavy responsibility to give to a public official, but added: "I hope the very existence of the power will be salutary in the industry."

Brousson urged Macdonald, as he has done before in the session, to proclaim section 2 of the act requiring full disclosure of the true cost of borrowing. A Mortgage Advisory Council should also be established to offer advice on ethics, standards, rates and other matters, as well as to promote a comprehensive educational program to help British Columbians understand the pitfalls of mortgage borrowing.

A fellow-Liberal, Garde Gargom (Vancouver-Point Grey) welcomed amendments to the Government Liquor Act, which among other measures would allow the establishment of neighborhood pubs through a new type of general liquor licence.

MISHMASH OF LAW

But Gargom declared that the act still remains "a mishmash of regulations and a mishmash of law which does not do justice to the intelligent consumption of liquor" is B.C.

"I think the Government Liquor Act has been a sluiceway of incompetence. I think it has also totally dedicated itself to government priority over customer priority," he said.

There should be far more emphasis on customer service and convenience in a government enterprise which is expected to make a $100 million net-profit this year.

Gargom went further, and suggested the government get out of the liquor sale business altogether. He said he could think of no solid justification for government liquor stores, and in his six years as an MLA he had heard no arguments to justify their existence.

"Handle it by taxation, by regulation and let it go out to the private sector to distribute," he said.

But the suggestion got strong opposition from Phyllis Young (NDP—Vancouver-Little Mountain), who said she had lived three years in the state of Illinois, where liquor was distributed by "the so-called free enterprise system" and it was "a known fact that 40 to 50 per cent of the liquor sold in all retail outlets was bootleg liquor... the same sort of junk that was made during prohibition."

OPEN SCANDAL

Young said the industry was Mafia-dominated, prone to a wide range of illegal practices and "an open scandal."

Endorsing her comments, Macdonald said: "Unless the people control the liquor industry the industry will control the people. It's as simple as that."

Conservative house leader Scott Wallace said it was "ludicrous" that the act should permit people in pubs to drink seated but not if they are standing. Mines Minister Leo Nimsick said grocery stores in small, remote communities should be allowed to sell beer so that residents aren't forced to drive "miles and miles" to purchase a case.

CHILLED BEER

And still on the subject of beer, Gerry Anderson (NDP—Kamloops) said all liquor stores, especially those in warmer regions of the province, should be equipped with coolers so that they can dispense chilled beer to customers who pick up a case on their way home from work.

Other bills which received approval in principle were amendments to:

—The Equal Guardianship of Infants Act, which provides that an orphan who has no appointed guardian will come under the supervision of the superintendent of child welfare, and assets relating to the child will be controlled by the public trustee.

—The Coroners' Act, which stipulate equitable sharing of costs for coroner's services among municipalities using central facilities in one area; and also take fees and charges out of the act's schedule and make these subject to cabinet regulation.

—The Small Claims Act, which increase the jurisdiction of the Small Claims Court from the present $500 limit on debts and claims to a new ceiling of $1,000.

—The Evidence Act, which removes the necessity for medical practitioners to appear in person to give court testimony, by making written reports acceptable as evidence.

—The Landlord and Tenant Act, which will impose a modified type of rent control by permitting landlords to apply only one rent increase per year; make mandatory the establishment of landlordtenant bureaus throughout the province; and require that tenants be given four months notice to vacate if their apartments are being converted to condominiums.

—Securities Act amendments will bring legislation in line with the new Companies Act.

—Strata Titles Act amendments will require that permission be obtained from local municipalities before apartment buildings are converted to condominiums.

—Conditional Sales Act amendments will permit repossession of automobiles or other items to seize either the property involved or sue for the money owed, but not both.

—Bills of Sale Act amendments are of a similar nature for protection of consumers, Macdonald said.

LOCKED CARS

—Motor Vehicle Act amendments allow for penalties if cars are left unlocked and provide for refunds of deposits made when violations are contested in court.

A number of bills under the jurisdiction of Health Minister Dennis Cocke were also given approval in principle:

—Change of Name Act amendments will permit a woman who has had a divorce to change her name back to her previous name without having to do it within the former two-month deadline.

—Repeal of the Sexual Sterilization Act will end the practice of sterilizing mentally retarded people to keep them from reproducing.

—A new Ambulance Service Act permits the government to set standards for ambulance services throughout the province. Cocke said that under previous legislation "Model A trucks or even dump trucks" could be used to transport people to hospitals.

—Amendments to the Medical Act tighten up the policing policies of the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

—Medical Grant Act amendments are of a housekeeping nature, as are Health Act amendments.

—Amendments to the Hospital Act make effective appeal boards for doctors who wish to use hospitals' facilities for their practice. It was found that the boards could not function under the previous act.

—Also given approval was legislation amending the Hearing-Aid Regulation Act.

In Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich's jurisdiction was the Cattle Industry Development Act, which was approved in principle.

Appeal Dismissed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Court of Appeal Thursday dismissed the appeal of Thomas Fung, currently serving a life sentence for trafficking in heroin. Fung was arrested last year and convicted of trafficking in 13 ounces of heroin. Following a review of evidence, the court dismissed his appeal.

Railways Sign Pact With Shop Workers

MONTREAL (CP) — Representatives of Canadian National, CP Rail and 20,000 shopcraft Workers Thursday signed a tentative agreement for a two-year contract that, if ratified, will cost the railways $20 million this year and $33 million next year.

The companies are still bargaining with the United Transportation Union, which represents 15,000 trainmen and firemen and the 4,500-member Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

George Lach, CN vice-president for personnel and labor relations said Thursday:

"I hope the non-ops bear in mind the high cost of the settlement both in wages and pensions. I think the non-ops should be satisfied with a comparable agreement."

The agreement gives the shopcrafts a seven-per-cent wage hike for 1973, retroactive to Jan. 1, and a 6.5-per-cent boost for 1974. The old two-year contract expired last Dec. 31, with workers earning an average hourly wage of $4.05.

Disclosure Rule Delayed PYRAMID BAN OKAYED

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

The provincial government will delay implementation of its Public Officials' Disclosure Act until the fall session of the legislature, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald told the house Thursday night.

The attorney-general said the government feels it wise to make some changes to the bill. These will likely be done during the committee stage of consideration, he said.

Spokesmen for the opposition parties expressed qualified support for the legislation, although Jim Chabot (SC—Columbia River) said it constitutes an "invasion of privacy."

Macdonald said the question of how much information should be disclosed by public officials has to be cleared up.

A balance should be maintained between the public's interest through disclosure and the interests of the individual citizen and his rights, he said.

The government is not afraid to stand up for the principle of the bill, he said, which is "to eliminate corruptive influences which guide decisions of legislators or seem to guide decisions."

He said the democratic system suffers if it is alleged that decisions are made by public bodies on the basis of protection of individuals' interests.

Macdonald also said parts of the Constitution Act and some of the house's standing orders will have to be "touched up" to provide for disclosure by members.

Secured Chabot said he was glad that Macdonald realizes that the act needs some amendments. An example of public reaction to it, he said, was the resignation of a Delta alderman who did not want to have to disclose his financial holdings as the act specifies. (The extent of financial holdings is not required, only the names of companies in which investments are held, and pieces of land owned by the official.)

Chabot said if the legislation applied only to members of the legislature, it would be more acceptable, but it should not extend down to members of school boards and aldermen on small city councils.

The bill forces the public official to "stand naked in the public square," Chabot said, and assumes guilt on the part of the official instead of innocence.

Pat McGeer (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) said the act will actually afford public officials protection, since "witch-hunts" about officials' holdings will not be effective if disclosure has already been made.

He said the principle of the legislation is "excellent" and will likely be copied by other jurisdictions. But the provisions of the bill should not be made to apply to everyone "all the way down to the dog-catcher," he said.

Hugh Curtis (PC—Saanic and the Islands) strongly supported the principle of the bill, saying it would lead to an end of the "whisper campaigns" which often sweep through municipalities at times when decisions are being made, particularly on zoning matters.

"To have declared in advance is to have wiped out once and for all that particular whispering," he said.

"If there is nothing to hide, there is nothing to fear in this type of disclosure," he added.

Education Minister Eileen Daily adjourned debate on the second reading of the bill on behalf of the government. The bill will likely be referred automatically by the government to the fall session of the legislature.

The legislature gave approval in principle Thursday to legislation outlawing pyramid-selling schemes in the province.

The government received support from all parties.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said the "endless chain operations simply fleece people. There are no good ones."

He referred to the scheme known as Dare To Be Great, which has run up against the law on a number of occasions in Canada in recent years.

Macdonald said such schemes are built up "with an air of almost religious hysteria, playing upon the emotions of gullible people."

He said the legislation will rid the province of "get-rich-quick" schemes and will end the "heartbreak and misery" which so many citizens have suffered.

Liberal spokesman Pat McGeer (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) said the effectiveness of the legislation will depend on the vigor with which it is enforced. He urged the attorney-general to deploy the necessary forces as soon as possible to get out in the field and work to eliminate the schemes.

Scott Wallace (PC—Oak Bay) said a number of Victoria problems have been caused by the outfit known as Canada Golden Products. Fourteen people were arrested in Ontario in connection with the group, he said, although in most cases the operators of the scheme have kept one step ahead of the law moving from town to town.

Most Private Bills Fail, But Some Interest NDP

It was private members' day in the legislature Thursday, and although a considerable number of private members' bills went down the drain, the government expressed at least passing interest in a number of others.

Throughout the afternoon, in which more than 30 private bills were disposed of — most ruled out of order because they involved public expenditure — the government expressed support for the following significant measures: a new election expenses act, a provincial ombudsman and a B.C. bill of rights.

The bill of rights which was a major item of policy contained in the throne speech at the start of the session, was suggested by Scott Wallace (PC—Oak Bay).

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said the bill of rights is "under active consideration" by the government and will likely be brought in by the government in the fall session this year.

The election expenses act was the suggestion of Pat McGeer (L—Vancouver-Point Grey). Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall said there will be a new election expenses act brought in by the government before the next provincial election. That position had previously been expressed by other government spokesmen.

The provincial ombudsman was proposed by Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver-Point Grey). Premier Dave Barrett indicated that such a measure would be instituted "not this session," but "soon."

Other expressions of government interest were made to proposals concerning amendments to the Capital Improvement District Act and the Abandoned Refrigerator Act.

Hugh Curtis (PC—Saanic and the Islands) proposed amendments to the Capital Improvement District Act, seeking involvement in the Capital Improvement Commission from other municipalities besides Victoria, Saanic, Esquimalt and Oak Bay.

In adjourning the debate on the bill — effectively tabling the measure — Provincial Secretary Hall said it was basically a good idea, although he would have preferred to have seen it come from the commission itself. He said he will have discussions with the commission in the future about the matter.

The Abandoned Refrigerator Act was a creation of Conservative Wallace. He said that he wanted to give the measure publicity even though some members of the press had made light of it.

Attorney-General Macdonald said he agreed that publicity is what was needed in order to correct the problem of abandoned refrigerators. People don't realize what a problem abandoned refrigerators can be, he said. Macdonald adjourned debate on second reading of Wallace's bill.

Another private members' bill, an attempt to provide home acquisition funds for the province's Indians by Liberal Gardom, has been superseded by similar legislation introduced by the government. Premier Barrett paid tribute to Gardom, however, for the Liberal MLA's efforts in bringing the matter to public attention.

Peace Pipe Smoked, Siege Ends

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (UPD)—The American Indian Movement agreed Thursday to end its 37-day armed occupation of Wounded Knee, but the Indians will remain armed and in control of the village until Saturday.

The agreement between AIM and the federal government was worked out soon after Medicine man Wallace Black Elk saw an eagle soaring over the tepee where negotiations were going on and pronounced it a good omen.

Inside the tepee, government officials and Indian leaders smoked a peace pipe and signed the agreement. Less than an hour afterward, the Indians' leader, Russell Means, came to the main federal roadblock outside the besieged village and was handcuffed and flown by helicopter to jail in Rapid City, S.D.

A tom-tom thrummed and Indians chanted ritual prayers while Assistant Attorney General Kent Frizzell shared the peace pipe with AIM leaders.

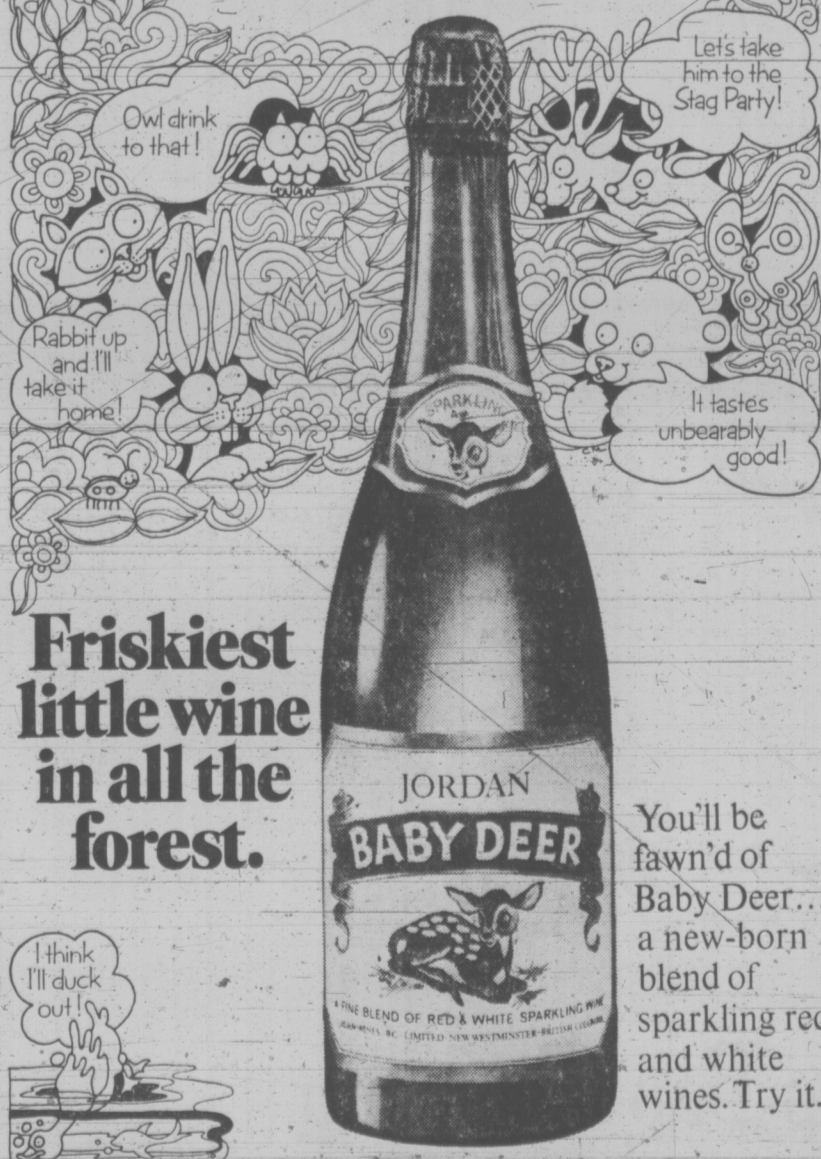

They signed the agreement on a table set up on the warm windward bluff overlooking the historic hamlet where between 200 and 300 Sioux and Cheyenne died in 1890 in the Massacre of Wounded Knee — the last clash between the U.S. cavalry and the plains Indians.

Means said his followers would remain armed and in charge of the village until he goes to Washington Saturday to confer with federal officials.

Frizzell said Means was to telephone his followers in Wounded Knee Saturday morning to confirm that meetings between himself and other Indian leaders and federal officials were under way.

At that point, the Indians are to lay down their arms and give up the occupation.

Gray Bows Out of FBI in Face of Defeat

WASHINGTON (WP) — Patrick Gray III asked President Nixon to withdraw his nomination as director of the FBI Thursday after a hastily-called meeting of the Senate Judiciary Committee seemed to foreshadow his rejection.

The White House quickly accepted Gray's request.

In a statement released in San Clemente, President Nixon said:

"In fairness to Mr. Gray, and out of my overriding concern for the effective conduct of the vitally important business of the FBI, I have regretfully agreed to withdraw Gray's nomination."

Nixon said he had asked Gray to stay on as acting FBI director until another nominee is confirmed.

Two prominent justice department attorneys were described Thursday night as the most likely replacements for Gray.

Sources said that the list for director of the FBI was headed by assistant attorney general Henry Petersen, head of the department's criminal division and by John Ignersoll, director of the department's Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

Sources also said that administration officials had sounded out Senate Committee judiciary chairman James Eastland and Senate Majority Whip Robert Byrd to see if they would be acceptable nominees.

ATTRACTIVE
Petersen was described as being particularly attractive because of a record of opposing organized crime and because he is registered Democrat.

Unlike Gray, who campaigned for the President in 1972, Petersen has not been active in partisan politics.

The president spoke with Gray by telephone for five to 10 minutes Thursday evening. Citing the committee's meeting, Nixon said he concluded that "it is obvious that Gray's nomination will not be confirmed by the Senate."

Gray said the basis for his decision was his "deep conviction that the FBI, a great and unique American institution of vital service to the president and to the American people, is entitled to permanent leadership at the earliest possible time."

His announcement set the stage for a showdown vote on his nomination next week with opponents flatly predicting that it was all but dead.

"He read the tea leaves," Sen. Charles Mathias said later. Mathias expressed surprise, however, that "the message was taken so quickly."

Gray, 57, ran into trouble at Senate hearings last month when he disclosed that he had given the White House raw FBI files compiled during the FBI's investigation of the Watergate scandal.

"LIED"
Gray said he continued the practice even after concluding that White House Counsel John Dean — as Gray put it under Senate questioning — "probably" lied to FBI agents last summer.

Attorney General Richard Kleindienst, who turned up in San Clemente unexpectedly last Saturday to confer with Nixon, said he was deeply disappointed by the outcome.

Calling Gray "one of the most loyal Americans I know," Kleindienst said through a spokesman that "he was an excellent choice to be permanent director and should have been confirmed."

"VICTIM"
Nixon voiced the same sentiment and suggested that Gray was simply an unfortunate victim of the Watergate controversy.

"Pat Gray is an able, honest and dedicated American," Nixon said.

"Because I asked my counsel, John Dean, to conduct a thorough investigation of alleged involvement in the Watergate episode, Director Gray was asked to make FBI reports available to Dean.

Influence Bid Cited Over GOP Donation

NEW YORK (WP) — Federal investigators are probing reports that accused swindler Robert Vesco, who gave a secret $200,000 cash contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign last year, made an illegal, secret cash contribution of at least $50,000 to Nixon in 1968 and tried to buy influence through that contribution.

Investigators in the U.S. attorney's office here and the Internal Revenue Service in New Jersey have questioned past and present Vesco associates about the 1968 contribution.

BROTHER

An informed source said Vesco has told associates that the 1968 contribution was given to Edward Nixon, the president's younger brother, shortly before the election at a meeting arranged by attorney Howard Cerny. Cerny has denied this.

The president's brother, according to sworn testimony, also was instrumental in arranging for the 1972 contribution to be made in cash.

CORPORATE FUNDS

The investigations stem from reports that Vesco's 1968 contribution, which could have been more than $100,000 in all, was made from corporate funds, which is illegal.

In addition, investigators are trying to determine whether Vesco attempted to use the contribution as a means of buying influence from the administration to halt a securities and exchange commission probe of Vesco.

$224 MILLION

Vesco, 38, is the main subject of an SEC suit that is also filed against 20 other individuals and 21 corporations, charging them with misappropriating $224 million from mutual funds managed by Investors Overseas Services, a Geneva-based international financial complex.

A source close to Vesco quoted Vesco as saying he had given a large amount of cash—$50,000—as the source recalled it, to Cerny and Edward Nixon shortly before the 1968 election.

In sworn testimony in the SEC civil suit against Vesco, New Jersey GOP politician and former Vesco attorney Harry Sears says that Vesco said he contributed at least $100,000 in 1968.

Only $20,000 turns up in published reports of campaign contributions.

On the Agony of a Man About to Give Praise.

It's been a week of playing God, you might say, since I have been agonizing as a judge over some of the best Canadian writing and performing achievements of 1972, and it is nothing if not exhausting.

When the Media Club of Canada asked me to judge the best British Columbia magazine writing of the year and the Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists asked me to serve on the judging panel for the national ACTRA awards I thought it not merely an honor — kaff! kaff! — but a breeze. In almost any kind of competition there's usually one champion who stands above the rest. I would just look for that one, I thought, and Bob's your uncle.

It was not to be. When you realize that it's within your power to bestow some public recognition on someone who has created something — and, equally importantly, the realization that you will be denying all the others public recognition by making them also-rans — that responsibility becomes very nearly an intolerable burden.

I am not at all sure, in fact, if such awards should be made at all since they rely so much on the personal prejudices of the judges and since creative work such as writing or acting very seldom invites direct comparison. In the magazine writing section, for example, at least three of the five finalists are superb craftsmen. Who the hell was I to make a choice?

What weighed on my mind, too, in this week of trying to make it up, was the knowledge of how much sweat and secret, lonely work, how much uncertainty and brain-wracking, how much weary groping, went into the work that, completed, seems so effortless and easy. I know it to be true of writing and I suspect it is true of every creative effort that it's hard work that pays off. Dare I use the example of the iceberg? No I don't.

One of the more enduring myths, it seems to me, is that masterpieces are the result of a natural talent. I concede that often there is an inclination that takes boys and girls into the field for which they've an affinity. But the examples I have before me of works that can be called outstanding are the products of men and women who have learned their trade, just as a carpenter or doctor or a bricklayer has learned. The creative juices rarely flow. They are more often squeezed.

Another of the lazing myths is that creative people are motivated by ego. That may appear true on the surface. Whatever his speciality, the artist has no way of judging the worth or acceptance of his work except through the beholder. That probably is why these awards are so eagerly sought by the entrants. They want and need confirmation that what they've done is worthwhile or better. They need praise not for praise, itself, but simply as a spur to move onward.

The fact is that truly creative work is more often ego-destroying than it is ego-building. I know at least two Canadians who are tops in their fields — each widely assumed to be flaming egotists — who have had to fight an inner insecurity about their work through their careers.

It is a curse that grows through the years for the reason that writers or actors or artists become increasingly self-critical, setting themselves impossible goals of perfectionism, concerned deeply that the vitality or enthusiasm they brought to their earlier work has gone with the years. That fear may lead to an even greater need for reassurance that may seem egotistic. Whatever measure of success there's been in the past, continuing self-confidence remains the most elusive and necessary of attitudes.

I suppose that's why I've been so curiously hesitant and uncertain in coming to the decisions that are now irrevocable. I am mighty pleased for the winners, but I hope that the losers will have the good sense to know there'll be another day, another judge.

Reorganized Bus System To Start Off Debt Free

By WAYNE HARDING
Times Staff

Reorganized transit systems for Greater Victoria and Greater Vancouver can start off next year debt free, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said in a policy statement issued today.

Besides taking over the mortgaged debt charges, which have been accumulated by B.C. Hydro's transportation division, the province will "underwrite 100 per cent of the capital cost of these surface bus systems," Lorimer said.

Debt charges to these systems amount to approximately $2.5 million annually, a spokesman for the minister's office said.

Existing legislation enables the province to pick up 50 per cent of the operating deficits of transit systems, which include debt charges — but such grants have not been made since the enabling act, brought in by the former Social Credit government, was passed in March 1972.

Lorimer said today discussions with the Greater Vancouver and Capital Regional Districts to determine "their share of the annual operating deficit" of the systems is continuing.

The spokesman for the minister's office said there is an opinion widely held that the department has proposed that the operating costs be met by levying of a two mill property tax within the two regional districts. This is not true, he said. Rather, in the course of discussions with the Greater Vancouver Regional District, the department had suggested that operating budgets not be limited by the amounts that could be raised by one mill levy — the amount originally proposed.

Regions Likely to Take Over

Some regional directors have proposed that special taxes, such as utility or gasoline taxes, be imposed rather than property taxes to support transit. But the government is inclined "to come back" to taxation of land as a source of operating revenue, the spokesman said.

In his policy statement today, Lorimer suggested the regional districts be prepared to take over the planning and marketing of the transit systems in 1974.

Of the systems themselves, Lorimer said they "will involve a series of local routes serving local residences and activity centres connecting with an express or "fastbus" system.

The policy statement is the first to be issued on the subject of public transportation since the New Democratic government created the Bureau of Transit Service and appointed Victor Parker as provincial director of transit earlier this year.

It contains few specific details of transit planning and is seen as a statement of intention aimed at regional directors as much as a statement of the government's philosophy on public transit.

Adults to Ride School Buses

Among the specific details is the mention that: "We will also be looking at the school bus system as part of this future program."

"The province is blanketed by an excellent system of bus routes operated exclusively for the busing of school children. With little additional cost, adults can also be carried on certain of these school buses, either on the existing routes, or on altogether new runs in the midday and on weekends."

On theory, the statement declares: "We see our effort decreasing the dependency of persons on movement by private automobile and, removing the pressure to build more highways parking facilities and bridges, with the attendant loss of land and livability in our communities."

The statement notes that while public transportation does not produce sufficient revenue to meet the costs of providing the service, neither does road building.

"On a per capita basis, the British Columbia taxpayer contributes approximately 40 cents out of every dollar we spend on roads, leaving the public purse to pay a subsidy per person of about $17 per year. Comparable figures for transit services in Greater Vancouver and Greater Victoria are 33 cents on the dollar contribution and a public subsidy of $5 per capita per year."

ARENA FEE HIKES URGED

City finance committee agreed Thursday to recommend to council increases in rental rates and admission charges at Memorial Arena and McPherson Playhouse.

Jack Morgan, director of recreation and community services, recommended in a letter that public skating charges at the arena go up 10 cents.

Present rates, in existence for the last five years, are 65 cents for adult admission, 40 cents for students, 15 cents for tiny tots and 65 cents for Friday night skating.

He also recommended increases for skating parties, pro hockey training camp, building rentals, community rates, property rentals and roller skating.

Major changes recommended for McPherson Playhouse are increased charge for rehearsals and limitation of the hall-house rental and also to include Sunday in the mid-week rates and Friday in the weekend rates.

Increases vary between a low of $15 and a high of $150.

Resignation Threat By Ambulance Men

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Employees of Garden City Ambulance Ltd. sent an ultimatum to Victoria city council today threatening to withdraw their services Monday if they are not granted an emergency meeting with Mayor Peter Pollen.

The ultimatum came after the announcement Thursday that a new ambulance service, operated jointly by the city and Victoria General Hospital, will take over the city's emergency service contract July 1.

Garden City Ambulance has served the city since 1968 and its contract expires June 30.

"All we want to do is meet with the mayor and talk about this," said Ed Pfeifle, one of nine employees with the firm.

"CONCERNED"
"We want to find out exactly what they're going to do. We're all concerned about our jobs."

"They're proposing to use nursing orderlies," Pfeifle said. "Those fellows are already working and are not qualified to drive ambulances. We have the experience and with added training we could do the job."

The city plan, which is regarded as an interim measure pending development of a regional ambulance service under direction of the provincial government, calls for one emergency vehicle.

Victoria General will train a staff of six to man the ambulance, which will serve other city hospitals as well and the city will pay their salaries.

Mayor Pollen said he wouldn't give an exact estimate of the cost to the city for the new service but added it would be "in the vicinity of $100,000 a year."

"RIDICULOUS"
Garden City president B. J. Knezacky said the city plan is "ridiculous" and he intends to make a representation to city council.

He said his firm charges the city $60,000 a year and provides two ambulances and nine employees while the new scheme will provide only one ambulance and six employees for $100,000.

"One ambulance just isn't enough," said Lynn Klein, member of the Canadian Ambulance Ad-hoc Committee, now working on an extensive study of ambulance service for the provincial government.

Klein's 160-page committee report will be presented to the government in two weeks.

"If the one ambulance breaks down, who will back it up?" Klein asked. "And would the back-up team have the same equipment and the same expertise that the city advocates?"

"If Victoria is considering using the Saanich service for their back up — Saanich is already thinking they need another vehicle because they are so over-worked."

Klein's committee research shows that "use of dual-personnel is not in the best interests of providing optimum ambulance service."

He said a city of Victoria's size needs a "full time, highly trained ambulance personnel."

Klein said city council previously had considered letting the fire department provide ambulance service.

"We (his committee) convinced them not to set-up his dual function but now this proposal is the same thing."

Ald. Percy Frampton said today he had read the ultimatum and it "was not a very nice letter. I'm very unhappy about it."

Frampton said the city was dealing "directly with the company, not the employees. What they want to do is up to them, but we'll still hold the company to its contract."

"And that's the way it should be. The employees have nothing to do with it." The new ambulance service plan goes before city council Thursday for approval but Pollen said approval was assured because aldermen had been kept informed on progress of the matter and had all expressed approval.

SUITE GRASS BITTER IN EYES OF LAW

Eight spring plants found in a Victoria home netted a young couple $200-in fines in Victoria provincial court today.

Kenneth Gordon Berryman, 21, and Delver Marie Connors, both of 2217 Chambers, pleaded guilty to a joint charge of possession of eight marijuana plants.

The couple's illegal horticultural efforts were discovered Thursday night, after police forcibly entered their home.

People Will Have to Leave Their Cars at Home: Lorimer

Like it or not, city-dwellers in British Columbia may have to take the bus to work within the next five years, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer feels.

"There is only a limited amount that can be done to create enough road capacity for the private auto to move freely about in the urban centres of Greater Vancouver and Greater Victoria," he said Friday following publication of his first major policy statement on transit.

"We can see this point being reached perhaps as early as five years time."

"We as individuals may not wish to take the bus, but we may well have no alternative. With this situation in mind, we are planning for an attractive and efficient system of bus routes, and we are also considering other form of public transportation."

What about mono-rails? It's been proposed, said the minister, but "we are not ready to be sold any kind of system, other than buses, at the present time."

"We are seriously looking at light rapid transit systems which are a modern version of the street car."

What about rail transit? "Some existing rail lines will be useful for light rapid transit, and also for commuter train runs. We are also interested in inter-regional passenger transit such as on the

B.C. Rail and the National lines."

How will the citizen react to being denied travel in his own car?

"Recent experience in Canadian and United States cities with improvements to public transportation have shown that people will use an attractive, speedy system when one is provided."

"It is important for us to promote and develop these kinds of services."

Black Day in Boston

BOSTON (CP) — There was no joy in Beantown Thursday night. The mighty Bruins had struck out for the second time in as many nights and lost Phil Esposito for the rest of the season.

New York Rangers stung the Bruins 4-2 on the strength of three power-play goals and a relentless forechecking game to take a 2-0 lead in their National Hockey League quarter-final series.

The best-of-seven matchup continues in New York Saturday and Sunday nights with the surprising Rangers now highly regarded to upset the defending Stanley Cup champions in the opening playoff round.

The Bruins must be recalling with alarm the 1971 playoffs when, heavily favored after finishing first in the East Division, they were knocked off by Montreal Canadiens in seven games.

The prospects of their even lastings the limit appeared dim after Esposito, the centre who has won the NHL scoring title three of the last four years, was helped from the ice late in the game following a pileup in front of the New York net.

Esposito suffered a torn ligament in his right knee and is finished for the season. He was admitted to hospital and a team spokesman said he could undergo surgery Saturday.

The gloom in the Boston dressing room deepened when the team heard the extent of Esposito's injury.

"We're down 2-0 going into their rink and you want to know how I feel?" shot back Bobby Orr to a reporter's question.

The teams traded goals in the first period. Wayne Cashman scoring for Boston and rookie Steve Vickers for the Rangers with the teams at full strength.

But penalties took their toll on the Bruins in the second period when Ted Irvine and Pete Stelmowski scored with Boston players in the box.

Boston narrowed the gap with Doug Roberts' second goal in two games before the middle session ended, but Walt Tkaczuk restored the two-goal margin for New York, again with a Bruin in the penalty box, early in the third period.

With time running out, the Rangers were content to skate around centre ice or in their own end, and Boston checkers refused to move in to cover them.

"We're not skating at all, not like New York," Orr said, "and if we're not going to skate we're not going to get the breaks. They are."

"They're working their butts off, and it shows. Look at their power plays. We're not hungry when we've got the man advantage but they look as if they're going after raw meat."

Emile Francis, New York's general manager-coach, threw a curve at Boston when he put out Stelmowski's line on the power play.

With the usual power-play alignment of Jean Ratelle, Vic Hadfield and Red Gilbert just coming off a stretch, Francis threw Stelmowski out between Irvine and Bruce MacGregor.

No More Nursing For Stung Sabres

MONTREAL (CP) — Buffalo Sabres learned a lesson the hard way in their Stanley Cup quarter-final game against Montreal Canadiens Thursday night.

The Sabres struck for first period goals by Gilbert Perreault and Richard Martin and they seemed content to lay back and the Canadiens stormed back for five goals in the second period en route to a 7-3 win and a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series.

"We had a 2-0 lead after the first period and we thought we had them," said Sabres' captain Gerry Meehan. "I think we laid back and tried to nurse our lead instead of trying to make it 3-0."

"You can't hold back against a club like that. You have to stick it to them all the time, especially in their own building. If they get one against you, they can get five or six. We played one good period and they played two."

Defenceman Jim Schoenfeld scored the other Buffalo goal late in the third period but in between the Sabres' second and third markers, the Canadiens rapped in seven behind goaltender Dave Dryden.

THREE FOR COURCEY — Right winger Yvan Courcuyer scored three times. Serge Savard, Marc Tardif, Guy Lapointe and Jacques Lemire added singles.

Courcuyer played on a line with Jacques Lemire and Frank Mahovlich for the final two periods as coach Scotty Bowman shifted the Big M into the left wing spot normally occupied by Chuck Leffley.

"I had to get Scotty going," Canadiens' coach Scotty Bowman said, explaining the reason for the change. "He's a big man for us. Not only is he a big goal scorer, but he can also make the plays from the wing."

Mahovlich ended the game with assists on the last three Montreal goals.

Bowman also made sure he had the Lemire-Courcuyer-Mahovlich trio on against Buffalo's French Connection — Martin, Perreault and Rene Robert.

"He was using the Perreault line a lot," Bowman said. "I felt I had to use our top scorers against theirs. I felt that using power against power was a big thing for us and the strategy worked. Courcuyer scored two goals against Martin."

TURNING POINT? — Bowman thought the turning point in the game was a save by Ken Dryden off Jim Lorentz shortly after Martin had made it 4-0 with a power play goal at 15:48 of the opening period.

But veteran forward Larry Micky of the Sabres disagreed with the Canadiens' coach.

"There was no real turning point," Mickey said. "We just didn't keep on checking them. They played 10 minutes of hockey and got five goals. With the fire power they've got, they can get away with that. We have to play a full 60 minutes."

"We are going to have to do a better job of covering the points than we did tonight. On their first two goals, we left the point men open and they got good shots away. If you let a guy like Savard free-wheel with the puck, he'll kill you because he's so big and strong."

The teams have an off-day for travel today, although both will practise before resuming the series at the War Memorial Auditorium in Buffalo Saturday night.

The game will be televised over the full CBC network starting at 5 p.m. Sunday's game will also be on CBC, starting at 4:05 p.m.

ANGRY defenceman Dennis O'Brien of Minnesota North Stars grabs camera from photographer and threatens to swing stick at officials in penalty box during first period of playoff game in Philadelphia. O'Brien had been penalized for fighting and his temper wasn't improved by having misconduct sentence added. Flyers downed North Stars 4-1 to even series at one-game each.

Flyers Happy to Miss Mark

By The Canadian Press

Philadelphia Flyers gleefully saw one of their players tie a National Hockey League playoff record Thursday night, and they weren't sad at all about losing their chance to set a team mark.

The Flyers, who had lost to Minnesota North Stars the night before to tie the NHL record for consecutive playoff losses, bounced back to scuttle the Stars 4-1 in Philadelphia to tie their best-of-seven quarter-final 1-1.

In the other West Division playdown, Chicago Black Hawks made it two in a row at home, edging St. Louis Blues 1-0.

Both series resume Saturday, switching venues to St. Louis and Minneapolis.

Defenceman Barry Ashbee tied an NHL playoff record by assisting on all three of the Flyers' second-period goals, by Bill Elliott, Bill Barber and Terry Crisp, as Philadelphia took a 4-0 edge into the final frame and held on to take their first playoff victory.

Penalty Triggers Stick Fracas

The slashing penalty to Roberto triggered some of the game's best action. The whistle had no sooner blown than the Blues protested the stick being used by Jim Pappin of the Hawks.

It proved to be broken. Pappin drew two minutes, and some disgruntled Chicago fans stormed the penalty box.

It took five minutes to restore order, which gave the Black Hawks time to lodge a stick protest of their own. Roberto drew an additional two minutes for using an illegal curvature.

FAVELL HOT — In Philadelphia, the Flyers outshot Minnesota 16-7 in their profitable second period, but were even on shots in the first and outshot 10-9 in the third as Favell frustrated the North Stars time and again. At one time in the second period he faced power plays of one and then two-man advantages.

since the sixth game of a 1969 series against St. Louis. Their 10 consecutive playoff losses, including the 2-0 opener Wednesday, tied a record held by New York Rangers.

Don Saleski, of the Flyers opened the scoring with the only goal of the first period and Dean Prentice of the North Stars closed it with the only tally of the third, spoiling Doug Favell's shutout at 4:14.

The only goal at Chicago came from Lou Angotti at 14:06 of the first period. Defenceman Pat Stapleton had taken a pass from Chico Maki at the point and loosed a slap shot which Angotti deflected past Blues goalie Jacques Caron.

Goaltender Tony Esposito got much of the credit for the Chicago victory as the Blues smarting from a 7-1 pasting the night before, outthrust the Hawks most of the game. They held a 20-14 shooting edge in the first two periods until the Hawks took advantage of Phil Roberto's double penalty to outshoot St. Louis 12-9 in the third.

Minnesota Goalie Giles Gilbert had trouble with the long ones. In the first period he deflected Simon Nole's blue-line shot onto the stick of Saleski, who scored. In the second period, Elliott scored from 55 feet and Barber from 25. Crisp's goal came from just outside the crease on a pass from Saleski.

Prentice fired his goal for the North Stars from 35 feet out on the left side. The Flyers' offence got some of its spark from centre Bobby Clarke, whose right eye was scratched by a shattered contact lens when he was hit by a puck Wednesday night.

He had a pair of soft contact lenses made up in a rush job Thursday to eliminate the danger of a similar injury, and played with a patch over his injured eye.

Clarke, who led the division with 104 points in the regular season, said he could see well enough to play and felt he contributed to the victory.

CHILLIWACK LEADING

CHILLIWACK — Ken Widmeyer continued his hot playoff scoring pace Thursday by counting three goals to power Chilliwack Bruins to an 8-3 victory over Penticton Broncos and a surprising 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven B.C. Junior Hockey League final. The fourth game will be played here tonight.

Brian Schmyr scored two goals for Bruins, who out-shot Penticton 40-31.

third period and after the game both coaches deplored the roughness.

Vladimir Kostka of Czechoslovakia said: "In the second period the referees lost control of the game and that became quite obvious in the third period. Four of our players received serious facial injuries and in the final period the play had the character of a professional game."

Soviet coach Vsevolod Bobrov said several Soviet players also were injured. He characterized the game as one in which "it was a struggle for each centimetre of ice and each puck. That's why the element of skill was downgraded."

Sweden got a goal from Mats Ahlberg with only 85 seconds left for the win against the Finns.

Finland led by 1-0 through

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia and Sweden remained undefeated in world championship hockey Thursday as both posted narrow victories.

The Russians edged defending champion Czechoslovakia, 3-2, while Sweden beat Finland by the same score. Russia and Sweden now have 1-0 records while the Czechs have lost twice.

Vladimir Volebikov, Aleksandr Bodunov and Valery Kharlamov scored for the Russians while Vachib Nedomanski and Jan Kocha replied for the Czechs.

Some rambling notes along the trail:

Items brought up Wednesday night at the monthly meeting of the Amalgamated Conservation Society . . . It appears a public hearing is inevitable over plans to erect a shopping centre in the vicinity of Goldstream Park . . . Watch for it and be prepared to block any such move . . . At least until the area is serviced by sewers . . . AGS has sent a letter to the capital regional district urging better disposal methods for mine tailings at Jordan River . . . A loosely-knit organization has sprung up in the Sooke area to carry out conservation projects . . . Most members of the group were involved with the ACS transfer of adult coho above Sooke River falls this past fall and close tie-ins are expected between the two groups . . . ACS will be holding a raffle shortly, although de-biologists to carry out further studies of the big brui . . . Seasons for both black and grizzly bears had been scheduled from April 1 to June 15 . . . The season on grizzlies now closes May 31 while the season on black bears remains the same.

A student conservation and outdoor recreation education course (hunter-training) will be held for eight weeks beginning April 17 at Royal Oak Junior High School . . . Sessions will be once a week, starting at 7 p.m., and will enable students to obtain provincial firearms or hunting licence . . . Registrations may be submitted on the first night or by telephoning F. Baxter at 656-1111.

A tip to local groups . . . Canadians who need financial support for projects concerned with the preservation of the environment are invited to write the White Owl Conservation Award Committee in Montreal . . . Word out of the recent Saltwater Advisory Board meeting in Vancouver advises that a salmon hatchery on the south end of Vancouver Island is far down the list of federal fisheries service priorities . . . Chalk up even more points in favor of developing natural spawning capacities to the utmost . . . It is the myriad small creeks which support the bulk of salmon . . . Case-Building McDonald Leads Tigers Past Cents

CALGARY — Lanny McDonald of Medicine Hat Tigers continues to mount a strong case for "going early" in next summer's amateur hockey draft.

The big right-winger fired three goals as the Tigers trimmed the hometown Centennials, 6-3, in Western Canada Hockey League playoff action.

The victory gave the Tigers the best-of-seven quarter-final series by a 4-2 count and moved Medicine Hat into the Western Division final against the Edmonton Oil Kings.

McDonald opened the scoring after only 55 seconds, scored a shorthanded goal 45 seconds later and added a power-play marker midway through the first period to give Tigers a 4-0 lead.

Ken Gassoff, Tom Lysiak and Ed Johnstone were the other Tiger marksmen.

Mike Rogers, with two goals, and Jerry Holland scored for Centennials, who were playing before one of their largest crowds of the season, 6494 fans.

There were 29 penalties assessed, 18 to the Tigers.

The game was delayed in the first minute of the second period when a brawl erupted involving all players on the ice.

Jim McCrimmon of Medicine Hat and Calgary's Ross Smith drew game misconducts after the fray.

The Tiger-Oil Kings series starts next week in Edmonton while the Eastern Division final, between Saskatoon Blades and Flin Flon Bombers, starts tonight in Saskatoon.

Nixon Passes the Ball

By The Associated Press President Nixon won't throw out the first ball, but with the major league baseball season getting into full swing today Leo Durocher celebrated by throwing out the first pitch.

The president will be on hand at Anaheim Stadium, near the Western White House, when California Angels entertain Kansas City Royals, but instead of throwing the ball he'll hand it to Air Force Maj. David Luna, a former POW, for the traditional toss.

Meanwhile, Durocher fired Jim Owens, Houston Astros' pitching coach since 1967. Hub Kittle, a Houston coach since 1971, will handle the pitchers.

The season actually got under way Thursday with the traditional early opener in Cincinnati, where San Francisco Giants defeated defending National League champion Reds 4-1 behind the seven-hit pitching of Juan Marichal.

Chris Speier's two-run single in the seventh inning capped a tie-breaking three-run uprising.

Today's American League schedule also finds New York Yankees at Boston Red Sox and Milwaukee Brewers at Baltimore Orioles in afternoon action and Chicago White Sox at Texas Rangers and Minnesota Twins at Oakland Athletics under the lights.

In National League day games, St. Louis Cardinals are at Pittsburgh Pirates, Philadelphia Phillies at New York Mets and Montreal Expos at Chicago Cubs. After dark, it's Houston at Atlanta Braves and Los Angeles Dodgers at San Diego Padres.

That will leave the AL's Detroit Tigers at Cleveland Indians Saturday in the final opener. The Indians closed out the exhibition schedule Thursday by no-hitting Texas Rangers 4-0 behind the pitching of Steve Dunning, Mike Kilkenny, Ray Lamb and Milt Wilcox.

Whitely Lockman, starting his first full season as Cub manager, will send Ferguson Jenkins, bidding for his seventh straight 20-victory season, against Montreal's Mike Torrez, who was 16-12 last season.

Montreal had been rated about the same as last season when the Expos finished next-to-last in the East Division, 26½ games behind the Pirates. However, the Expos wound up the spring exhibition season with a 14-8 record, second-best in the league.

The most emotional opener will be in Pittsburgh, where the Pirates will open without the late Roberto Clemente in right field but with Willie Stargell surprisingly back in left.

Catcher Manny Sanguillen, a close pal of Clemente's, will be in right field for the Pirates with Clemente's widow, mother and children in the stands.

Stargell, whose bad knees were expected to force him to play first base, has been cavorting friskily this spring.

UVic Rugby Clubs Set Earlier Start

Undeclared University of Victoria Norsemen can clinch the Pacific Northwest Intercollegiate Rugby Conference second division title Saturday by defeating University of Oregon at Centennial Stadium.

UVic Vikings, whose only Conference loss has been to the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds, can nail down second place in the first division by downing Oregon. Both games will start earlier than usual — the Norsemens' game is at 11:30 a.m.

Grid Tourney Set Sunday

Eight-player football among 12 to 15-year-old boys will be on tap Sunday as a six-team, round-robin tournament launches the Vancouver Island Junior Bantam Football League season.

ON THE BANDWAGON

BUFFALO (AP) — Buffalo Bills, moving into a new 80,000 stadium this year, anticipate record home crowds with season-ticket sales for the 1973 National Football League campaign already over 46,200.

THE COMPETITION

The competition for the Walt Pumphrey Trophy gets under way at 11 a.m. in Braefoot Park.

Teams taking part are Saanich Hornets, Saanich Chargers, Saanich Waves, Oak Bay Crusaders, Oak Bay Marauders and Juan de Fuca Tigers.

Cowan's Swinging Hint Helps Aaron Grab Lead

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Tommy Aaron, a slump-ridden perennial runner-up, took a one-stroke lead over Jack Nicklaus and a former Japanese baseball pitcher into today's second round of the Masters.

Aaron, who has won only one official title while finishing second at least a dozen times, shot a four-under-par 68 in the first round Thursday, helped by three 15-foot putts.

Nicklaus, the 5-2 favorite seeking his fifth Masters crown, came in close pursuit with a rallying 69 that included near-misses for eagles on the long 13th and 15th holes.

Then, almost at the end of the day, Masahiro Ozaki, a tall, 190-pound Japanese with a broad smile, came charging in with a 69 to tie Big Jack for second place.

Ozaki said through an interpreter he has "good spirit now" following his 69. He started at a disadvantage, driving his first ball into a trash bag.

"It was a great help for my second shot," he grinned, meaning he got a free drop.

Aaron, Nicklaus and Ozaki were the only players under 70 over the wind-whipped, 6,930-yard Augusta National course, and only four others managed to crack the par 72.

They were Bob Dickson and J. C. Snead, with 70s; Grier Jones and the veteran Phil Rodgers, tied at 71.

Amateur Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., in a tie for 20th place at 74, got some of the credit for Aaron's leading score. The tall, bespectacled Georgian said he was playing badly until Cowan advised him just before he teed off to slow down his backswing.

The 1969 Canadian Open winner took the tip, gained confidence with birdies on the first two holes, and "my swing started to feel good all of a sudden."

HORSES DIE IN FIRE

VANCOUVER (CP) — At least 12 race horses perished Thursday night when fire swept through a barn at Lansdowne Park in the Vancouver suburb of Richmond.

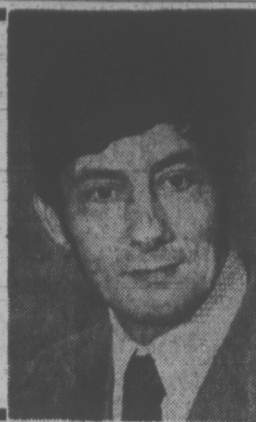

Robert Bruce, 42, gatekeeper at the park, was taken to hospital with undetermined injuries after he was trampled by thoroughbreds fleeing the fire.

The barn, which contained about 35 horses, was reduced to a smouldering ruin within 30 minutes. Firemen said a strong wind kept the flames from spreading to four other barns, although horses stabled in them were turned free as a precaution.

Realistic, Says Homer, Of Pride-Jarring Odds

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Trevor Homer is not as eager to win the Masters golf tournament as he is to embarrass Ladbroke's, the largest betting house in Britain.

"Those bloody fools," the 29-year-old amateur from Birmingham, England, said when he learned that he had been made a 5000-to-1 outsider in golf's big spectacle. But he had a smile.

"Sure, it's a bit jarring to my ego, but I have to concede that it's realistic. When Ladbroke's puts that kind of odds on a man — or a horse — you know there's not a Chinaman's chance."

The odds are the longest ever recorded in a golf tournament.

"I had to put a bob or two on myself," the good-looking, 6-foot-3 British Amateur champion said. "If the same odds were quoted on Mike Bonallack (five times British Amateur winner) I wouldn't bet a shilling."

"But me, I have to look at their hand."

Homer is not the only person intrigued by the outlandish odds. When the rundown was posted — making Jack Nicklaus 5-2, Lee Trevino 6-1, Bill Casper 16-1 and Arnold Palmer 25-1; with nobody except Trevor worse than 50-1, Ladbroke's was flooded with Homer money.

"Members of Homer's home club at Walsall, a small industrial town, chipped in with a pretty good chunk," said Dai Davis of the Birmingham Post in England, who also invested a small wager. "Should Homer win, the bookie would stand to lose a bundle."

It was reported that Ladbroke's could lose $250,000 if the young Briton pulls an upset.

Ladbroke's is laying 500-1 that Homer doesn't make the 36-hole cut, 50-1 that he doesn't finish in the top 24.

Homer considers the latter the better bet.

"I've put a pound on that," he explained. Homer didn't start playing golf until he was 17. He was a 500-1 shot when he won the British Amateur last year.

If they were ever worried, the bookies could breathe easier Thursday night. Homer took an eight on the 15th hole and finished the opening round with 81.

Everything that's happened in outboards in the last ten years, has happened right here.

LOOP-CHARGED CYLINDERS

Evinrude's loop-charged cylinder design develops more horsepower from less fuel. This system allows the engine to run cooler at higher rpm's, generating even more power.

PRESSURE-BACKED PISTON RINGS

Increases engine life and improves fuel economy. The higher the combustion power, the tighter the piston ring seals the combustion chamber. When the pressure reduces, the ring relaxes, minimizing friction.

NEW FIXED IDLE JETS FOR SMOOTHER IDLING AND TROLLING

NEW SUPER-STRONG TRANSDOM BRACKET WITH PRE-SET TILT LOCK

PULSE-TUNED EXHAUST

Gives you more power on less fuel without additional engine size. Evinrude's sophisticated double-tuned exhaust system uses the exhaust pressure pulse of one cylinder to tune the other. The fuel-air mixture is cleaner, more powerful.

FIREPOWER ELECTRONIC CD IGNITION

Quickest, surest starting there is. Delivers up to 40,000 volts to the spark plug — 250 times faster at the firing gap. Longer plug life. No points to adjust. Smoother idling for trolling and running.

POLLUTION CONTROL ENGINEERING

We're working to keep our waters clean. So every '73 Evinrude is drainless. All fuel is recycled into additional power.

COMPUTER-SELECTED LOWER UNIT

Out of millions of alternatives, Evinrude's engineers, with the help of a computer — selected the most efficient combination of underwater shape, gear ratio and propeller design power-matched for each outboard in the line.

Every major advance made in outboard motor engineering in the last ten years has been pioneered by Evinrude. And we've packed them all into our 1973 Evinrude loop-charged 65 and 50 hp models. The result is compact outboards for unbeatable performance in their class, and matchless reliability for you.

Yes, if you are steadily employed and not over stretching the family budget, it is possible to borrow up to 95% of the price of your home. With a new plan we call High Ratio Conventional Mortgages. Here are examples of how it works:

Amount available to you	$28,500	$38,000	$45,500

You get all the money from us. You don't have to deal with any second lender. And, our rates are comparable to (and in some cases even lower than) those of other recognized mortgage lenders.

At the Bank of Montreal, we want to see you get the home you want with as little fuss and cash outlay as possible. So come on in and let's talk High Ratio Mortgages.

Canadian Boats Turn It On

Canadian boats and skippers tipped the scales in Seattle Yacht Club's annual Great Equalizer race on the weekend, creaming their competition in five out of six of the International Offshore Rule divisions.

Biggest star of them all was John Newton's C and C 39 Pachena of the West Vancouver Yacht Club. She won division 2 and the most coveted honor of them all — first over-all. Just shows what a good Canadian-designed and built boat and a Canadian crew can do when the chips are down!

Miles Dighton's Ranger 33 Obsession, which started her racing career with the Canoe Bay Sailing Club, earned her own case of stardom, winning division IV and coming second over-all in the 130-mile testing.

Division 1 was won by R. I. Nelson's Spencer 53 Wakne of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club and division III by John Dunfield's Erickson 41 Drummer Boy of the same club.

division VI. The only American winner in IOR competition was Tom Geisness' Ranger 29 Desiderata that finished top boat in division V.

For the Canadian boats and crews that came home triumphant the Great Equalizer has a very special meaning this week!

Two local Cal29s — Greg Oliver's Departure and Guy Screech's Morgan — placed sixth and 13th in their division while Archie Campbell's Thunderbird Ligero earned a seventh in hers.

Bad luck dogged Louis Lindholm's Hughes 38 Moonraker. She got stuck on a sand bar and ended up 11th in her division.

The Canoe Bay Sailing Club has another six-miler slated in waters off Sidney this weekend. Start time is 10 a.m. off the government wharf.

Jack Smith's Island Challenger won last Saturday's race in which 35 boats competed. She was followed by Colm Hogan's Malda, Al Brownlee's Alana, Walter Stenner's Encore, Ole Backhouse's Shalom, Jim Scott's Valando, Gordie Inglis' Watermelon, Ken Carter's Panic, Jack Lucas' Celamity and Mike Greenfield's Vega 27.

The Turkey Head Sailing Association plans to hold two races in waters off Oak Bay Marina Sunday, the first starting at 10 a.m. and the second getting under way at 1:30 p.m.

Coastal Pilots Have Pact

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's 80 coastal marine pilots have reached a tentative agreement in their contract dispute with the Pacific Pilotage Authority.

Details of the tentative settlement, were unavailable Thursday.

A strike by the marine pilots, who withdrew their services for four days in February, would have hampered shipping into West Coast ports.

Last month Captain Alex MacKinnon, president of the B.C. Coast Pilots Ltd., said the main issue in the dispute was a pilotage act to become effective next Feb. 1.

He said the act contains the stiffest medical requirements in Canada and said B.C. pilots were demanding that any veteran who cannot meet the requirements be given a pension.

The pilots, who now average $30,000 a year, sought a one-year contract starting Feb. 1. The authority offered them a 7.5 per cent increase and they asked for 13.5 per cent.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Damage suits totalling $600,000 were launched in the federal Court of Canada Thursday against the freighter Star Cariboo, involved in a waterfront mishap March 30.

The suits were filed after the Norwegian cargo ship struck a North Vancouver dock, damaging the dock, a barge and loading facilities.

Dillingham Corporation Canada Ltd., owners of the dock, seeks general damages for repairs to the dock as well as $250,000 for loss of profit. Seaboard Shipping Company Ltd. seeks $200,000 for damage to a scow, ramp and loading facilities plus $150,000 for business interruption.

No one was injured in the accident.

Log Drive Hit

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP) — A fisheries biologist says he deplores a record-log drive on the Cariboo and Quenel rivers planned for May by Weldwood of Canada Ltd.

Biologist Jack Leggett of the fish and wildlife branch here, said: "we're more concerned this year than ever before because water levels are low and it will be a record number of logs."

He said both rivers have

Freighter Faces $600,000 in Suits

salmon spawning beds and water level is low because of a small snow pack.

Inquest Monday

SMITHERS (CP) — An inquest will open Monday into the Feb. 3 death of Donald Wilfred Austin, an Indian of the Hagwilgate band near Hazelton.

Police said that Austin was arrested by Smithers RCMP Jan. 9. Austin spent the night in jail and was taken to hospital the following morning when he complained of pains in his back. He died about three weeks later at his sister's house the day after he left the hospital.

Budget Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — Directors of the Greater Vancouver Regional district have approved a $10.1 million budget for 1973, about $1.9 million higher than last year's. The largest single item is $6 million for debt charges, most of which is for money borrowed on behalf of municipalities and repayable by them.

Arsonist Sought

CRESTON (CP) — RCMP are looking for an arsonist following the destruction of a home and damage to three barns by fire at Goat River Bottom, south of here. No one was injured in the fires, which police said were deliberate.

Break-Up Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — An official of the British Columbia Federation of Labor has called on the federal government to lower food prices by breaking up large nation-wide supermarket chains.

Clive Lytle, assistant secretary-treasurer of the federation, said Wednesday supermarket firms should only be involved in the actual retailing of food and not in the production and processing stages as they now are. UFAW secretary-treasurer Jack Nichol said high supermarket and food processor profits — not wages paid to employees — are responsible for rising food prices.

He said recent large catch of salmon had brought fishermen $2,040,000 but by the time it reached supermarket shelves it cost housewives $19 million.

'Humane' Policy Vowed In Hydro Purchases

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — British Columbia Hydro will adopt "a more humanistic and more humane policy" in dealing with the public in the future, Hydro chairman David Cass-Beggs said Thursday night.

"B.C. Hydro has an obligation to supply power to everyone," Cass-Beggs told a news conference.

"If we did not have that responsibility we would not have to expropriate property but because we do have that responsibility we sometimes have to expropriate land and we have" as a result gotten into trouble in the past.

Among the "people considerations" will be higher prices paid by B.C. Hydro for land, burial of more electric cable and a greater concern for the environment, he said.

"I'm not being critical of the way B.C. Hydro was run before," said Cass-Beggs.

"It is a general change that is taking place throughout society. Ten years ago we could build a reservoir and not bother to cut the trees and clear out behind it. All that has changed now. New measures must be taken to protect the environment and to be more sensitive toward human problems," he said.

Cass-Beggs said the cost of power will probably have to go up to pay for changes in B.C. Hydro philosophy because "in the past the first priority of any Hydro system was to provide low-cost power to the consumer. This policy does not allow a system to meet the more sophisticated needs of a society."

"Low-cost power no longer can be our only consideration."

Concorde Will Race Eclipse

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists of three countries are expected to get man's longest look yet at a solar eclipse June 30 when a French Concorde super-sonic transport "almost beats the moon's shadow in 7,800-mile race across Africa."

Seven American, French and British solar-researchers would be aboard the plane.

The African-centred eclipse will not be visible in North America.

The Concorde, travelling at about 1,260 miles per hour at an altitude of 55,000 feet, will remain in the shadow of the moon for about 80 minutes.

The longest look at the eclipsed sun that scientists have had from aircraft in the past was about 10 minutes.

VACCINATION PROOF NEEDED

OTTAWA (CP) — Travellers entering Canada from London will have to show a valid smallpox vaccination certificate, the health department announced Thursday.

The requirement, effective immediately, was necessitated by reports of three secondary smallpox cases in London.

Any person not having a valid certificate will be offered vaccination, a spokesman said. Persons refusing vaccination will be placed under surveillance or possibly in quarantine. The spokesman said the measure was temporary.

Health authorities in London issued an alert "to prevent any substantial outbreak" of the disease.

The health department declared the city a smallpox-infected area. Doctors all over the country were warned to be on the lookout for persons suffering smallpox symptoms.

Victoria travellers can get smallpox vaccination through their own doctor or by phoning the health board offices at 385-3351 for an appointment.

Ulster Killer Wins Reprieve

BELFAST — The British Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, William Whitelaw, today commuted the death sentence of a Protestant convicted of murdering a policeman.

Both Protestants and the Irish Republican Army had vowed to retaliate if Albert Browne was executed. The death sentence is mandatory in Northern Ireland for killing a policeman, but may be commuted.

Whitelaw commuted Browne's sentence to life imprisonment. He said two other separate sentences, one of 25 years for the attempted murder of another policeman and another of seven years for carrying illegal firearms, would stand.

Browne, 29, was convicted in February of murdering policeman Gordon Harron, 32, last October.

In Dublin, Joe Cahill, veteran Belfast leader of the outlawed IRA, was charged today with being an IRA member.

He and two other men, who also were charged with being members of the IRA, were ordered held in custody until May 14, when they will be tried.

They also faced charges connected with the interception of five tons of armaments seized from the Cyprus-registered coastal vessel Claudia on March 28. The Claudia was intercepted by Irish naval vessels off the Irish coast.

Jupiter Take-Off

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — The Pioneer 11 spacecraft raced on a near-perfect course today for Jupiter, with a chance it later might explore the ringed planet Saturn.

The 570-pound, $48-million payload rocketed away from Cape Kennedy Thursday night on a 726-million-mile interplanetary trail which its twin, Pioneer 10, started blazing 13 months ago.

Pioneer 10 is to fly within 87,000 miles of Jupiter next December.

Pioneer 11 a year later is to scout a different area of this largest planet in the solar system.

Alberta Cool To GAI Plan

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government would be "very, very hesitant" about starting a plan for a guaranteed annual income, Health Minister Neil Crawford said Thursday.

He said Alberta is not planning to follow the recent decision of British Columbia to raise the old-age pension supplement to $200 a month from about $170.

Because of additional benefits, such as free premiums for medical care insurance, "it would be most likely that the Alberta program is already the best in the country," he told the legislature.

Crawford said persons receiving old age pensions are the only group with a form of guaranteed income.

"I would be very, very hesitant and would hope that all governments would be very hesitant in branching into the area of guarantees of income beyond the special group of 65 and over."

The minister also said Alberta feels it would be premature for it to follow Manitoba, which last Friday announced it will conduct an experiment in guaranteed annual incomes. The federal government will pay 75 per cent of the cost and the provincial government 25 per cent.

Replying to Grant Notley, New Democratic Party leader in Alberta, Crawford said such an experiment would not be appropriate at present for Alberta. The province was preparing for a major federal-provincial meeting later this month in Ottawa.

Notley asked if the government had considered the advantages of the guaranteed annual income "in terms of actually encouraging the work ethic by subsidizing the working poor."

The minister said the way of encouraging the work ethic — if it was based on a guaranteed annual income — would call for a new concept.

"It seems to me one would have to have ingredients almost of a work commitment if the income were going to be guaranteed."

"But it seems to me that when you go into guaranteed annual incomes, you are in effect making the government the ultimate employer of that person. You would thereby have a right of obligation to direct his energies in a way that you don't have if the assistance is based only on need."

Exemption Restored

EDMONTON (CP) — A government bill introduced Thursday allows municipalities to tax pollution control equipment and authorizes two different mill rates so some properties will face lower taxes.

Another provision would make homes for the elderly totally exempt from property taxation.

The act would put homes for the elderly in their former position of being totally exempt from property tax. Amendments last year gave municipal councils the right to tax these homes, if they wished. An uproar developed when Edmonton proposed to go ahead with the idea.

18-Month Wait

REGINA (CP) — It will be at least 18 months before the Indian Act can be revised to provide long-lasting and beneficial results for Indians, David Ahenakew of Prince Albert, president of the Saskatchewan Federation of Indians, said Thursday.

There will not be enough time to have the entire act revised before the FSI meets National Indian Brotherhood officials in about six months, he said, so the FSI must concentrate on certain areas for eventual revision.

$2M for Parks

CALGARY (CP) — City council set aside $2 million in the 1973 budget Thursday to purchase land for city parks.

Calgary started a park fund of $500,000 in 1971 and 1972 but Ald. Tom Priddle pushed for the extra $2 million to facilitate purchase of 2,500 acres on Nose Hill.

Pledge Restated

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer has restated his government's intention to compensate residents of South Indian Lake who are adversely affected by Manitoba Hydro's northern power development plans.

Pay or Prepare

EDMONTON (CP) — Consumers must face the choice of having to pay high prices for convenience, packaged foods or cutting costs by using their own labor to prepare meals, a Uniform official said today.

Elmer Allen, an economist with the general farm organization that represents 26,000 of the 50,000 farmers in Alberta, said that if consumers agree that farmers should not be allowed to suffer lower prices for their products, the consumers should support the setting of a floor price for farm products at the farm gate.

Common Cold Cure Questionable Gain?

By JUDITH MARTIN
The Washington Post

British and American scientists have announced that they have developed a method of killing off colds.

Normally, I don't get too excited about this kind of statement. Scientists feel obliged to announce a cold cure every once in a while, just as the fashion industry feels it must come out with statements, every four months, that there is a "new, totally feminine look that will make women feel like women again."

Afterwards, everybody can go back to sneezing and wearing blue jeans, just as if nothing had happened.

But this cold cure sounds serious. For one thing, the treatment consists of injecting into the patient a substance, produced by all human cells, called "interferon." A great name like that has to go someplace.

And for another, it now costs "several thousand dollars a patient" to effect the cure. That doesn't sound like somebody's lab joke. That is real medicine as we know it.

So perhaps now is the time, in keeping with the new vogue of questioning the desirability of scientific advancement in an already rough world, to ask ourselves whether we really want to cure the common cold.

The cold has an honorable history in human society and performs many useful functions. Do you know a better excuse for staying in bed on a rainy day, drinking hot toddies and watching soap opera instead of going to work?

Think of all the other comforts of life that would be impossible without colds:

"You know we'd love to come to your experimental theatre production, but I've got this wretched cold and I think I'd better stay home and nurse it."

"No, don't kiss me, I've got a sore throat."

"I'll take the children, sure. You don't think there's any danger in the baby's being exposed to my cold, do you?"

Nothing else will quite serve the function. As my uncle strongly advised me, "Don't try saying you've come down with scarlet fever because people will keep calling back for details." With a cold, you're safe. Nobody wants to hear about your cold.

I won't say that colds haven't performed treachery on me now and then. There are colds that start on Friday and end on Monday morning, colds that decorate vacations and colds that give you red noses on occasions on which you had planned to be a smashing star.

But on the whole, they perform a useful function, increasing daily with the lessening of opportunities to turn one's back on the world and lead a pampered life. For the sake of social harmony, personal indulgence and the chicken soup industry, let's not throw them out too hastily.

Victoria Times THIRD SECTION family

Alternates Found In Odd-Food List

NEW YORK (UPI) — In Argentina, they say the three favorite dishes are steak, steak and steak.

But in other parts of the world, the menu may list rat, lizard, whole snake, bear, camel, dog, cricket, iguana, flying fox, locust and a variety of worms.

Menus also list more familiar exotic foods — snail, octopus, frog and eel — that many North Americans happily eat for prices that rival the cost of a choice steak.

As the beef boycott rolls on, housewives might consider something different.

Like camel steaks. Arabs in Israel pay about $2.50 for one and swear that if it is cooked just right, it tastes like beef-steak.

Or bear steaks. They cost as much as $8 in Moscow restaurants, about the same as a beefsteak dinner.

Or whale steaks. Japanese fanciers barbecue it and say they sometimes cannot tell it from round steak.

The soup course in Singapore is often snake, seasoned with lemon tree leaves, chrysanthemum petals and something that tastes like cheese. It can cost as much as $2 a serving.

Then there is the acquired Venezuelan taste for chiguire, the world's biggest rodent, and lapa, another large rat. Chiguire costs as much as $2 a pound in Caracas, but because of its popularity it faces extermination. The lapa costs about $2 a pound and is so popular that it is hard to find in Caracas.

In the Arab world, grilled, fried and stewed porcupine is popular and so is a dish called "stinking fish," which is just that. Egyptians preserve it in salt until it stinks, then eat it with lemon and onions.

Cardin Models Caught in Squeeze

PARIS (Reuter) — Pierre Cardin showed pants with wide legs but with such tight behinds that it seemed impossible for the mannequins to sit down without splitting the seams all around the hipline.

Cardin's couture and ready-to-wear clothes for fall and winter were presented in a combined showing this week.

His typical avant-garde style is based on the ribbed knit body suits as a basic mode of dress under sleeveless coats, turtlenecks and tunics, and a brand new blouson silhouette with straight back.

Cardin employs layered effects from morning to mid-night with long-sleeved ribbed knit sweaters and tights in solid black or flecked tweed yarns under a variety of coat silhouettes. These range from the short swing-back toppers, belted tunics with deep cuffs around the sleeveless armholes and neckline, to new redingotes — long outer coats — with snugly fitted tops and enormously full circular-cut skirts.

His newest trousers are pleated at the front, with two deep inverted pleats released from mid-thigh level, teamed to matching blouson jackets of the curtain-draped tops which are a leitmotif of the winter collection.

There are lots of skirts and dresses, with hem lengths ranging from minis in tweed knits worn with matching body stockings to pencil-slim midcalf skirts teamed with shiny vinyl boots.

Separates star again in low-riding hip skirts with co-ordinated tuck-in turtleneck sweaters and wide-contoured belts, jumper dresses with cuffed armholes, and formal pyjamas in black crepe teamed with metallized chiffon blouson tops.

Some of the typical Cardin eccentricities step on stage after dark. They include a bevy of pyjama suits made entirely of long swags of overlapping fringe that sway in motion like a hula skirt, and a series of Japanese lantern mindresses with the hem of the skirt built over a series of wired loops so that the skirts bounce up and down.

Colors concentrate on the incoming range of muted shades, although Cardin continues to show a few bright neon-toned coats over black body suits.

There are many off-toned combinations such as two or three shades of brown, plum and grape mixed in the same ensemble, deep-currant reds, and a half-and-half suit with one leg in red and the other in black, reversing the color combination for the sleeves.

Party hats, carry through the sporty mood with knit caps trimmed with a giant pom-pom or fringed tassels and scarf turbans bandaged round the head as tight as a bathing cap. Other millinery trends feature stove-pipe fedoras with a cluster of mink tails clipped on the brim at the side front, often shown with fox skin boas wrapped high around the throat.

Meanwhile, Yves Saint Laurent's girl for next winter is muffled up to the eyebrows with "city parkas" and capes. Press and buyers covering this week's ready-to-wear collections cheered Yves' show that continued his classic sportswear look.

Saint Laurent's hip-length parka of beige poplin with a drawstring waist and quilted square hood edged with fur appeared destined for millions of copies around the world.

The designer also showed a fox fur-trimmed evening parka of black satin with black trousers and a see-through black chiffon blouse.

TEACHERS TO STAR ON TV PROGRAM

The elementary curriculum in Victoria schools will be the topic of a new television program on CHEK-TV scheduled to begin today at 8:30 p.m.

The half-hour weekly show will be put on by Greater Victoria school board and the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association and will feature outstanding local teachers.

The teachers will discuss how they teach, what they teach and how parents can help their children in school. Tapes and slides will show how their classrooms function.

Community Relations officer Bill Stavdal says the purpose of the eight-week program is to let parents know what's happening in the fast changing elementary curriculum and expose them to a few of the outstanding teachers in the district.

The first show will feature Lake Hill elementary students and teachers in their language arts program.

Organ Meat Often Overlooked In Search for Thrifty Fare

Meat counters in Victoria usually display a great variety of cuts, but some of the most nutritious and economical kind such as heart, liver, kidney and tongue are often overlooked. If you haven't bought any of these lately, why not put them on your next shopping list?

When buying the mild-flavored heart, you will be able to select from four types: beef, pork, lamb or veal. These are easily identified by their color but they are best recognized by their size.

Beef heart varies in color from a deep reddish-brown to a pale pinkish brown. Like all hearts, it is triangular in shape with a border of firm, creamy fat at the broadest part. The whole heart weighs between three and four pounds. Lamb heart is also dark reddish brown but weighs only three to five ounces. Veal heart is a light pinkish gray, similar in shape and appearance to beef heart but much smaller — 12 to 16 ounces. Pork heart is a slightly brighter red color than beef heart and weighs seven to nine ounces.

Hearts should be plump and well rounded in appearance with a smooth, shiny finish. When selecting organ meats of any kind, remember that they are highly perishable and should be used within a day or two of purchase.

Heart, a firm-textured and muscular meat, requires long slow cooking at a low temperature to make it tender. For best results, bake, braise or pressure-cook a seasoned stuffed heart.

These organ meats are high in protein and contain many precious minerals. Heart has calcium, phosphorus, iron plus vitamins A and B. Beef heart in Victoria markets costs about 95c per pound. It has been below 90c — but has also been hiked recently.

Beef heart when properly cooked, as below, is excellent for sandwiches when sliced thin.

SAVORY BEEF HEART
One-half beef heart (approx. 2 1/4 lbs)
1 bay leaf
2 small onions sliced water (see below)
2 tbsp. butter
2 tbsp. flour
1/2 tsp. salt
1 beef bouillon cube OR 1 teaspoon beef bouillon cordial
1 tsp. prepared mustard
Wash and trim all fat and attachments from heart with very sharp knife. Put into a kettle, add cold water to barely cover along with the bay leaf and onions. Bring to boil then simmer for four hours turning once.

Lift from broth and with razor sharp knife cut into one quarter-inch thick slices overlapping on ovenproof platter.

Now make the gravy. Remove bay leaf from broth. Leave the onions in it. Measure sure. Make your broth up to 2 cups by adding hot water.

Melt the butter, blend in the flour, salt, beef bouillon cube or cordial and prepared mustard. Now stir in the two cups broth until thick. Pour boiling hot over the heart slices.

Serve with mashed potatoes and green beans.

This is a rich and filling dinner and a great satisfaction to a good and thrifty cook.

Opportunity Knocks Becoming Louder Surveys Relate Cancer to Sex

While we are still a long way from seeing fundamental changes in attitudes of both men and women that would lead to equal opportunities for women, there have been signs in this year of 1973, pointing toward such a goal.

Most encouraging is the increased number of women appointed to policymaking positions at all government levels.

There is also a decided increase (although the percentage is still far too small) of women elected to provincial legislatures in Canada.

We have six women in the British Columbia legislature. There are two in Alberta, three in Ontario, also one each in Manitoba, Quebec, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

This year, for a first time, we have seen a woman appointed Speaker of the Senate — Muriel McQueen Fergusson.

son. And there is unanimous agreement in Ottawa that Senator Fergusson's elevation to the Speaker's chair was in recognition of her unique ability and the contributions she has made to public life.

In Victoria, Kathleen Ruff, an organizer and first president of the Status of Women Action Group here, has been appointed chairman of British Columbia's Human Rights Commission.

A position that gives her increased opportunity to work for the fundamental principle of equality of the sexes as human beings and as citizens.

It's interesting to note in the March newsletter, Interaction, put out by the office of Equal Opportunities for Women in Ottawa, that already this year, 10 women in the federal civil service have received top-level appointments.

These include postings in external affairs, positions in the public service commission, health and welfare and industry, trade and commerce.

There is also a breakthrough for two women in the executive category. One to become director of the social action branch, secretary of state department, and the other principal nursing officer reporting to the deputy minister of health.

Two among the 10 women receiving new appointments are from Victoria — Monica Fraser and Anne Charles.

Miss Fraser recently went to the public service commission as newly appointed director of a socio-economic program responsible for staffing such varied areas as law, economics, library science, social sciences, psychology, sociology, social work and teaching.

Prior to her appointment, this clever young woman (a 1963 graduate of University of Victoria) was assistant director of the social action branch in the secretary of state department.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Ross Fraser live here. A brother Michael is with an European architects firm in Singapore. Another brother Dick is a professor at Harvard University.

Anne Charles, daughter of Admiral and Miss John Charles, has been named an assistant trade commissioner with the department of trade and industry. She leaves for Sydney, Australia, at the end of June.

Right now, with 15 young people in the same category, she is immersed in a lengthy orientation course giving a detailed look at Canada coast-to-coast and province by province.

The program includes courses in French, several days in various federal and provincial government departments and meetings with industrial and financial experts.

All to background the group (of whom only three are women) for the job of "selling" Canadian products and services abroad.

This Canada-wide training course has already taken Anne from Newfoundland to Montreal. Currently she is in Ontario.

Middle of May she begins the final stage of training at Winnipeg and then Vancouver.

She'll be back in Ottawa in early June before travelling out to Australia.

Ruff

Admiral Charles was commandant of Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, a few years back. He is now in Ottawa and the family is living there.

Anne received her Bachelor of Arts degree, majoring in English and her Master's in political science at University of Toronto.

Before her new appointment she was on staff of Atkinson College, York University. She entered public service with the trade commission department last June.

LONDON (CP) — Two new surveys linking sex and cancer have led British doctors to urge that young women who have sex with more than three partners a year should have medical checks for early symptoms of cervical cancer.

A seven-year study among 21,000 girls and women in Bradford, Yorkshire, shows that those who were promiscuous had four times the incidence of cervical cancer than other females.

Another survey of 800 women, due for publication soon, shows an increase of between four and 10 times the risk among girls who said they started sexual activity in their teens or were promiscuous.

Neither study offers any firm scientific explanation of why females who start sex activity unusually early or are promiscuous should be more prone to the disease.

But the findings support the earlier thesis of Prof. Sir John Stalworthy of Oxford University that such girls run a much higher cancer risk.

In the context of today's new morality, many doctors engaged in cancer research say they feel that the national department of health should extend cervical tests to all women.

At present the Family Planning Association clinics and a limited number of other centres are the only places where women can have a cervical smear test.

National Health doctors refuse to do the test in their offices and refer patients to such centres — where the women often have to wait months for tests, unless the doctor suspects trouble and personally recommends an immediate test.

The Bradford survey, released this week, was done among women attending the Venereal Disease Clinic and women going for routine checks at the Well-Woman Clinic.

The cancer rate among those at the VD clinic — generally younger and more promiscuous — was 31.7 per 1,000 women compared with 7.3 at the Well-Woman clinic, attended mainly by married women and those not considered promiscuous.

UN Survey Documents Sudan Marriage Rites

By DON DALLAS

KHARTOUM (Reuters) — The high cost of marriage is forcing young Sudanese to put off their weddings for years, says a survey of marriage customs published here.

The problem of expense affects both the largely Moslem north and southern Sudan, which is mostly pagan but with strong Christian influence.

The 15,000-word survey was the work of a two-month journalism training course sponsored by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization UNESCO.

The students researched marriage customs as a major exercise and many wrote out of their own personal experience. A number of those who contributed were officials of the ministry of information and culture.

The question of the dowry dominates marriages both in northern and southern Sudan.

In the north, the dowry is usually paid in cash while in the south it is normally in cattle.

In some parts of the country, a rate is fixed for the dowry to be paid in the case of a young girl, a widow or a divorcee.

DICTATED BY DEMAND

But in general, the payment is determined by the extent of competition from the young men, with the rate increasing according to the beauty of the bride.

The dowry can be as little as $150 in some areas but in many parts of northern Sudan it can be $420 and upwards.

In southern Sudan, the dowry rate is often 100 cattle and may even be 150.

The rate is considerably lower with the Azande tribe of the south and for this reason Azande girls are said to be in considerable demand. But generally, southern men marry within their own tribes.

The major tribes of the south are cattle-owning. Their whole lives revolve around cattle which become a kind of currency.

A southern journalist on the training course reported: "By the time a man has acquired enough cattle to marry, he is on the verge of getting old."

He added that village elders, worried by this trend, are reviewing the situation.

Where the bride-price is paid in cash relatives and friends are expected to contribute and provide the couple with a start toward their household equipment.

In the Moslem north, the dowry is only the start of the expense. The bridegroom is expected to supply presents for his wife, including fine clothes and jewelry, and the marriage celebration, sometimes lasting up to a week, with perhaps several hundred guests, adds to the bill.

It was estimated that for a middle-class northern family, where the bridegroom has a good standard of education and reasonable earning prospects, a marriage might cost $4,700. Several cases of marriages costing about $9,375 were reported.

Several contributors said they would prefer to get married abroad cheaply. Some said they would defy all existing customs and find a bride who was prepared to dispense with the whole procedure. If they could not do this, they vowed to stay single.

But the consensus was that most Sudanese would conform with customs and ultimately pay the price.

Child betrothal is still found in several parts of the Sudan.

A child may be betrothed at the age of five or even when still in its mother's womb. But there is no general rule compelling the children to marry when they come of age.

Under the customs of the Azande tribe, when a baby girl is born, a father can betroth his son to her by putting a cassava leaf on the door of her father's hut. In some cases, those who refuse to honor the child betrothal may face the threat of banishment.

Among the Kababish and other camel-owning tribes, the bride is taken to her future husband's house on a camel, sitting inside an elaborately decorated shirbia, a type of canopy. The dowry is also usually paid in camels.

Supporting a Body

DEAR ABBY: In response to "former Reader" and all others who insist that what they do with their bodies is "their own business": Yes, it's your business, provided no one else ever has to pay financially, emotionally or otherwise for your rashness. So long as your parents are footing your bills, your body is "their business," foul it up and they must pay to straighten it — and YOU — out.

Even after you sever parental apron strings, if you foul up your body with alcohol or drugs, or some other damned foolishness, and someone else (the public, your spouse or your children) has to pay in money, hardship, or mental anguish, your body is not entirely your own business.

I am fed up with paying taxes to support wives and children of alcoholics and drug addicts, and I'm tired of paying for public-sponsored medical and psychiatric treatment for people who have chosen to wreck their lives. I am fed up with paying high insurance rates because of careless drivers who are addicted to alcohol or dope, and with supporting enormous police forces to combat crimes resulting from such addiction.

The only person whose body is absolutely his (or her) own to treat foolishly is one who is self-supporting, has no relatives, no friends, no dependents and is completely exiled from civilization. — An Old Square in Cincinnati

Hardboard is reconstituted wood which after reduction into fibres, has been pressed together into panels. Sometimes other materials have been added to increase strength and durability.

There are two basic types of hardboard: standard and tempered. The tempered variety is harder and has a greater resistance to moisture. Therefore it is commonly used for exteriors, while the less moisture resistant standard board is mostly used for interior walls and ceilings.

A third type of hardboard exists for use as house siding.

MAN-MADE ISLAND TANKER PROPOSAL

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A 200-acre man-made island has been proposed off the Oregon coast to serve as a port facility for supertankers carrying petroleum products from Alaska and the Middle East.

The island would be built from the ocean floor to a height of 50 feet above the surface in 100 feet of water and would cost an estimated $375 million.

The port island concept was suggested at a hearing of the United States Army corps of engineers, commissioned two months ago to study the feasibility of deepwater port facilities on the west coast. Such facilities must be able to serve supertankers with draft of 65 feet and deeper.

Developers Told to Obey Bylaws

Five developers of condominiums in Oak Bay were told Thursday that bylaws passed for the protection of their clients would have to be obeyed.

They were also told by Oak Bay council's lands and buildings committee that requirements for finishing the exterior of buildings before occupancy are also designed to make sure that nearby residents are considered.

Ald. Brian Smith told them. "The council has a duty to the general public apart from people who have bought condominiums."

D. J. Butler, developer of the condominium at 1440 Beach, said he had been "unaware" of a bylaw laying down landscaping requirements over underground parking.

Later in the meeting municipal administrator E. H. Hart read part of the minutes of the meeting, at which the bylaw was discussed. The minutes noted Butler had been in attendance.

He and other developers had protested the requirements that call for a specific base of four inches and six inches of top soil.

The committee agreed it would consider modifying the base requirements if it would improve the quality. The concession came after one developer said "my expert says that system is very, very poor."

He asked the committee what would happen if a developer's architect advocated Japanese-style landscaping with no grass and shrubs.

He was told that his was one of the things the bylaw had been drawn up to prevent.

After the developers left,

Hart observed that "they hit the nail on the head" and Smith added, "You could get an architect that could say concrete is beautiful."

Building inspector Bill Skead noted that, although Butler's plans were dated January, they had not been presented until a few days ago.

"It's the first we've seen of it," he said, "there's no damn excuse at all."

Municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White said, "They think it's none of our damn business."

Smith said, "There should be some modification allowed plus a requirement for plans of landscaping. The only modification we should make is to broaden restrictions of what is going in the base."

Ald. Norman Pimlott agreed: "Once these condominiums are sold, that's it. We have to put some teeth into the legislation. They (the developers) don't come back."

In other business, the committee agreed with the Architectural Institute of British Columbia's request that council co-operate in the restriction of unqualified individuals designing buildings in the municipality.

Noting that the Municipal Act did not allow such control, they agreed to write the AIBC, saying they "would be delighted" if the provincial legislation could be changed to allow the restriction.

Student Wins Award

Cosmetics Men Held

TORONTO (CP) — Acting on warrants from Quebec, Metropolitan fraud squad detectives Thursday arrested the president and sales vice-president of a Metro-based cosmetics firm, Holiday Magic Ltd., in a scheme reported to involve at least $5 million.

Escorted to Montreal Thursday night were Robert Walsh, 39, the president of the international company's Canadian operation and Claude Contant, 37.

So far 10 arrests have been made, with warrants issued for 35 Holiday Magic distributors in Quebec, police said.

Constable Camille Cote of the Montreal fraud squad, which has spearheaded the two-year investigation, said many more arrests are likely.

The arrests followed seizure of a truckload of documents from the company's headquarters here in February.

Constable Cote was quoted as saying at least 7,000 people in Quebec and more than 1,500 in Ontario had invested sums ranging from $30 to $8,000 in the firm.

2 Held After Big Bank Raid

KIRCHHEIM-BOLANDEN (Reuter) — West German police arrested two men today and were questioning two women in connection with Thursday night's kidnapping of two women hostages after a bank raid, a police spokesman said.

He said it was not yet certain that the two were the armed gunmen who made off with a one-million mark ($332,500) ransom after the bank raid in the Ruhr industrial city of Moenchengladbach.

"They were detained after they drove through a road block we had set up," the spokesman said.

He said no shots were fired.

The arrests took place near the town of Hauenstein, south of the area near where the men abandoned their getaway car after freeing the two hostages, he said.

Hundreds of police using armored cars, tracker dogs and helicopters were combing the area.

Earlier in a wild car chase, the gunmen opened fire on police, escaped a police net and then abandoned their getaway vehicle after freeing both hostages unharmed. The getaway car was found and the men were believed heading for the French border.

Flood Fight Reserves Called In

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The east guard, helping to battle the seven-million-acre floodwaters of the Mississippi River, called its reserves to duty for the first time in peacetime Thursday and threatened to jail tugboat pilots endangering battered levees.

Coast guard reservists were put to work helping evacuate families in Illinois and Mississippi ahead of rising water that already has made 5,000 families homeless.

At least 19 persons have died in the $150 million rampage of the nation's longest river.

CREST — A crest of the river was expected at St. Louis today, the highest level the Mississippi has reached there since 1844.

The river has begun falling north of St. Louis, but has yet to reach full stage on the lower Mississippi where some levees on the delta already are straining.

Workers began dumping 208 tons of shells and concrete chunks Thursday along an 800-foot stretch of weakened levee bordering the French quarter in New Orleans.

YEARS — The river, at its highest level in 23 years in New Orleans, began lapping around makeshift shanties beyond the levees.

Col. Richard Hunt, district officer of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, said the city was in no immediate danger despite the "real erosion problem" on the waterfront.

The 83-man football squad from Southern Illinois University joined volunteers filling sandbags at Kaskaskia Island, National Guardsmen helped with sandbagging in other areas of Illinois and Missouri.

Cathedral's Park Offer Reconsidered by City

Victoria city council wants more information before it leases a 1.4-acre parcel of land adjacent to Christ Church Cathedral as a park.

The terms of the proposed lease, specified by Bishop F. R. Gartrell, allow for the city to lease the land for $1 a year, for 10 years, subject to annual renewal for an indefinite period.

Park administrator Cliff Bate informed council's recreation and parks committee Thursday that leasing the land would eliminate the need for the city to pay out as much as $100,000 in capital costs, or other park land in the area.

The church, however, wants to retain the right to terminate the lease on a year's notice after the first 10 years.

If the agreement is accepted, the city would lose $2,500 per year in taxes and a "ball park" figure for maintenance cost was pegged at about $3,000 to $4,000 annually.

Mayor Peter Pollen said he couldn't "see the agreement from the standpoint of the city of Victoria," adding council could end up "buying the role of 'custodian' of the property."

"If we're going to do it, I'd suggest doing it on a 25-year basis, not a year-to-year basis," the mayor said.

The site includes two parcels of land, one, about .85 acres, is at Burdett and Quadra, the other, about .55 acres, is at Burdett and Vancouver.

Bate suggested when the matter first came up last fall that the larger lot could be used for a children's playground, badly needed in the area.

The smaller lot, Bate said, was ideal for senior citizens living in the neighborhood.

Voice Wanted

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government will take its plan to give the provinces a voice in energy export decisions to Ottawa for discussion with the federal cabinet, Bill Dickie, minister of mines and minerals, told the legislature Thursday.

"I hope we can be very persuasive in our presentation to the federal cabinet," he said in reply to Jim Henderson, Social Credit house leader.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A charge of possessing $3,000 worth of hashish for the purpose of trafficking was dismissed in provincial court Thursday when the Crown's circumstantial evidence was ruled inadequate.

David Alexander Coulter, 22, of 778 Market, was stopped by Victoria police near the Churchill Hotel Oct. 10.

A search of the car he had been driving revealed 1½ pounds of hashish under the driver's seat.

Judge F. S. Green ruled that circumstantial evidence can result in a conviction only when there is no rational explanation other than the guilt of the accused.

The Crown case, the judge said, did not meet this test, as other rational explanations for the existence of the hashish under the car seat could be inferred.

A 20-year-old woman who shoplifted two smocks from The Bay while on probation was jailed for a total of eight months.

The judge told Linda Maureen Podfigorny, 1245

Pandora, that her theft was "inextricably connected with the accused's addiction to heroin."

Mrs. Podfigorny's probation officer was "skeptical" about the woman's ability to terminate her addiction to heroin, according to the probation officer's report.

"The prosecution shares the probation officer's lack of enthusiasm," said prosecutor Walter Anderson.

Mrs. Podfigorny was given an eight-month sentence on the shoplifting charge and four months concurrent for breach of probation.

In traffic court, Thomas William Kelly, 28, of 4081 Holland, was fined $250 and banned from driving for three months for driving with a blood-alcohol content of over .08. Kelly was in a car accident at Tillicum and Ker Feb. 28.

Aged Muddled By $50 Grant

There may be thousands of B.C. citizens eligible for a $50 annual grant who are confused about how to get it, Saanich the Islands MLA Hugh Curtis said today.

In a letter to Premier Dave Barrett, as minister of finance, Curtis asked for wide-spread publicity regarding the provincial $50 grant to elderly renters.

Stabilizer Malfunction Halts Ferry

The B.C. Ferries' Queen of Prince Rupert cancelled her run from Kelsey Bay on Vancouver Island to Prince Rupert Thursday because her starboard fin stabilizer wouldn't retract.

Forty-eight passengers and 28 vehicles were left stranded. The ferry was to go into Burrard Dry Dock shipyard for repairs Thursday night.

This means that her 20-hour run from Prince Rupert to Kelsey Bay will be cancelled Saturday. It is hoped to get her on her regular Kelsey Bay-Prince Rupert trip Tuesday.

A ferries' official said Thursday that it was impossible to have a substitute ship take over her run because she is the only ferry in the fleet with the capability for the 330-mile run.

HONESTY PAYS... EVENTUALLY

Honesty does pay—eventually.

Oak Bay council's finance committee was told Thursday an Oak Bay High School student was charged $26.76 for knocking down a stop sign in December.

The student had notified municipal authorities of the incident.

Municipal administrator E. H. Hart said the student had been billed four times but his mother was protesting the charge, saying that it did not encourage students to be honest.

Hart said the student had also been the recipient of some ribbing at the school.

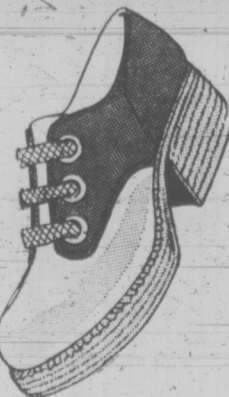

Committee members, saying that honesty should be rewarded, agreed to reduce the amount of the bill to $6.

Magazine Con Man In Town

A resourceful con man appears to have made a killing selling phoney magazine subscriptions in Victoria and may be working his way across Canada.

Bill Tindall, managing director of the Better Business Bureau, says people have complained that the man who hit the city in January and February, posed as an agent for Maclean-Hunter.

He offered magazines for sale at $7 or $8 cash, the money to be sent to a Kamloops address.

The man apparently took a genuine Maclean-Hunter contract to a Kamloops printer, had a large number of copies printed and apparently used the faked contracts to sign up subscriptions.

The printer has requested payment from Maclean-Hunter but the company refused to pay and the billed people will not receive magazines.

Several of them wrote to the address — Home Town Reader Service in Kamloops. Their letters came back marked "address not known."

Tindall hopes that any others who have been taken in by the man will lay complaints with the bureau.

He warns that anyone approached by a magazine salesman should ask to see his identity card issued by the Canadian Central Agency.

He adds another word of caution — the con man also have had a fake identity card printed.

Mayors Drive for Blood For Easter Accidents

An urgent need for blood prior to Easter holiday accidents is forecast by Greater Victoria mayors who are sponsoring their first donor clinic April 16 and 17.

Mayors Peter Pollen of Victoria, Hugh Curtis of Saanich, Frances Elford of Oak Bay, Art Young of Esquimalt, and Archie Galbraith of Central Saanich are jointly sponsoring the drive for 700 pints of blood for the Red Cross.

Clinics at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort will be open from 2:30-9 p.m., Monday the 16th and from 1:30-9 p.m. the following day.

"The timing of this event is just prior to the Easter holiday weekend and vacation period and Red Cross officials indicate that because of increased highway traffic, travel and recreational activities, there will be an urgent need for blood at this particular time," said Curtis.

Other clinics during the same week will be from 9:30-noon and 1:15-3 p.m., Wednesday, at Victoria High School; 6:30-8:30 p.m., Wednesday, at Royal Roads Canadian Services College; 9-noon and 1-3:30 p.m., Thursday, at CFB Esquimalt.

JOB CURBS EASED FOR STUDENTS

Foreign students who celebrated New Year's Eve in Canada will not be prevented from getting part-time or summer jobs.

Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Thursday in Ottawa that "foreign students, legally in Canada before Jan. 1, 1973, who are seeking employment will be exempted from the requirement of certification by a Canada Manpower centre that Canadian citizens or landed immigrants are not available for those jobs."

Appearing before the House of Commons committee on labor, manpower and immigration, the minister said the exemption would apply until these students successfully complete the academic course in which they are now registered.

He noted that all students are informed in writing before they come to Canada that they should not count on working in Canada to finance their stay, but he said the new regulation might have been a hardship for some of them.

Under the regulation, the students would only be eligible for jobs for which there were no Canadian citizens or landed immigrants available. The regulation still applies to students who arrived after the rule came into effect Jan. 1.

Most Indians Against Haida Land Plans

It seems unlikely that directors of the provincial First Citizens Fund will approve a Haida Indian application for $170,000 to buy 1,000 acres of land bordering their Masset reserve in the Queen Charlotte Islands.

An Indian spokesman said today many Indians are opposed to using the fund for this purpose because there isn't enough money to back more than 50 projects submitted by various Indian bands.

Fund directors are considering the applications today, as well as the Haida land purchase request.

Money available for band projects from the fund is $25 million a year — the interest from the $25 million fund.

The Haida Indians want the land, claiming it urgently needs it for housing. They have an option to buy the property from the owner — an American.

ALTERNATIVES

An earlier application to the federal government for mortgage money to purchase the property was rejected by the Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien.

However, if the band fails to buy the land through the First Citizens Fund, it has two other avenues for acquiring the property.

It may apply to the Land Commission (bill 42) to acquire the land, but the government might be reluctant to buy property to expand a reserve as this is a responsibility of the federal government.

The other alternative would be to turn over to the province abandoned reserve lands in a proposed provincial park in the Queen Charlottes in exchange for the purchase price of the American-owned property.

The latter would also require permission from the federal government.

Mayor Labels Suggestion As 'Bordering on Stupidity'

A suggestion that city council spend $500 to find out how the deck at Crystal Pool can be made less slippery was labelled "bordering on stupidity" by Mayor Peter Pollen on Thursday.

Crystal Pool architect John Di Castri recommended the city use the money to hire a testing engineer to study material needed for resurfacing some parts of the pool deck.

Council's parks and recreation committee, however, decided the hazardous condition of the deck is the architect's responsibility and voted Di Castri be directed to correct the situation.

"The slippery deck of a pool is hardly worth the time of city aldermen who are already spending two to three days a week of their time. It's ridiculous," Pollen said.

He suggested the committee refer the problem "back to the architect concerned suggesting that he hire the consultant and tell him to fix it."

In a letter to the committee Di Castri said, "We have been attempting to resolve this problem for some time and have made very little actual headway."

The problem arose because the north deck of the pool was finished in a foosmooth surface at the time of construction, "and the general contractor was instructed to correct this condition," he said.

The architect suggested a testing engineer be hired to find out the characteristic of the surface material and what treatment it should receive to eliminate the slippery condition.

However, Di Castri said, "the ultimate responsibility for this problem and its ensuing costs will have to be determined by the arbitration proceedings which are now in preparation."

"Why we can't build a $2 million swimming pool without going to arbitration, I'll never know," the mayor said.

"Whether it's a special deck color or special mix, we're not interested. We hire an architect for 5, 6 or 7 per cent of the total contract fee for service and quality follow-up."

"If we are not being serviced we should give serious consideration before giving further contracts," the mayor said.

"We're paying for the dog and doing our own barking." Committee members decided the deck was not hazardous enough to warrant closing the pool until the surface is redone.

Di Castri said today he would "rather not comment" on the matter until he had met the parks and recreation committee chairman.

Cordial Welcome From Peking

By JOHN BURNS
Special to The Times

PEKING—An advance party of U.S. diplomats received a quiet, cordial welcome when they arrived in Peking Thursday to prepare for the opening of the U.S. liaison office here next month.

Five Chinese foreign ministry officials greeted the seven as they disembarked from a Soviet-built jet of the Chinese airline which carried them from Canton.

There were broad smiles all around as Alfred Jenkins, leader of the party, descended the ramp to shake hands with two of the men who have been assigned to the Chinese liaison office which will open in Washington at about the same time that the U.S. office opens here.

A Chinese official at the airport revealed that the advance party for China's counterpart office will leave for Washington in the middle of April.

One member of the advance party will be Mr. Chien, one of several Chinese officials who visited Washington with the Chinese table-tennis team last spring.

Tax Debate May Speed Refunds

OTTAWA (CP) — After months of waiting, the Commons opened debate Thursday on a thick package of personal income tax changes that will, among other things, raise exemptions for students, the elderly, disabled and blind.

The benefits apply to 1972 tax forms and have already been claimed by thousands of taxpayers who have filed their 1972 returns.

The charges, awaiting second reading, will make many eligible for refunds, but the legislation must be passed before the money can be distributed by the revenue department. The only refund cheques being held up are for those taxpayers claiming on the basis of the raised exemptions, that were part of the government budget of last May 8 but never passed because of dissolution for the Oct. 30 election. Forms for taxpayers who are not claiming these exemptions are being processed normally.

At last count 34,000 refund cheques had been processed but, in the view of Conservative financial critic Marcel Lambert, it could be June or July before they are mailed. During debate on the tax changes, Lambert accused the government of quietly boosting the income tax rate for small businesses by seven per cent at the first of the year.

'Superscab' Laughs Off Tag

Newly-elected Victoria Ald. Malcolm Anderson said Thursday he isn't bothered by the label "superscab" pinned on him by a member of Local 382 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

"I'm very pleased that union members who are taxpayers in Victoria obviously realized that I'm looking out for their tax dollar," he said.

"And I shall continue to do so, working in the best interests of union members."

An Ill Wind That Blew Herb No Good people

ELK, Wash. — Although gusty winds blew all day Thursday, it must have seemed to Herbert Sames that bad luck was fanning the flames that destroyed his home. The first fire truck to arrive wasn't working right. A second rig roared in and began playing water on the flames and just when it looked like the blaze was under control, the truck ran short of water. The flames flared up again and destroyed the house.

ROME — A gunman shot and wounded a police official in charge of Mafia investigations in an ambush outside his home Thursday. A police spokesman said Angelo Mangano, an official of the Criminal Investigation Department, was returning home with his wife when a man fired five or six shots at him, jumped into a waiting car and escaped.

DETROIT — A Greek immigrant, who came to the United States eight years ago with her husband to "get rich," won $1 million in the Michigan Lottery Thursday. Mrs. Chester Perzlis, 46, who speaks no English, said through an interpreter that she and her husband would use some of the money to help friends still in Greece and to build themselves a new home in their home town of Sparta. Mrs. Perzlis and her husband, Louis, 42, a tool and die maker, said they would return to the United States after a trip to their homeland in June.

LONDON — A housewife took on a gang of five gunmen holding up a payroll truck by standing in front of their getaway car and refusing to move — even when one of the raiders fired a gun in her face. But the gang got away with $16,250 before anyone came to help the woman, 34-year-old Jessie Burns. They reversed their auto and sped away.

WARWICK, R.I. — Charges against five members of the Rolling Stones rock group still stand, a district court judge ruled Thursday. Judge John E. Orton rejected a motion to dismiss charges stemming from an alleged airport scuffle with a news photographer last July 18. Defence lawyers had argued that the court lacked jurisdiction because the defendants were going through customs at Green State Airport at the time of the incident.

CAMARILLO, Calif. — Daniel Blumenshine supports the meat boycott, but has to buy two pounds of hamburger every day. And just to prove it, he has a prescription. The hamburger is for Blumenshine's 11½-year-old German Shepherd, Lobo, recovering from a kidney infection and reaction to an antibiotic.

RUTLAND — Former premier W. A. C. Bennett continued his travelling campaign against New Democratic Party legislation Thursday night, telling a rally here that the government's purchase of Columbia Cellulose showed "it couldn't run a peanut stand." He said governments should share in private business only through taxation.

SLIMMERS' TURKISH DELIGHT

TORONTO — Throw away those reducing pills — belly dancing may melt away that flab.

Housewife Beverly Knight,

37, graduated as a belly dancer Thursday night and bragged about losing 60 pounds in nine months.

Her 12-year-old son watched as his mother swivelled with half-bare hips with 34 other graduates of a dance academy before husbands, friends and relatives.

Graduates agreed that belly-dancing exercises, well done, are hard work.

Husband Frank Knight had two laments for reporters: the shortage of belly dancing in Toronto night clubs — he loves to watch it — and, with a glance at his slimmed-down wife, his own advancing waistline.

Duncan Lad Big Festival Winner

A Duncan boy and a Victoria mezzo soprano are this year's vocal champions in the Greater Victoria Music Festival.

Judith Temple, for her singing of the Rossini aria, Una voce poco fa, from The Barber of Seville, was awarded the Rose Bowl, one of only two trophies in the festival.

Philip Jaynes' lively performance of Up the Airy Mountain by Hugh Robertson, won him the junior championship.

The winners will represent Victoria at the Provincial Music Festival in Vancouver in May.

CLOSE CHOICE

Performance level of runners-up in both categories made the choice a close one for adjudicator Roger Stalman.

They were, for the Rose Bowl, John McVie, Corinne Eckert and Robin Powell. For the junior championship, Michele Fulmore (Duncan), Susan Pye and Cathy-Anne Skillings.

Two more championships that will take the winners to Vancouver were decided on Thursday. These were woodwind, which went to consistently excellent James Kennedy for a performance on the baroque flute; and brass, which was won by French horn player Joan Watson.

PRAISE

William Cole, who has been judging band and instrumental classes, said he was thrilled to discover a glowing young talent in Debbie Jackson, whom he described as "an amazing nine-year-old recorder player."

Accompanied by James Kennedy on the lute, she was awarded a mark of 90.

Choral work heard during the evening at Fellowship Hall delighted adjudicator Stalman as much as it did the large audience.

GOLDEN AGE

The two senior citizen groups — The Hamiton Singers, conducted by Margaret Tupman, and the Saanich Songman, conducted by Joe Almond — were praised for their spirit and enterprise as well as for their musical effect.

St. John's Church Choir, conducted by John Gallienne, had no competitor but received 87 and 88 for their two numbers.

Concerning the Arion Male Voice Choir, conducted by Bert Storar, Stalman said the "precision of starts and finishes... the fine, rich tone like warm honey."

He awarded them a total of 178 marks in their uncontested class.

Also alone in a new class for men's choirs, barbershop style, were the Village Squires, conducted by John Varrelman.

Stalman described the ensemble as "absolutely brilliant — they were complete masters of their style of singing."

CBC AWARD

The mark of 182 brought the Squires the CBC Award of $50.

Also on the evening program were the Victoria General Hospital Annettes, a vocal ensemble conducted by Annette Jane Blanks.

"How wonderful for you busy people to find time to get together to sing and enjoy making music — and to do it so well," remarked the adjudicator.

Concluding his week of adjudicating, Stalman paid tribute to all the accompanists — "those wonderful pairs of hands without which we singers would be utterly lost."

Other awards presented at the session included the Frank L. Tupman Memorial Award which went to St. Mary's junior choir; the Arion Male Choir Award to John McVie; the Adele Lewis Special Award to Corinne Eckert; and the Intermediate Vocal Award to Hilary Groos.

Tonight's highlight is the speech arts honor performance at Fellowship Hall and senior championship competition.

V.I. Timber Firm Drops Spray Plan

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Bill Chambers, office manager of the Elk River Timber Co., said Thursday his company had decided not to use the herbicides 2-4-D and 2-4-5-T to spray the right-of-way along 17 miles of logging road.

Chambers said the provincial government for a spraying permit earlier this year and received it. However, the management of the timber company, located in the eastern United States, decided the chemicals were not to be used, at least not in 1973.

Chambers said the chemical has been made on whether to use the substances next spring at its operations near Campbell River.

"It really depends on whether or not the alder trees we spray become a road obstruction," he said.

MAMMOTH TANKERS SEEN

CALGARY (CP) — The idea of supertankers four times the size of today's giants, which already are so big that deckhands use bicycles to travel from bow to stern, must be considered to transport huge amounts of oil in the future, a Montreal shipping official said.

Liam R. Keane of Alean Shipping Services told a Canadian transportation research forum that there are problems in building the supertankers.

"These mammoths will no doubt be necessary, considering the tremendous amounts of oil to be shipped on an international basis during the next 10 years," he said.

Keane said large tankers, in the 500,000 to one-million-dead-weight tonnage (DWT) range, would be used to move oil from the Persian Gulf to Europe, Japan and the United States.

During the last 10 years, Keane said, the average size of the world's tanker fleet has more than doubled to the present 54,965 DWT.

The average size of the 721 tankers now on order is 160,263 DWT and 46 of them exceed 300,000 tons each.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Migraine Experiment Promising

People who suffer much from the various distresses of migraine headaches will be interested to know that there is an organization called the National Migraine Foundation, made up of physicians who are particularly interested in the disease. The National Migraine Foundation Newsletter is filled with information about new treatments and drugs, as well as other information which can be of help to migrainous persons.

In the January, 1973, issue, I see an article about a research team at the California State University at San Diego, working to try to teach migraine sufferers how to control their migraines with their minds—by learning how to constrict their temporal artery (which runs up in front of the ear). The head of the research team, psychology professor Jerry Kypman, agrees with some other experts who believe that migraine is caused by the dilation, or opening, of the temporal artery.

The team members have been working with normal volunteers, who, with the help of very complex electronic equipment, have had some success in learning to change the size of the artery by contraction. They hope to be able to teach this technique to migraine sufferers, although Dr. Kypman says they are just in the experimental stage of their work. It would be a wonderful thing if it can be done.

Pressing on that large blood-carrying temporal artery in front of the ear can shut off the blood flow for a few seconds. This has been known to relieve a headache for as long as the person presses on the artery.

Herbs Easily Grown
On Apartment Balcony

Herbs to add their touch of country living to highrise meals are easily grown in planters and tubs on apartment balconies.

Once the plants are established they thrive in warmth and sunshine, requiring only an occasional watering.

Perennial kinds will live several years, the annuals need replacing each spring. Seeds of many can be sown now in the tubs, or from herb growers at several outlets around the Victoria area by the end of April.

Thyme, sage, rosemary and lavender are shrubby herbs whose seeds can be sown now in either a small three-inch-deep box of soil kept on the balcony or direct into a tub outside.

Don't sow too many seeds; they remain viable for several years if kept in a cool place. You may want three sage plants the first year; and only one rosemary. By sowing a half-dozen seeds of each you can select the number of strongest seedlings and discard the rest.

The soil in the tubs for herbs needs some humus to hold moisture but also rather coarse sand for drainage and for warmth.

An arrangement of one rosemary seedling in the centre of a square tub, with two sage and two thyme filling the four corners, will make an attractive grouping by summer and also provide pieces for flavoring. Since the plants are shrubby, pieces are also available all through the winter for seasoning.

Another tub or planter can be given over to chives and mint, for these two have far more uses than the average person believes. Fresh green chives go into any cooked or uncooked food or vegetables, fish or cheese.

Mint is a lovely flavoring for home-made soups and chowders; also in green salads, vegetable casseroles and cheese dishes. Or in home-made bread rolls and baps. Mint emphasizes the richness of other ingredients, losing the expected peppermint flavor.

Annual herbs are perhaps best kept in a separate long planter, for the whole lot will have to be scrapped by late fall and resown or replanted next spring.

You may like to sow, or buy a few summer savory, sweet marjoram, dill or fennel. Each has its distinctive flavor, enabling you to create new taste treats with the same basic meal ingredients.

Two herbs are more difficult to grow than those mentioned. Sweet basil is an annual needing the warmth of June before it will germinate or grow into a plant. It comes from India and cannot be expected to enjoy our cool springs, but does well later in summer.

French Tarragon is a perennial root which must be purchased as a started plant for it does not set seed. In sandy, well-drained soil it lives over winter, sprouting new shoots from below ground each spring.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In the Spingold Knockout Team-of-Four event held during the Summer National Championships of 1972, each of the two South declarers in today's deal arrived at the identical contract of four spades, doubled by East. The success or failure of the contract depended on how to play the trump suit. One declarer made the winning decision; the other, the losing one. East-West vulnerable. East deals.

Opening lead: Three of ♣.

When the deal was played the first time, South won the opening lead with his ace of hearts, and at trick two led a low spade. When West followed suit with the five, dummy's six was inserted. East captured the trick with the ten-spot.

East now saved declarer the trouble of guessing the club set-up by cashing the ace of clubs at trick three (declarer had no way of getting to dummy to lead a club towards his own hand). To trick four, East returned a heart, hoping to get his partner into the lead. Declarer ruffed this heart lead.

He next led a trump, West's queen being covered by dummy's king, which was taken by East's ace. A heart continuation was then ruffed by declarer, who next played the jack of spades, picking up East's last trump. When the king of clubs followed, West's queen, declarer had the rest of the tricks. His only losers were two trump tricks and a club.

When the deal was replayed, West again opened a heart, which was won by South's ace. A low trump was then led, declarer putting up dummy's king in the hope that West possessed the ace. As is evident, West took the king with his ace.

East now cashed his ace of clubs, as his counterpart had done when the deal was played originally. He then exited with a heart, which declarer ruffed. Another trump lead was captured by West's queen. West now completed the coup de grace by leading the queen of clubs. East ruffed this lead, for the setting trick.

Our original declarer's play of not putting up dummy's king of trumps at trick two was the correct play: East, who had opened the bidding, and then doubled, surely rated to have the ace of trumps.

FUN WITH

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Tom checked the boy's figures. "You're right," he said. "2832 is 28 squared plus twice the square of 32. The square of the first half added to twice the square of the second half. That's really something."

"Sure, Dad," Ted agreed. "But don't think there are any other 4-figure numbers just like that?"

What do you say?

(Answer Monday)

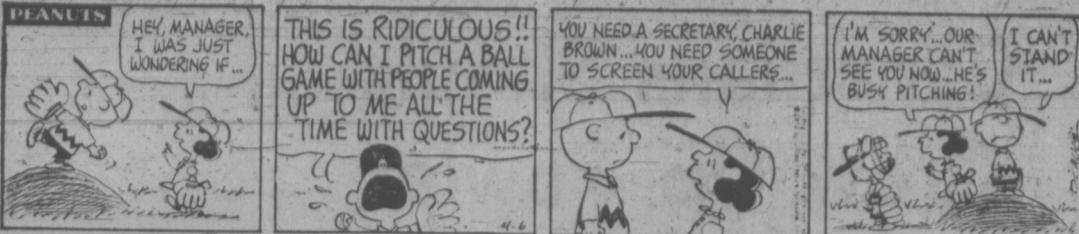

Yesterday's answer: FINCH was 81340 (even).

Canadians Should Grow Up: Fowler

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada, with typical luck and no great skill, has managed just about the most favorable position possible in dealings with the United States, Robert M. Fowler, president of the C. D. Howe Research Institute of Montreal, said Thursday.

Mr. Fowler, making his first address as president of the new research organization, said U.S. investment in Canada, "which we wanted and which has greatly advantaged us," is subject to Canadian control.

Moreover, American businessmen in Canada are responsive to Canadian needs, Canadian products are sold to buyers in an accessible and profitable market and American supplies and skills are available to aid in Canadian development.

Mr. Fowler was addressing a one-day conference on Canadian business outlook, sponsored by the Conference Board in Canada, an organization devoted to research in business economics and administration.

"I think Canada had better grow up and begin to recognize the essential strength of our position" in relation to the United States, "and show some confidence in that strength and good fortune," he said.

CONCERN MISPLACED

The concern about vulnerability to American influences in Canada is misplaced, he said.

"If Canada is to live in the world — as we must — we are going to be vulnerable in a sense to the influences of other countries.

"To what other country would you rather be vulnerable? Would you choose the United Kingdom? But then think for a moment of Britain's decision to enter the European community which was a necessary and proper action in her own interest but showed little regard for the effect on Canada.

"Would you choose France after recent examples of French policy and her tendency to meddle in internal Canadian issues?

"By contrast with these two obvious alternatives, the record of the United States in the past decade shows, numerous instances where Canada's interests have been regarded, and adjustments made in American policies to accommodate them to Canada's needs."

CONSIDER OWN INTERESTS

Mr. Fowler, chairman of the board of BP Canada Ltd. and a director of several companies including Quaker Oats of Canada, said federal government gestures to "the nationalistic fringe of opinion in this country" could do considerable damage to Canadian-American relations.

"It would be much sounder and more truly independent if we did what has to be done in our own best interests" rather than as an attempt to become less vulnerable to the United States.

He also said Canada needs positive, and probably new, policies to meet today's conditions in the international trading and monetary world.

Canada might benefit from a special technique for dealing with the bilateral monetary arrangements with the United States. For instance, a formula might be devised to maintain the exchange relationships at an appropriate level for traditional exports and use surplus reserves from increased natural resource exports to obtain capital assets in return.

"Oddly enough this could be used to achieve one of the main objectives of the nationalists: we could use these excess reserves to repatriate foreign holdings in Canadian companies and reduce foreign control of our industries."

A text of his remarks was issued before delivery.

NIXON ORDERS PUSH ON PIPE

Times News Services

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. — President Nixon Thursday ordered Secretary of the Interior Rogers Morton to go "all out" to clear the way for construction of the Trans-Alaska oil pipeline.

Morton said after a 45-minute meeting with the President that every effort would be made to get legislation through Congress this summer authorizing him to grant the necessary rights-of-way for pipeline construction from the north slope of Alaska to Valdez, an ice-free port 700 miles to the south.

Morton Thursday sent all Congressmen a letter, strongly arguing that it is the nation's best interests to build the pipeline across Alaska, without waiting for further consideration of an alternative route through Canada.

Congress currently is considering legislation to ease a 1920 limitation of pipeline right-of-way across federal land, whose application in the federal courts has blocked construction of the proposed line.

Morton urged the lawmakers to adopt such legislation, and not to delay the Alaska line any longer, despite some suggestions that a Canadian pipeline route would be environmentally and economically better.

It would not be better, Morton wrote, and besides, Canadian spokesmen have indicated Canada would insist on conditions unacceptable to the United States, to allow the line across their territory.

Morton said north slope oil, which would flow at a rate of two million barrels a day if the pipeline was in full operation, would help to slow the steady increase in the price of gasoline, heating oil and other petroleum products.

"I don't see any way the price of oil can go but up," Morton said. "The question is how fast it will go."

Six-Year Trend Fails, Food Prices Up Again

Times News Services

In March, a month during which food prices normally decline, meat, fish and poultry prices rose 2.2 per cent. This was 18 per cent higher than a year earlier, Statistics Canada reported today.

Pork prices are up 27 per cent over a year ago, poultry prices up 20 per cent and beef prices up 14 per cent pushing the cost of food consumed in the home up 11.3 per cent for the year. Restaurant meals have taken a 9.6 per cent jump.

A 5.9 per cent increase in housing helped push the consumer index up six per cent for the year to 145.7. Last year the index was 137.4 and in February it stood at 145.3.

The total food bill rose 4 per cent between February and March in marked contrast to the decreases between these two months for each of the past six years except 1971 when prices were rebounding after the end of a supermarket price war.

The usual decreases are caused by the influx of abundant vegetables from southern spring crops.

Fruit prices were up three per cent, despite a decline in the price for bananas, and vegetable prices were narrowly higher despite lower prices for tomatoes and carrots.

Fresh milk prices rose 0.4 per cent with higher charges in a number of cities, including St. John's, Nfld., Charlottetown and Vancouver. Prices for bread and other baked goods also moved upwards slightly.

Reflecting a federal sales tax cut in the Feb. 19 budget, soft drinks showed a five-per cent decrease. There also were lower prices for coffee and tea, sugar, jelly powder and chocolate bars.

Egg prices took their usual dip at this time of year, when production increases, easing 3.3 per cent from February. But they still were 47 per cent higher than a year ago. The federal government paid farmers a bonus last spring to kill laying birds and reduce an egg surplus.

There were higher charges for new homes, for home repair and for rents.

Prices for furniture and appliances moved upward despite sales on some items. Household textiles, dishes and cleaning supplies were more expensive and floor coverings, light bulbs and toilet paper a bit cheaper.

The transport index, representing 12 per cent of consumer spending, advanced 0.3 from 133.5 in February. It per cent to 133.9 in March from 133.5 in February. It was 132.8 a year ago.

New car prices were a bit below February but this was outweighed by higher repair and lubrication charges and higher prices for batteries.

The clothing index, representing 11 per cent of spending, was 122.8 in February.

Stupich Against Boycott

Consumer boycotts on meat are not a good idea and put meat producers in an "untenable economic position," Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said Thursday.

Stupich said consumers should consider the long-range effects of their actions on the price of farm products.

"I wish they would reconsider their position," he said of the continent-wide meat boycott. "Consider that the producer is still getting a very low income compared with almost everyone else in the community."

Stupich said the pressure on the meat producer generated by a boycott forces the market to rely more heavily on imports.

Exporting countries then have Canada at a disadvantage, he said.

The minister said he does not think the public is being gouged by retail meat dealers.

Stupich said cattleman's incomes have not increased on the same scale as consumers in recent years. Only in the last year, he said, have cattleman started receiving the same prices for their products that they did in 1951.

While the cattleman's income has suffered, the incomes of consumers have increased by leaps and bounds to the point that the purchasing power of consumers today is far higher than it was 22 years ago, he said.

Elsewhere, the United States 10th largest group of food stores announced it would roll back prices today, but most retail prices across the U.S. and Canada remained steady despite the meat boycott.

Meat prices dropped slightly on 11 mid-west markets Thursday, but meat industry employees remained the hardest hit by the boycott as it entered its sixth day. Patrick Gorman, secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, said the boycott had resulted in layoffs of an estimated 29,000 union members.

The Grand Union supermarkets, with more than 500 stores, say it would reduce prices on beef, pork, lamb and veal by at least 10 cents per pound beginning today.

In Ottawa, the agriculture department today predicted that people will buy "more meat than ever before" this spring.

These results led Meselson and Baughman to suggest that dioxin "may have accumulated to biologically significant levels in food chains in some areas of South Vietnam exposed to herbicide spraying."

Bell Hike Stayed

OTTAWA (CP) — Following a week of strong political and consumer pressure, the minority Liberal government announced today it has suspended a Canadian Transport Commission decision granting rate increases to Bell Canada.

It was the first time since the commission was formed in 1967 that one of its decisions has been suspended. No decision has been modified or cancelled.

Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier said the cabinet decided on the suspension so it can complete its review of the CTC decision and get clarification from the commission on "some vital points surrounding the decision that need explanation."

He did not elaborate. No time limit was given.

Conservative and New Democrat spokesmen welcomed the announcement, although Social Credit Leader Real Caouette called it interference with private enterprise.

CALLED FOR HALT

In Montreal, a Bell Canada spokesman said the company had no immediate comment to make on the government's decision to suspend rate increases.

"We don't know what points the government wants clarified. We don't have enough information to go on at the moment."

He said the company feels it adequately presented its position during the transport commission hearings "and we don't feel there is anything we can add."

New Democrat Leader David Lewis obtained a special Commons debate on the issue Monday and called for a halt to "monopolistic gouging" of the public by Bell Canada.

He said CTC hearings on the Bell application did not provide an adequate opportunity for public participation. Liberal speakers agreed, while the CTC itself said in its decision last Friday that it is studying measures to improve public participation.

The increases apply to Ontario, Quebec, Labrador and parts of the Northwest Territories.

SILVER COIN EXPORT BAN

OTTAWA (UPI) — Finance Minister John Turner announced Thursday that Canadian silver coins were being placed on the export control list to stop the practice of smuggling them to the United States and melting them down for profit.

Recent increases in the U.S. price of silver encouraged many people to buy Canadian coins minted before 1968, take them to the United States and melt them for silver. Four Canadian quarters contain about $1.30 worth of silver.

INSURANCE FIRM FRAUD BIGGEST

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Equity Funding Corp. of America, battered by what may be the biggest fraud in the history of the insurance industry, declared bankruptcy Thursday by order of a federal judge.

State officials took control of a second subsidiary as insolvent.

Investigations into the activities of the insurance and mutual funds giant continued by state and federal agencies. Lawsuits were filed and the effect of "the Equity affair" was reportedly being felt on Wall Street.

"All we need to do in order to make this company able to meet its responsibilities is sell the movie rights to its activities," cracked Gilles L. Payne, state insurance commissioner.

A federal judge has taken control of the parent firm and Payne's office has taken over one of its insurance subsidiaries, Equity Funding Life Insurance Co.

In Illinois, where the insurance company is chartered, state insurance investigators said they drilled open a Chicago bank safety deposit box that was supposed to contain more than $24 million in bonds listed by the company as security for its policies.

The stock, once worth $61 a share, is now "totally valueless."

The core of multiple fraud and theft charges by state and federal authorities, and civil suits, is the charge that the insurance company invented customers, fabricating policyholders who never existed.

The alleged bogus policies, which made the company appear far more prosperous than it was, were then sold to other insurance companies at least 15 of them—for millions of dollars, investigators say.

In some cases, Equity Funding Life later reported the "policyholder" had died, and collected the insurance from the other companies to pass along to his "widow," investigators said.

U.S. Troops 'Not Needed'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Nguyen Van Thieu said Thursday that South Vietnam can cope with any level of Communist attack without calling for U.S. ground or air support.

"I am very confident that our army and our people are able to defend themselves against rehearsed aggression," he told a National Press Club luncheon.

Thieu pledged: "I can assure you of one thing: Never, never will I ask U.S. troops to come back to Vietnam."

Thieu expressed equal assurance, in only a slightly less categorical form, about his nation's ability to dispense with U.S. air support even in event of an all-out North Vietnamese offensive.

He was asked by newsmen, "can your government survive without U.S. air power?"

"Yes," replied Thieu. "There was one, potentially significant qualification, however, on Thieu's disclaimers about any further requirement for U.S. military support."

"A takeover of Cambodia by the Communists," Thieu said, would be "the beginning of a new war."

In that event, said Thieu, the Vietnam peace accord "doesn't mean a thing."

His statements came as Communist troops launched an artillery barrage in the Mekong Delta and stepped up their shelling of Hue in the heaviest and most widespread fighting since the Vietnam truce.

Reports of the attacks came exactly one week after the last U.S. troops withdrew from South Vietnam.

One military source said the Communist activity was designed to find a weak spot in South Vietnamese defenses and prepare for a major offensive.

U.S. planes wound up a month of nonstop bombing in Cambodia today with strikes within 10 miles of Phnom Penh against Communists encircling the capital.

Military sources said prior-

LANSDOWNE FIRE CLAIMS 11 HORSES

VANCOUVER (CP) — At least 11 race horses perished Thursday night when fire swept through a barn at Lansdowne Park in Richmond.

Robert Bruce, 42, gatekeeper at the park, was taken to hospital with undetermined injuries after he was trampled by thoroughbreds fleeing the fire.

The barn, which contained about 35 horses, was reduced to a smouldering ruin within 30 minutes, firemen said.

A strong wind kept the flames from spreading to four other barns, although horses stabled in them were turned free as a precaution.

Several hours after the blaze was extinguished, volunteers and SPCA workers were still rounding up horses.

There was no indication of how the fire started, and there was no estimate of the value of the race horses lost.

S. Viet Food Chain Contaminated

By MORTON MINTZ

WASHINGTON (WP) — Defoliation in South Vietnam has contaminated the food chain with a chemical that causes birth defects in animals, two Harvard University scientists have disclosed.

They said that, by using a sensitive new method, they detected the chemical in shrimp and in five species of fish taken from four widely separated sites in South Vietnam.

The chemical, dioxin, is almost unrivalled in its power to deform the offspring of animals that ingest it in even tiny amounts. Its most common effects are cleft palate and kidney defects.

Studies of a possible link between defoliation and human birth deformities of any kind have been inconclusive.

On the Agony of a Man About to Give Praise

It's been a week of playing God, you might say, since I have been agonizing as a judge over some of the best Canadian writing and performing achievements of 1972, and it is nothing if not exhausting.

When the Media Club of Canada asked me to judge the best British Columbia magazine writing of the year and the Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists asked me to serve on the judging panel for the national ACTRA awards I thought it not merely an honor — kaff! kaff! — but a breeze. In almost any kind of competition there's usually one champion who stands above the rest. I would just look for that one, I thought, and Bob's your uncle.

It was not to be. When you realize that it's within your power to bestow some public recognition on someone who has created something — and, equally importantly, the realization that you will be denying all the others public recognition by making them also-rans — that responsibility becomes very nearly an intolerable burden.

I am not at all sure, in fact, if such awards should be made at all since they rely so much on the personal prejudices of the judges and since creative work such as writing or acting very seldom invites direct comparison. In the magazine writing section, for example, at least three of the five finalists are superb craftsmen. Who the hell was I to make a choice?

What weighed on my mind, too, in this week of trying to make it up, was the knowledge of how much sweat and secret, lonely work, how much uncertainty and brain-wracking, how much weary groping, went into the work that, completed, seems so effortless and easy. I know it to be true of writing and I suspect it is true of every creative effort that it's hard work that pays off. Dare I use the example of the iceberg? No I don't.

One of the more enduring myths, it seems to me, is that masterpieces are the result of a natural talent. I concede that, often, there is an inclination that takes boys and girls into the field for which they've an affinity. But the examples I have before me of works that can be called outstanding are the products of men and women who have learned their trade, just as a carpenter or doctor or a bricklayer has learned. The creative juices rarely flow. They are more often squeezed.

Another of the lasting myths is that creative people are motivated by ego. That may appear true on the surface. Whatever his speciality, the artist has no way of judging the worth or acceptance of his work except through the beholder. That probably is why these awards are so eagerly sought by the entrants. They want and need confirmation that what they've done is worthwhile or better. They need praise not for praise, itself, but simply as a spur to move onward.

The fact is that truly creative work is more often ego-destroying than it is ego-building. I know at least two Canadians who are tops in their fields — each widely assumed to be flaming egotists — who have had to fight an inner insecurity about their work through their careers.

It is a curse that grows through the years for the reason that writers or actors or artists become increasingly self-critical, setting themselves impossible goals of perfectionism, concerned deeply that the vitality or enthusiasm they brought to their earlier work has gone with the years. That fear may lead to an even greater need for reassurance that may seem egotistic. Whatever measure of success there's been in the past, continuing self-confidence remains the most elusive and necessary of attitudes.

I suppose that's why I've been so curiously hesitant and uncertain in coming to the decisions that are now irrevocable. I am mightily pleased for the winners, but I hope that the losers will have the good sense to know there'll be another day, another judge.

Reorganized Bus System To Start Off Debt Free

By WAYNE HARDING
Times Staff

Reorganized transit systems for Greater Victoria and Greater Vancouver can start off next year debt free, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said in a policy statement issued today.

Besides taking over the amortized debt charges, which have been accumulated by B.C. Hydro's transportation division, the province will "underwrite 100 per cent of the capital cost of these surface bus systems," Lorimer said.

Debt charges to these systems amount to approximately $2.5 million annually, a spokesman for the minister's office said. Existing legislation enables the province to pick up 50 per cent of the operating deficits of transit systems — which include debt charges — but such grants have not been made since the enabling act, brought in by the former Social Credit government, was passed in March 1972.

Lorimer said today discussions with the Greater Vancouver and Capital Regional Districts to determine "there share of the annual operating deficit" of the systems is continuing.

The spokesman for the minister's office said there is an opinion widely held that the department has proposed that the operating costs be met by levying of a two mill property tax within the two regional districts. This is not true, he said. Rather, in the course of discussions with the Greater Vancouver Regional District, the department had suggested that operating budgets not be limited by the amounts that could be raised by one mill levy — the amount originally proposed.

Regions Likely to Take Over

Some regional directors have proposed that special taxes, such as utility or gasoline taxes, be imposed rather than property taxes to support transit. But the government is inclined "to come back" to taxation of land as a source of operating revenue, the spokesman said.

In his policy statement today, Lorimer suggested the regional districts be prepared to take over the planning and marketing of the transit systems in 1974.

Of the systems themselves, Lorimer said they "will involve a series of local routes serving local residences and activity centres connecting with an express or "fastbus" system.

The policy statement is the first to be issued on the subject of public transportation since the New Democratic government created the Bureau of Transit Service and appointed Victor Parker as provincial director of transit earlier this year.

It contains few specific details of transit planning and it seems as a statement of intention aimed at regional directors as much as a statement of the government's philosophy on public transit.

Adults to Ride School Buses

Among the specific details is the mention that: "We will also be looking at the school bus system as part of this future program."

"The province is blanketed by an excellent system of bus routes operated exclusively for the bussing of school children."

With little additional cost, adults can also be carried on certain of these school buses, either on the existing routes, or on altogether new runs in the midday and on weekends.

On theory, the statement declares: "We see our effort decreasing the dependency of persons on movement by private automobile and, removing the pressure to build more highways parking facilities and bridges, with the attendant loss of land and livability in our communities."

The statement notes that while public transportation does not produce sufficient revenue to meet the costs of providing the service, neither does road building.

"On a per capita basis, the British Columbia taxpayer contributes approximately 40 cents out of every dollar we spend on roads, leaving the public purse to pay a subsidy per person of about $47 per year. Comparable figures for transit services in Greater Vancouver and Greater Victoria are 23 cents on the dollar contribution and a public subsidy of $5 per capita per year."

ARENA FEE HIKES URGED

City finance committee agreed Thursday to recommend to council increases in rental rates and admission charges at Memorial Arena and McPherson Playhouse.

Jack Morgan, director of recreation and community services, recommended in a letter that public skating charges at the arena go up 10 cents.

Present rates, in existence for the last five years, are 65 cents for adult admission, 40 cents for students, 15 cents for tiny tots and 65 cents for Friday night skating.

He also recommended increases for skating parties, pro hockey training camp, building rentals, community rates, property rentals and roller skating.

Major changes recommended for McPherson Playhouse are increased charge for rehearsals and limitation of the hall-house rental and also to include Sunday in the mid-week rates and Friday in the weekend rates.

Increases vary between a low of $15 and a high of $150.

Resignation Threat By Ambulance Men

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Employees of Garden City Ambulance Ltd. sent an ultimatum to Victoria city council today threatening to withdraw their services Monday if they are not granted an emergency meeting with Mayor Peter Pollen.

The ultimatum came after the announcement Thursday that a new ambulance service, operated jointly by the city and Victoria General Hospital, will take over the city's emergency service contract July 1.

Garden City Ambulance has served the city since 1968 and its contract expires June 30.

"All we want to do is meet with the mayor and talk about this," said Ed Pfeiffer, one of nine employees with the firm.

'CONCERNED'

"We want to find out exactly what they're going to do. We're all concerned about our jobs."

"They're proposing to use nursing orderlies," Pfeiffer said. "Those fellows are already working and are not qualified to drive ambulances. We have the experience and with added training we could do the job."

The city plan, which is regarded as an interim measure pending development of a regional ambulance service under direction of the provincial government, calls for one emergency vehicle.

Victoria General will train a staff of six to man the ambulance, which will serve other city hospitals as well and the city will pay their salaries.

Mayor Pollen said he wouldn't give an exact estimate of the cost to the city for the new service but added it would be "in the vicinity of $100,000 a year."

'RIDICULOUS'

Garden City president B. J. Knezevsky said the city plan is "ridiculous" and he intends to make a representation to city council.

He said his firm charges the city $60,000 a year and provides two ambulances and nine employees while the new scheme will provide only one ambulance and six employees for $100,000.

"One ambulance just isn't enough," said Lynn Klein, member of the Canadian Ambulance Ad-hoc Committee, now working on an extensive study of ambulance service for the provincial government.

Klein's 160-page committee report will be presented to the government in two weeks.

"If the one ambulance breaks down, who will back it up?" Klein asked. "And would the back-up team have the same equipment and the same expertise that the city advocates?"

"If Victoria is considering using the Saanich service for their back up — Saanich is already thinking they need another vehicle because they are so over-worked."

Klein's committee's research shows that "use of dual-personnel is not in the best interests of providing optimum ambulance service."

He said a city of Victoria's size needs a "full time, highly trained ambulance personnel."

Klein said city council previously had considered letting the fire department provide ambulance service.

"We (this committee) convinced them not to set up this dual function but now this proposal is the same thing."

Ald. Percy Frampton said today he had read the ultimatum and it "was not a very nice letter. I'm very unhappy about it."

Frampton said the city was dealing "directly with the company, not the employees. What they want to do is up to them, but we'll still hold the company to its contract."

"And that's the way it should be. The employees have nothing to do with it." The new ambulance service plan goes before city council Thursday for approval but Pollen said approval was assured because aldermen had been kept informed on progress of the matter and had all expressed approval.

SUITE GRASS BITTER IN EYES OF LAW

Eight spring plants found in a Victoria home netted a young couple $200 in fines in Victoria provincial court today.

The couple's illegal horticultural efforts were discovered Thursday night, after police forcibly entered their home.

NIXON ORDERS PUSH ON PIPE

Times News Services

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. — President Nixon Thursday ordered Secretary of the Interior Rogers Morton to go "all out" to clear the way for construction of the Trans-Alaska oil pipeline.

Morton said after a 45-minute meeting with the President that every effort would be made to get legislation through Congress this summer authorizing him to grant the necessary rights-of-way for pipeline construction from the North Slope of Alaska to Valdez, an ice-free port 700 miles to the south.

Morton Thursday sent all Congressmen a letter, strongly arguing that it is the nation's best interests to build the pipeline across Alaska, without waiting for further consideration of an alternative route through Canada.

Congress currently is considering legislation to ease a 1920 limitation of pipeline right-of-way across federal land, whose application in the federal courts has blocked construction of the proposed line.

Morton urged the lawmakers to adopt such legislation, and not to delay the Alaska line any longer, despite some suggestions that a Canadian pipeline route would be environmentally and economically better.

It would not be better, Morton wrote, and besides, Canadian spokesmen have indicated Canada would insist on conditions unacceptable to the United States, to allow the line across their territory.

Morton said North Slope oil, which would flow at a rate of two million barrels a day if the pipeline was in full operation, would help to slow the steady increase in the price of gasoline, heating oil and other petroleum products.

"I don't see any way the price of oil can go but up," Morton said. "The question is how fast it will go."

Six-Year Trend Fails, Food Prices Up Again

Times News Services

In March, a month during which food prices normally decline, meat, fish and poultry prices rose 2.2 per cent. This was 18 per cent higher than a year earlier, Statistics Canada reported today.

Pork prices are up 27 per cent over a year ago, poultry prices up 20 per cent and beef prices up 14 per cent pushing the cost of food consumed in the home up 11.3 per cent for the year. Restaurant meals have taken a 9.6 per cent jump.

A 5.9 per cent increase in housing helped push the consumer index up six per cent for the year to 145.7. Last year the index was 137.4 and in February it stood at 145.3.

The total food bill rose 4 per cent between February and March in marked contrast to the decreases between these two months for each of the past six years except 1971 when prices were rebounding after the end of a supermarket price war.

The usual decreases are caused by the influx of abundant vegetables from southern spring crops.

Fruit prices were up three per cent with higher charges in the price for bananas, and vegetable prices were narrowly higher despite lower prices for tomatoes and carrots.

Fresh milk prices rose 0.4 per cent with higher charges in a number of cities, including St. John's, Nfld., Charlottetown and Vancouver. Prices for bread and other baked goods also moved upwards slightly.

Reflecting a federal sales tax cut in the Feb. 19 budget, soft drinks showed a five-per cent decrease. There also were lower prices for coffee and tea, sugar, jelly powder and chocolate bars.

Egg prices took their usual dip at this time of year, when production increases, easing 5.3 per cent from February. But they still were 47 per cent higher than a year ago. The federal government paid farmers a bonus last spring to kill laying birds and reduce an egg surplus.

There were higher charges for new homes, for blame repair and for rents.

Prices for furniture and appliances moved upward despite sales on some items. Household textiles, dishes and cleaning supplies were more expensive and floor coverings, light bulbs and toilet paper a bit cheaper.

The transport index, representing 12 per cent of consumer spending, advanced 0.3 from 133.5 in February. It per cent to 133.9 in March from 133.5 in February. It was 132.8 a year ago.

New car prices were a bit below February but this was outweighed by higher repair and lubrication charges and higher prices for batteries.

INSURANCE FIRM FRAUD BIGGEST

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Equity Funding Corp. of America, battered by what may be the biggest fraud in the history of the insurance industry, declared bankruptcy Thursday by order of a federal judge.

State officials took control of a second subsidiary as insolvent.

Investigations into the activities of the insurance and mutual funds giant continued by state and federal agencies. Lawsuits were filed and the effect of "the Equity affair" was reportedly being felt on Wall Street.

"All we need to do in order to make this company able to meet its responsibilities is sell the movie rights to its activities," cracked Gleason L. Bayne, state insurance commissioner.

A federal judge has taken control of the parent firm and Payne's office has taken over one of its insurance subsidiaries, Equity Funding Life Insurance Co.

In Illinois, where the insurance company is chartered, state insurance investigators said they drilled open a Chicago bank safety deposit box that was supposed to contain more than $24 million in bonds listed by the company as security for its policies.

The box was empty.

The core of multiple fraud and theft charges by state and federal authorities, and civil suits, is the charge that the insurance company invented customers, fabricating policyholders who never existed.

The alleged bogus policies, which made the company appear far more prosperous than it was, were then sold to other insurance companies at least 15 of them for millions of dollars, investigators say.

In some cases, Equity Funding Life later reported the "policyholder" had died, and collected the insurance from the other companies to pass along to his "widow," investigators said.

U.S. Troops 'Not Needed'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Nguyen Van Thieu said Thursday that South Vietnam can cope with any level of Communist attack without calling for U.S. ground or air support.

"I am very confident that our army and our people are able to defend themselves against renewed aggression," he told a National Press Club luncheon.

Thieu pledged: "I can assure you of one thing: Never, never will I ask U.S. troops to come back to Vietnam."

Thieu expressed equal assurance, in only a slightly less categorical form, about his nation's ability to dispense with U.S. air support even in event of an all-out North Vietnamese offensive.

He was asked by newsmen, "can your government survive without U.S. air power?"

"Yes," replied Thieu.

There was one potentially significant qualification, however, on Thieu's disclaimers about any further requirement for U.S. military support.

"A takeover of Cambodia by the Communists," Thieu said, would be "the beginning of a new war."

In that event, said Thieu, the Vietnam peace accord "doesn't mean a thing."

His statements came as Communist troops launched an artillery barrage in the Mekong Delta and stepped up their shelling of Hue in the heaviest and most widespread fighting since the Vietnam truce.

Reports of the attacks came exactly one week after the last U.S. troops withdrew from South Vietnam.

One military source said the Communist activity was designed to find a weak spot in South Vietnamese defenses and prepare for a major offensive.

LANSDOWNE FIRE CLAIMS 11 HORSES

VANCOUVER (CP) — At least 11 race horses perished Thursday night when fire swept through a barn at Lansdowne Park in Richmond.

Robert Bruce, 42, gate keeper at the park, was taken to hospital with undetermined injuries after he was trampled by thoroughbreds fleeing the fire.

The barn, which contained about 35 horses, was reduced to a smoldering ruin within 30 minutes. Firemen said a strong wind kept the flames from spreading to four other barns, although horses stabled in them were turned free as a precaution.

Several hours after the blaze was extinguished, volunteers and SPCA workers were still rounding up horses.

There was no indication of how the fire started, and there was no estimate of the value of the race horses lost.

Food Dye Banned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The purple dye used for years to stamp grades on meat and to color everything from ice cream to pet foods has been banned by the U.S. government because new studies indicate it may cause cancer.

But the ban may force U.S. businesses and meat inspectors to fall back on a red dye suspected of interfering with reproduction.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration Thursday revoked its approval for Violet No. 1, the technical name of the dye which has been permitted for use in the United States for the last 22 years.

The ban is effective April 10. But the FDA said it would not recall products now on the market containing the dye or any made between now and then which are so colored.

A decision on whether to ban the purple dye in Canada will be made within the next few days, Dr. A. B. Morrison, deputy minister in charge of the health protection branch, said Thursday night in Ottawa.

Thirty-three tons of the color additive were used in the U.S. last year, 30 per cent of it by agriculture department inspectors stamping the mark of grade and wholesomeness on meat.

Industry mixed much of the remainder of Violet No. 1 with Red No. 40 as a substitute for Red No. 2, linked in recent Russian studies to widespread reproductive problems.

The FDA said it was basing its Violet No. 1 ban on preliminary data from two Japanese studies made available in late January.

SILVER COIN EXPORT BAN

OTTAWA (UPI) — Finance Minister John Turner announced Thursday that Canadian silver coins were being placed on the export control list to stop the practice of smuggling them to the United States and melting them down for profit.

Recent increases in the U.S. price of silver encouraged many people to buy Canadian coins minted before 1968, take them to the United States and melt them for silver. Four Canadian quarters contain about $1.50 worth of silver.

S. Viet Food Chain Contaminated

By MORTON MINTZ

WASHINGTON (WP) — Defoliation in South Vietnam has contaminated the food chain with a chemical that causes birth defects in animals, two Harvard University scientists have disclosed.

They said that, by using a sensitive new method, they detected the chemical in shrimp and in five species of fish taken from four widely separated sites in South Vietnam.

The chemical, Dioxin, is almost unrivalled in its power to deform the offspring of animals that ingest it in even tiny amounts. Its most common effects are cleft palate and kidney defects.

Studies of a possible link between defoliation and human birth deformities of any kind have been inconclusive.

Dioxin is always present as a contaminant of 2, 4, 5-T, a herbicide that, in turn, is an ingredient of a defoliant known as Agent Orange.

In South Vietnam between 1962 and 1970, military pilots mostly Americans, but including some South Vietnamese — sprayed nearly five million acres with Agent Orange containing about 90 million pounds of 2, 4, 5-T.

In the United States, 2, 4, 5-T, Silvex and other herbicides contaminated by Dioxin are widely used to clear brush and weeds for rice and other food crops and for cattle grazing.

The Harvard scientists, Robert Baughman, a chemist, and Matthew Meselson, a geneticist, reported this week in Research Triangle Park, N.C., that their new detection method finds Dioxin in ratios as low as one part per trillion parts of body weight.

Using this method, Baughman and Meselson told a conference sponsored by the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences they examined samples of catfish, croaker, carp, sculpin, crayfish and shrimp.

They said they picked up Dioxin at levels up to 814 parts per trillion. A guinea pig swallowing substantially less, 600 ppt, has been shown to have only a 50-50 chance of surviving. Rats ingesting 125 to 500 ppt in daily oral doses produced offspring with deformities and intestinal hemorrhages.

These results led Meselson and Baughman to suggest that Dioxin "may have accumulated to biologically significant levels in food chains in some areas of South Vietnam, exposed to herbicide spraying."

Stupich Against Boycott

Consumer boycotts on meat are not a good idea and put meat producers in an "untenable economic position," Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said Thursday.

Stupich said consumers should consider the long-range effects of their actions on the price of farm products.

"I wish they would reconsider their position," he said of the "continent-wide meat boycott."

"The producer is still getting a very low income compared with almost everyone else in the community."

Stupich said the pressure on the meat producer generated by a boycott forces the market to rely more heavily on imports.

Exporting countries then have Canada at a disadvantage, he said.

The minister said he does not think the public is being gouged by retail meat dealers.

Stupich said cattlemen's incomes have not increased on the same scale as consumers in recent years. Only in the last year, he said, have cattlemen started receiving the same prices for their products that they did in 1951.

While the cattlemen's income has suffered, "the incomes of consumers have increased by leaps and bounds to the point that the purchasing power of consumers today is far higher than it was 22 years ago, he said."

Elsewhere, the United States 10th largest group of food stores announced it would roll back prices today, but most retail prices across the U.S. and Canada remained steady despite the meat boycott.

Meat prices dropped slightly on 11 mid-west markets Thursday, but meat industry employees remained the hardest hit by the boycott as it entered its sixth day. Patrick Gorman, secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, said the boycott had resulted in layoffs of an estimated 20,000 union members.

The Grand Union supermarkets, with more than 500 stores, say it would reduce prices on beef, pork, lamb and veal by at least 10 cents per pound beginning today.

In Ottawa, the agriculture department today predicted that people will buy "more meat than ever before" this spring.

The Happy Hookers Taking Over Our Universities

"Some Canadian intellectuals... have decried the results of Canada's ability to hire foreign scholars at short notice to teach its rapidly-expanding student body as a 'take-over of the mind.' It is true that foreign competition prevents third-rate Canadian academics from earning first-rate salaries, and also prevents them from managing second-rate departments in a fourth-rate way; but it is not at all clear that Canadian students would benefit from having their instruction monopolized by whatever rag-tag-and-bobtail can qualify itself as genuine Canadian."

So Harry G. Johnson, economist and pundit, told an audience at Carleton University in 1970.

Last week Carleton, its glut of punishment apparently unassuaged, invited the Johnson treatment once again — and received it, this time from the novelist and pundit Mordecai Richler. "Isn't it time the nationalists stopped declaring all things Canadian-made or owned intrinsically good, even inviolate, and started to go in for tougher distinctions, say — for openness — putting excellence in a professor before country of origin?"

We are in each case in the presence of a positing of false alternatives. Canadian universities do not face a choice between imported scholarly excellence and our own home-grown mediocrity. Nor do they face a choice between accepting U.S. technical assistance in higher education and a stagnating economy and torpid life of the mind.

We are in the presence, too, of men of straw. I know of no nationalist in this country who declares, or even comes close to declaring, all things Canadian-made or owned good — let alone inviolate.

Issues raised by the overpowering presence of so many Yanks of academe upon the campuses of Canada are far too grave for demagogic nationalist or continentalist. The issues affect the life, pursuit of happiness and even the liberty of the individuals concerned, the value and morale of the institutions in which they serve. They affect the careers of young and qualified Canadians. They affect the fulfillment of our nationhood.

There is, to begin with, the issue of the pre-emption of jobs. American scholars piled into the newly-created departments of newly-created universities during the boom years of the 1960s at a rate and on a scale which have left political science faculties in Canada made up of approximately 25 per cent U.S. nationals, sociology faculties in Canada made up of approximately 35 per cent U.S. nationals.

There is no ordinary technical assistance intended to tide us over a temporary shortage of skills and expertise, to be withdrawn when backward Canada attains the level of sophistication enjoyed by the American metropole. No, these newcomers came for the duration — the duration, that is to say, of their tenured careers. They did not expect, nor have they received, that "golden handshake" paid to departing colonial administrators on the completion of their civilizing missions. And they have brought their friends.

The result has been both stark and entirely predictable. "It seems safe to assume," writes Allan Kornberg and Allan Tharp in their valuable study of The American Impact on Canadian Political Science and Sociology, "if the expansion of Canadian universities generally and their graduate programs in particular slows, and the heavy recruitment of United States nationals continues, that the professional opportunities initially available to the products of Canadian graduate programs eventually will be considerably restricted." It is happening today.

There is the issue of the dilution of quality. "Putting excellence in a professor before country of origin" is all very well. But what is excellence in a professor?

The final Report of the Commission on Post-Secondary Education in Ontario attempts a definition: "To excel is to be better than everyone else. A centre of excellence is thus an organization or grouping of individuals which is better than similar groupings within its functional domain, whether this be architectural design, computer technology, English history, mathematics, or urban studies."

That's intended to be helpful, but does it get us very far? It's what's known as tautology — a definition that repeats what is meant to be defined and so falls short of definition. What is it "to be better than everyone else?" "It may be argued strongly," argues the Report not very strongly, "that the best people should be hired to instruct or administer, regardless of their national origins." But who are the best people? What makes them the best?

To ask such questions is to neither carp nor quibble. The Institute of Advanced Study at Princeton University — home to Einstein and to Oppenheimer, a "centre of excellence" if there ever was one — has been tearing itself apart over the prospective appointment of a scholar whose contributions to the sociological literature are regarded by some of his colleagues as the work of a genius, by just as many others as so much garbage. The squabble is symptomatic of the discredit and disarray into which modern social science has fallen, along with the humanities.

The cause of their fall from grace are complex — massive, funded research projects whose costs were exceeded only by their triviality, the vogue for "value-free" investigation, cults which tried to quantify the unquantifiable, institutes which drew leaders from their classrooms and drove their universities into ruin. All brought shame to the American academy, in time brought remorse.

But what shamed it most of all was the involvement of the U.S. educational elite as advisers to the U.S. government throughout the war in false alternatives

South-east Asia. "Everyone was going to Washington, and the word went out quickly around the Eastern seacoast, at the universities and in the political clubs, that the best men were going to Washington." The best and the brightest — the point of David Halberstam's book of that title being that those thought to possess the best and the brightest minds among America's intellectuals were those who let their country down.

Many U.S. academics in our midst today are exiles from these sad events. But many even among them have brought to us the caste of mind by which more than anything else those events were brought about — happy hookers in the world's youngest profession, the profession of social science.

There is, finally, the issue of national identity and the university's role in fostering it. If you think of our universities as places in which to baby-sit the counter-culture and buy off revolution, American baby-sitters will do as well as any. But if you think of them as "nurseries of a truly Canadian civilization and culture" — the words of the Massey Commission in 1951 — then you can no more expect and allow Americans to run our universities than we expect and allow them to run our foreign service or our armed forces.

American influence in Canadian universities has increased, is increasing, and ought to be diminished — as humanely and as tolerantly as wise administrators know how.

Double, Nothing On an Old Wager

THE PROVINCE

If the NDP government had paid out taxpayers' money to acquire its 79 per cent ownership of Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd., the deal would be a big political and financial risk than it already is.

Even so, it's a major gamble whose outcome will influence not only the future fortunes of the government but of the entire northwest sector of B.C.

But any attempts to assess the acquisition on strictly business or strictly ideological ground are doomed to deep difficulty.

For those unalterably opposed to further government intrusions into the economy, the company could never make enough money to overcome their objections.

For those who would assess every business prospect on short-term profit-and-loss basis, the Colceal deal will still look unattractive.

The lack of business attractiveness is easily deduced from the failure of any other companies to move in and take over the Colceal operations in the northwest.

It would be fatuous to argue that the government's ideology (it officially believes in a "mixed" economy) didn't play a part in making the people of B.C. involuntary shareholders in Colceal.

But it isn't fatuous to imagine a government of neutral or avidly free enterprise stripe putting itself into exactly the same situation for a short or medium term. Why would it do such a thing?

A simple enough reason would be to rescue the 2,700 jobs (and a few thousand other service industry jobs) that would be lost with the closure of the Colceal operations. Such a closure was a real possibility if Colceal couldn't get out of its troubles by other methods.

With those lost jobs would come a social tragedy for the northwest region, and with that would come major new costs and lost revenues for the government. So right from the start, the government had to take a bigger-than-business attitude.

The hopeful aspect of the Colceal deal is that a federal-provincial railway agreement may be near and with it a major railway spur line construction program that will reduce timber hauling costs that have plagued Colceal and other northwest forest companies.

With this development could come new sawmills that would provide a better timber-use balance for the whole region and particularly for Colceal. The company could reduce its use of whole logs for pulp production and rely more on the cheaper by-products of lumber mills.

Since this plan to help the northwest forest industry was originated in the former government's term, it would be wrong to describe it as a distinctively socialist subsidy designed to make the Colceal deal look good.

A further bit of perspective is that the former government was politically responsible for the rush to open up the northwest forest industry in advance of proper transportation facilities.

It's one thing to argue that the present government has no responsibility to take over the results of corporate errors such as those made by the Colceal parent, Celanese Corp. of New York, in getting involved in northwest B.C.

But it's quite another to argue that the NDP government is without responsibility for the mistakes of the former Social Credit administration, of which poor northern forest management was clearly one.

That's not to say the new government's rescue attempt won't itself fail. It's a political and financial gamble.

Political and financial gambles aren't new to B.C., however. Former premier W. A. C. Bennett took some whopping ones in hydro-electric power, railway and other industrial development policies. He had pretty good success.

The northwest forest industry promotion was one of Mr. Bennett's losing gambles. The new government has decided to do double or nothing on the wager.

No matter whether Colceal is privately or publicly owned, the people of all B.C. are deeply involved in the effort to put the northern forest industry on a sound footing.

Silence Won't Muffle N-Test Blast

'FRANCE HAS OBLIGATION TO SPEAK UP'

LE MONDE, Paris
An Editorial

France, announced the French ambassador in Canberra last week, is "very close to the point when testing nuclear bombs will not be necessary." Gabriel Van Laethem, the ambassador, speaking on Australian television, declined to say whether the French tests would go on for a few months or a few years.

His statement will do little to silence world protest — especially from nations around the Pacific — as the deadline for the next round of testing draws near. But at least the statement demonstrates added concern for meeting legitimate protest.

Last year, when a long-standing friend of France, Peru, threatened to break diplomatic relations, the French government thought it best to draw a thick veil over its testing program. That strategy paid off, for the countries which have the means to detect such tests joined in a conspiracy of silence.

France will probably be just as silent about its South Pacific testing program this year, and will be able to count on the same discretion once again. The United States, which has a few scores to settle with France, may well be tempted to pose a few obstacles. But the U.S. embassy in Paris has strongly advised Washington not to put atoms, currencies and trade in the same basket.

The policy of silence — effective only so long as France confines itself to conducting low-power tests — may be valid in the Eastern Pacific, but is far less so in the western part of the ocean. In Australia and New Zealand, where public opinion and a highly critical press lay down the law, the opposition to testing is all the stronger this year since Labor governments have been voted in at Canberra and Wellington, and they have been leading the protests themselves.

Diplomatic pressures and initiatives, street demonstrations, boycotts of French goods and French ships, the dispatch of a fleet to the testing area, a complaint to the World Court of Justice — everything will be undertaken "to counter" the French program.

It was to no avail that the French ambassador pointed out to his audience that they were "not really fair." In the last 13 years, France has conducted 23 atmospheric nuclear tests, 29 of them in the Pacific — as against 188 for the United States, 142 for the Soviet Union and 21 for Britain, many of them on Australian soil itself, and 11 for China, and never before triggered such indignation. Yet most of the other explosions were much more powerful.

Opponents of nuclear testing counter by saying that the misdeeds of one should not serve as an excuse for the others, and that the implications of these tests were not sufficiently known ten years ago, when all the powers, except China, suspended atmospheric testing. They also argue that the cumulative effect of the tests is to enhance the havoc they cause and that finally, the French are alone today in going about this rape or nature in an environment which does not belong to them.

One wonders, therefore whether the French government wouldn't stand to gain if it did a better job of telling the world what the limits of its program are. After all, Paris has no intention of following to the very end in the footsteps of the superpowers and acquiring an overkill capability as ruinous as it is useless.

If France does not think it appropriate to indicate when the tests would take place, it could at least state its objectives frankly, the time it needs to reach them, the size of the explosions it plans to set off and the extent of the fall-out likely to result. It should be clearly stated when and in what circumstances it hopes to put an end to the tests and what it will cost to the people of France. Frenchmen, at least as much as Australians, have a right to know.

What Price Contentment?

By BARRY NORMAN
Manchester Guardian

The Institute of Life Insurance in New York has announced that married men are healthier, longer-lived, and more contented than single men — an outrageous statement that must be treated with the deepest skepticism.

Quite clearly the whole thing is blatant propaganda dreamed up by the wife of some insurance chief after her husband's unmarried friend had come to dinner in a Lamborghini, with a showgirl on each arm.

"Gee," the insurance chief doubtless muttered wistfully as the guests departed, in search of wicked and delicious pleasures, "old Hank sure has a great time." Whereupon his wife handed him the wiping-up cloth, saying firmly: "Homer, Hank has no idea how discontented he really is."

The next day the entire Institute of Life Insurance was driven into action, drawing up a report designed to prove to Hank (and most of all to Homer) that married men have got it made and they'd better believe it.

Hence, of course, the statistics. Statistics are endlessly impressive and very hard to challenge. Nevertheless I suggest we look closely at those provided by the Institute of Life Insurance. What they claim (and I think I've got this right) is that married men are five times more contented than single ones. Aha, you ask, how can anyone measure contentment?

Well, I'll tell you: an investigator from the Institute of Life Insurance inveigles himself into the home of a married man and, after tossing down a few lobs to find his length, delivers himself of a vicious, top-spirited, "Would you, sir," he asks, "say you were less contented, as contented or more contented than a single man?"

Naturally, the unhappy victim attempts to play this one with his pads, knowing that the implacable, blue-nosed fielder crouching there at forward short-leg will snatch up anything that comes off the edge of his bat. "Ah, yes," he says, "Well... Hrmph. Er... I would say I was quite as contented as a single man. Aren't I, my dear?"

The fielder shuffles in closer. "More contented, my love," she says. Of course, he sees the danger and jabs his bat down defensively. "Oh, yes, quite, to be sure. That's what I meant — more contented. Isn't that right, my precious?"

"Much more contented, my sweet."

"Yes, yes, certainly. Much more contented, much, much, much more. Wouldn't you say so, my darling?"

"I'd say, my dearest, that you were at least five times more contented than any single man."

"Right, right! Of course. That's precisely what I was trying to say. Put me down, will you, as being five times more contented than any single man?"

Commenting on this report, an insurance spokesman in London, an obvious married man who, on his wife's instructions, had glibly swallowed the entire findings, said that married men enjoyed these benefits because "they're cared for in their homes."

Oh, really? By whom? A married man who lives not a million miles from where I sit was phoned at 9.30 the other morning by a bachelor friend who apologized gravely for disturbing him so early in the day.

"That's all right," said the married one. "I've been up since seven."

"Seven?" said the bachelor. "Whatever for?" "Well, it was half-past six, actually. I got the tea, you know. For my wife and daughters. And fed the dog and cats. Then I went back to bed and had a lie-in till seven."

"Good grief," said the bachelor, remorsefully, "I must be interrupting your breakfast." "No, no," said his friend. "I got the breakfast ages ago. I'm just washing up now."

"Look here," said the bachelor, "assuming your incredible story to be true, the rest of the day is surely your own?"

"Oh, yes," said the married man. "Until I get home from work, of course. Then I have to get the meal. For myself, you know, my wife, my mother-in-law... Anyone who's about, really."

You find this hard to believe? It's true. Furthermore, the wife of this married man has just informed him that his experience confirms the discoveries of the Institute of Life Insurance.

Being up betimes, she says, keeps him healthy and long-lived, and being so incredibly busy that his feet hardly touch the ground leaves him no time for such luxuries as discontentment and wondering what he's missing.

Incidentally, the institute's report also says that married women are healthier, longer-lived, and more contented than single ones. Very probably. But how much healthier, longer-lived, and contented are they than married men? Has any institute the courage to tell us that?

On the Agony of a Man About to Give Praise

It's been a week of playing God, you might say, since I have been agonizing as a judge over some of the best Canadian writing and performing achievements of 1972, and it is nothing if not exhausting.

When the Media Club of Canada asked me to judge the best British Columbia magazine writing of the year and the Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists asked me to serve on the judging panel for the national ACTRA awards I thought it not merely an honor — kaff! kaff! — but a breeze. In almost any kind of competition there's usually one champion who stands above the rest. I would just look for that one, I thought, and Bob's your uncle.

It was not to be. When you realize that it's within your power to bestow some public recognition on someone who has created something — and, equally importantly, the realization that you will be denying all the others public recognition by making them also-rans — that responsibility becomes very nearly an intolerable burden.

I am not at all sure, in fact, if such awards should be made at all since they rely so much on the personal prejudices of the judges and since creative work such as writing or acting very seldom invites direct comparison. In the magazine writing section, for example, at least three of the five finalists are superb craftsmen. Who the hell was I to make a choice?

What weighed on my mind, too, in this week of trying to make it up, was the knowledge of how much sweat and secret, lonely work, how much uncertainty and brain-wracking, how much weary groping, went into the work that, completed, seems so effortless and easy. I know it to be true of writing and I suspect it is true of every creative effort that it's hard work that pays off. Dare I use the example of the iceberg? No I don't.

One of the more enduring myths, it seems to me, is that masterpieces are the result of a natural talent. I concede that, often, there is an inclination that takes boys and girls into the field for which they've an affinity. But the examples I have before me of works that can be called outstanding are the products of men and women who have learned their trade, just as a carpenter or doctor or a bricklayer has learned. The creative juices rarely flow. They are more often squeezed.

Another of the lasting myths is that creative people are motivated by ego. That may appear true on the surface. Whatever his speciality, the artist has no way of judging the worth or acceptance of his work except through the beholder. That probably is why these awards are so eagerly sought by the entrants. They want and need confirmation that what they've done is worthwhile or better. They need praise not for praise, itself, but simply as a spur to move onward.

The fact is that truly creative work is more often ego-destroying than it is ego-building. I know at least two Canadians who are tops in their fields — each widely assumed to be flaming egotists — who have had to fight an inner insecurity about their work through their careers.

It is a curse that grows through the years for the reason that writers or actors or artists become increasingly self-critical, setting themselves impossible goals of perfectionism, concerned deeply that the vitality or enthusiasm they brought to their earlier work has gone with the years. That fear may lead to an even greater need for reassurance that may seem egotistic. Whatever measure of success there's been in the past, continuing self-confidence remains the most elusive and necessary of attitudes.

I suppose that's why I've been so curiously hesitant and uncertain in coming to the decisions that are now irrevocable. I am mighty pleased for the winners, but I hope that the losers will have the good sense to know there'll be another day, another judge.

Reorganized Bus System To Start Off Debt Free

By WAYNE HARDING Times Staff

Reorganized transit systems for Greater Victoria and Greater Vancouver can start off next year debt free, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said in a policy statement issued today.

Besides taking over the amortized debt charges, which have been accumulated by B.C. Hydro's transportation division, the province will "underwrite 100 per cent of the capital cost of these surface bus systems," Lorimer said.

Debt charges to these systems amount to approximately $2.5 million annually, a spokesman for the minister's office said.

Existing legislation enables the province to pick up 50 per cent of the operating deficits of transit systems — but such grants have not been made since the enabling act, brought in by the former Social Credit government, was passed in March 1972.

Lorimer said today discussions with the Greater Vancouver and Capital Regional Districts to determine "their share of the annual operating deficit" of the systems is continuing.

The spokesman for the minister's office said there is an opinion widely held that the department has proposed that the operating costs be met by levying of a two mill property tax within the two regional districts. This is not true, he said. Rather, in the course of discussions with the Greater Vancouver Regional District, the department had suggested that operating budgets not be limited by the amounts that could be raised by one mill levy — the amount originally proposed.

ARENA FEE HIKES URGED

City finance committee agreed Thursday to recommend to council increases in rental rates and admission charges at Memorial Arena and McPherson Playhouse.

Jack Morgan, director of recreation and community services, recommended in a letter that public skating charges at the arena go up 10 cents.

Present rates, in existence for the last five years, are 60 cents for adult admission, 40 cents for students, 15 cents for tiny tots and 65 cents for Friday night skating.

He also recommended increases for skating parties, pro hockey training camp, building rentals, community rates, property rentals and roller skating.

Major changes recommended for McPherson Playhouse are increased charge for rehearsals and limitation of the half-house rental and also to include Sunday in the mid-week rates and Friday in the weekend rates. Increases vary between a low of $15 and a high of $150.

Resignation Threat By Ambulance Men

By LINDA HUGHES Times Staff

Employees of Garden City Ambulance Ltd., sent an ultimatum to Victoria city council today threatening to withdraw their services Monday if they are not granted an emergency meeting with Mayor Peter Pollen.

The ultimatum came after the announcement Thursday that a new ambulance service, operated jointly by the city and Victoria General Hospital, will take over the city's emergency service contract July 1.

Garden City Ambulance has served the city since 1968 and its contract expires June 30. "All we want to do is meet with the mayor and talk about this," said Ed Pfeifle, one of nine employees with the firm.

"CONCERNED" "We want to find out exactly what they're going to do. We're all concerned about our jobs."

"They're proposing to use nursing orderlies," Pfeifle said. "Those fellows are already working and are not qualified to drive ambulances. We have the experience and with added training we could do the job."

The city plan, which is regarded as an interim measure pending development of a regional ambulance service under direction of the provincial government, calls for one emergency vehicle. Victoria General will train a staff of six to man the ambulance, which will serve other city hospitals as well and the city will pay their salaries.

Mayor Pollen said he wouldn't give an exact estimate of the cost to the city for the new service but added it would be "in the vicinity of $100,000 a year."

"RIDICULOUS" Garden City president B. J. Knezauskas said the city plan is "ridiculous" and he intends to make a representation to city council.

He said his firm charges the city $60,000 a year and provides two ambulances and nine employees while the new scheme will provide only one ambulance and six employees for $100,000.

"One ambulance just isn't enough," said Lynn Klein, member of the Canadian Ambulance Ad-hoc Committee, now working on an extensive study of ambulance service for the provincial government.

Klein's 160-page committee report will be presented to the government in two weeks.

"If the one ambulance breaks down, who will back it up?" Klein asked. "And would the back-up team have the same equipment and the same expertise that the city advocates?"

"If Victoria is considering using the Spanish service for their back-up — Spanish is already thinking they need another vehicle, because they are so over-worked."

Klein's committee's research shows that "use of dual-personnel is not in the best interests of providing optimum ambulance service."

He said a city of Victoria's size needs a "full time, highly trained ambulance personnel."

Klein said city council previously had considered letting the fire department provide ambulance service.

"We (this committee) convinced them not to set-up his dual function but now this proposal is the same thing."

Ald. Percy Frampton said today he had read the ultimatum and it "was not a very nice letter. I'm very unhappy about it."

Frampton said the city was dealing "directly with the company, not the employees. What they want to do is up to them, but we'll still hold the company to its contract."

"And that's the way it should be. The employees have nothing to do with it."

The new ambulance service plan goes before city council Thursday for approval but Pollen said approval was assured because aldermen had been kept informed on progress of the matter and had all expressed approval.

SUITE GRASS BITTER IN EYES OF LAW

Eight spring plants found in a Victoria home netted a young couple $200 in fines in Victoria provincial court today.

Kenneth Gordon Berryman, 21, and Delver Marie Connors, both of 2217 Chambers, pleaded guilty to a joint charge of possession of eight marijuana plants.

The couple's illegal horticultural efforts were discovered Thursday night, after police forcibly entered their home.

People Will Have to Leave Their Cars at Home: Lorimer

Like it or not, city-dwellers in British Columbia may have to take the bus to work within the next five years, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer feels.

"There is only a limited amount that can be done to create enough road capacity for the private auto to move freely about in the urban centres of Greater Vancouver and Greater Victoria," he said Friday following publication of his first major policy statement on transit.

"We can see this point being reached — perhaps as early as five years time."

"We as individuals may not wish to take the bus, but we may well have no alternative. With this situation in mind, we are planning for an attractive and efficient system of bus routes, and we are also considering other form of public transportation."

What about mono-rails? It's been proposed, said the minister, but "we are not ready to be sold any kind of system, other than buses, at the present time."

"We are seriously looking at light rapid transit systems which are a modern version of the street car."

What about rail transit? "Some existing rail lines will be useful for light rapid transit, and also for commuter train runs. We are also interested in inter-regional passenger transit such as on the

B.C. Rail and the National lines."

How will the citizen react to being denied travel in his own car?

"Recent experience in Canadian and United States cities with improvements to public transportation have shown that people will use an attractive, speedy system when one is provided."

"It is important for us to promote and develop these kinds of services."

NIXON ORDERS PUSH ON PIPE

Times News Services

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. — President Nixon Thursday ordered Secretary of the Interior Rogers Morton to go "all out" to clear the way for construction of the Trans-Alaska oil pipeline.

Morton said after a 45-minute meeting with the President that every effort would be made to get legislation through Congress this summer authorizing him to grant the necessary rights-of-way for pipeline construction from the North Slope of Alaska to Valdez, an ice-free port 700 miles to the south.

Morton Thursday sent all Congressmen a letter, strongly arguing that it is the nation's best interests to build the pipeline across Alaska, without waiting for further consideration of an alternative route through Canada.

Congress currently is considering legislation to ease a 1920 limitation of pipeline right-of-way across federal land, whose application in the federal courts has blocked construction of the proposed line.

Morton urged the lawmakers to adopt such legislation, and not to delay the Alaska line any longer, despite some suggestions that a Canadian pipeline route would be environmentally and economically better.

It would not be better, Morton wrote, and besides, Canadian spokesmen have indicated Canada would insist on conditions unacceptable to the United States, to allow the line across their territory.

Morton said North Slope oil, which would flow at a rate of two million barrels a day if the pipeline was in full operation, would help to slow the steady increase in the price of gasoline, heating oil and other petroleum products.

"I don't see any way the price of oil can go but up," Morton said. "The question is how fast it will go."

Bell
Hike Stayed

OTTAWA (CP) — Following a week of strong political and consumer pressure, the minority Liberal government announced today it has suspended a Canadian Transport Commission decision granting rate increases to Bell Canada.

It was the first time since the commission was formed in 1967 that one of its decisions has been suspended. No decision has been modified or cancelled.

Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier said the cabinet decided on the suspension so it can complete its review of the CTC decision and get clarification from the commission on "some vital points surrounding the decision that need explanation."

He did not elaborate. No time limit was given.

Conservative and New Democrat spokesmen welcomed the announcement, although Social Credit Leader Real Caouette called it interference with private enterprise.

CALLED FOR HALT

In Montreal, a Bell Canada spokesman said the company had no immediate comment to make on the government's decision to suspend rate increases.

"We don't know what points the government wants clarified. We don't have enough information to go on at the moment."

New Democrat Leader David Lewis obtained a special Commons debate on the issue Monday and called for a halt to "monopolistic gouging" of the public by Bell Canada.

SILVER COIN
EXPORT BAN

OTTAWA (UPI) — Finance Minister John Turner announced Thursday that Canadian silver coins were being placed on the export control list to stop the practice of smuggling them to the United States and melting them down for profit.

Recent increases in the U.S. price of silver encouraged many people to buy Canadian coins minted before 1968, take them to the United States and melt them for silver. Four Canadian quarters contain about $1.50 worth of silver.

U.S. Troops
'Not Needed'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said Thursday that South Vietnam can cope with any level of Communist attack without calling for U.S. ground or air support.

"I am very confident that our army and our people are able to defend themselves against renewed aggression," he told a National Press Club luncheon.

Thieu pledged: "I can assure you of one thing: Never, never will I ask U.S. troops to come back to Vietnam."

Thieu expressed equal assurance, in only a slightly less categorical form, about his nation's ability to dispense with U.S. air support even in event of an all-out North Vietnamese offensive.

He was asked by newsmen, "can your government survive without U.S. air power?"

"Yes," replied Thieu.

There was one potentially significant qualification, however, on Thieu's disclaimers about any further requirement for U.S. military support.

"A takeover of Cambodia by the Communists," Thieu said, would be "the beginning of a new war."

In that event, said Thieu, the Vietnam peace accord "doesn't mean a thing."

His statements came as Communist troops launched an artillery barrage in the Mekong Delta and stepped up their shelling of Hue in the heaviest and most widespread fighting since the Vietnam truce.

Reports of the attacks came exactly one week after the last U.S. troops withdrew from South Vietnam.

One military source said the Communist activity was designed to find a weak spot in South Vietnamese defenses and prepare for a major offensive.

INSURANCE FIRM FRAUD BIGGEST

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Equity Funding Corp. of America, battered by what may be the biggest fraud in the history of the insurance industry, declared bankruptcy Thursday by order of a federal judge.

State officials took control of a second subsidiary as insolvent.

Investigations into the activities of the insurance and mutual funds giant continued by state and federal agencies. Lawsuits were filed and the effect of "the Equity affair" was reportedly being felt on Wall Street.

"All we need to do in order to make this company able to meet its responsibilities is sell the movie rights to its activities," cracked Gleason L. Payne, state insurance commissioner.

A federal judge has taken control of the parent firm and Payne's office has taken over one of its insurance subsidiaries, Equity Funding Life Insurance Co.

In Illinois, where the insurance company is chartered, state insurance investigators said they drilled open a Chicago bank safety deposit box that was supposed to contain more than $24 million in bonds listed by the company as security for its policies.

The box was empty.

The core of multiple fraud and theft charges by state and federal authorities, and civil suits, is the charge that the insurance company invented customers, fabricating policyholders who never existed.

The alleged bogus policies, which made the company appear far more prosperous than it was, were then sold to other insurance companies — at least 15 of them — for millions of dollars, investigators say.

In some cases, Equity Funding Life later reported the "policyholder" had died, and collected the insurance from the other companies to pass along to his "widow," investigators said.

WASHINGTON (WP) — Defoliation in South Vietnam has contaminated the food chain with a chemical that causes birth defects in animals, two Harvard University scientists have disclosed.

LANSDOWNE
FIRE CLAIMS
11 HORSES

VANCOUVER (CP) — At least 11 race horses perished Thursday night when fire swept through a barn at Lansdowne Park in Richmond.

Robert Bruce, 42, gatekeeper at the park, was taken to hospital with undetermined injuries after he was trampled by thoroughbreds fleeing the fire.

The barn, which contained about 35 horses, was reduced to a smoldering ruin within 30 minutes. Firemen said a strong wind kept the flames from spreading to four other barns, although horses stabled in them were turned free as a precaution.

Several hours after the blaze was extinguished, volunteers and SPCA workers were still rounding up horses.

There was no indication of how the fire started, and there was no estimate of the value of the race horses lost.

Food
Dye Banned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The purple dye used for years to stamp grades on meat and to color everything from ice cream to pet foods has been banned by the U.S. government because new studies indicate it may cause cancer.

But the ban may force U.S. businesses and meat inspectors to fall back on a red dye suspected of interfering with reproduction.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration Thursday revoked its approval for Violet No. 1, the technical name of the dye which has been permitted for use in the United States for the last 22 years.

The ban is effective April 10. But the FDA said it would not recall products now on the market containing the dye or any made between now and then which are so colored.

A decision on whether to ban the purple dye in Canada will be made within the next few days, Dr. A. B. Morrison, deputy minister in charge of the health protection branch, said Thursday night in Ottawa.

Thirty-three tons of the color additive were used in the U.S. last year, 30 per cent of it by agriculture. Department inspectors stamping the mark of grade and wholesomeness on meat.

Industry mixed much of the remainder of Violet No. 1 with Red No. 40 as a substitute for Red No. 2, linked in recent Russian studies to widespread reproductive problems.

The FDA said it was basing its Violet No. 1 ban on preliminary data from two Japanese studies made available in late January.

In March, a month during which food prices normally decline, meat, fish and poultry prices rose 2.2 per cent. This was 18 per cent higher than a year earlier, Statistics Canada reported today.

Pork prices are up 27 per cent over a year ago, poultry prices up 20 per cent and beef prices up 14 per cent pushing the cost of food consumed in the home up 11.3 per cent for the year. Restaurant meals have taken a 9.6 per cent jump.

A 5.9 per cent increase in housing helped push the consumer index up six per cent for the year to 145.7. Last year the index was 137.4 and in February it stood at 145.3.

The total food bill rose 4 per cent between February and March in marked contrast to the decreases between these two months for each of the past six years except 1971 when prices were rebounding after the end of a supermarket price war.

The usual decreases are caused by the influx of abundant vegetables from southern spring crops.

Fruit prices were up three per cent, despite a decline in the price for bananas, and vegetable prices were narrowly higher despite lower prices for tomatoes and carrots.

Fresh milk prices rose 0.4 per cent with higher charges in a number of cities, including St. John's, Nfld., Charlottetown and Vancouver. Prices for bread and other baked goods also moved upwards slightly.

Reflecting a federal sales tax cut in the Feb. 19 budget, soft drinks showed a five-per cent decrease. There also were lower prices for coffee and tea, sugar, jelly powder and chocolate bars.

Egg prices took their usual dip at this time of year, when production increases, easing 5.3 per cent from February. But they still were 47 per cent higher than a year ago. The federal government paid farmers a bonus last spring to kill laying birds and reduce an egg surplus.

There were higher charges for new homes, for home repair and for rents.

Prices for furniture and appliances moved upward despite sales on some items.

Household textiles, dishes and cleaning supplies were more expensive and floor coverings, light bulbs and toilet paper a bit cheaper.

The transport index, representing 12 per cent of consumer spending, advanced 0.3 from 133.5 in February. It per cent to 133.9 in March from 133.5 in February. It was 132.8 a year ago.

New car prices were a bit below February but this was outweighed by higher repair and lubrication charges and higher prices for batteries.

Stupich said the pressure on the meat producer generated by a boycott forces the market to rely more heavily on imports.

Exporting countries then have Canada at a disadvantage, he said.

The minister said he does not think the public is being gouged by retail meat dealers.

Stupich said cattlemen's incomes have not increased on the same scale as consumers in recent years. Only in the last year, he said, have cattlemen started receiving the same prices for their products that they did in 1951.

While the cattlemen's income has suffered, the incomes of consumers have increased by leaps and bounds to the point that the purchasing power of consumers today is far higher than it was 22 years ago, he said.

Elsewhere, the United States 10th largest group of food stores, announced it would roll back prices today, but most retail prices across the U.S. and Canada remained steady despite the meat boycott.

Meat prices dropped slightly on 11 mid-west markets Thursday, but meat industry employees remained the hardest hit by the boycott as it entered its sixth day. Patrick Gorman, secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, said the boycott had resulted in layoffs of an estimated 20,000 union members.

The Grand Union supermarkets, with more than 500 stores, say it would reduce prices on beef, pork, lamb and veal by at least 10 cents per pound beginning today.

In Ottawa, the agriculture department today predicted that people will buy "more meat than ever before" this spring.

Stupich said consumers should consider the long-range effects of their actions on the price of farm products.

"I wish they would reconsider their position," he said of the continent-wide meat boycott.

"The producer is still getting a very low income compared with almost everyone else in the community."

to deform the offspring of animals that ingest it in even tiny amounts. Its most common effects are cleft palate and kidney defects.

Studies of a possible link between defoliation and human birth deformities of any kind have been inconclusive.

Dioxin is always present as a contaminant of 2, 4, 5-T, a herbicide that, in turn, is an ingredient of a defoliant known as Agent Orange.

In South Vietnam between 1962 and 1970, military pilots mostly Americans, but including some South Vietnamese — sprayed nearly five million acres with Agent Orange containing about 90 million pounds of 2, 4, 5-T.

In the United States, 2, 4, 5-T, Silvex and other herbicides contaminated by Dioxin are widely used to clear brush and weeds for rice and other food crops and for cattle grazing.

The Harvard scientists, Robert Baughman, a chemist, and Matthew Meselson, a geneticist, reported this week in Research Triangle Park, N.C., that their new detection method finds Dioxin in ratios as low as one part per trillion parts of body weight.

Using this method, Baughman and Meselson told a conference sponsored by the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences they examined samples of catfish, croaker, carp, sculpin, crayfish and shrimp.

They said they picked up Dioxin at levels up to 814 parts per trillion. A guinea pig swallowing substantially less, 600 ppt, has been shown to have only a 50-50 chance of surviving. Rats ingesting 125 to 500 ppt in daily oral doses produced offspring with deformities and intestinal hemorrhages.

These results led Meselson and Baughman to suggest that Dioxin "may have accumulated to biologically significant levels in food chains in some areas of South Vietnam exposed to herbicide spraying."

Laugh-In's Goldie in New Film

By DAN LEWIS

SAN ANTONIO — The scene is a used-car lot off a main highway, and it is fairly evident that a movie is being shot. Everyone knows Goldie Hawn is starred and the people come out to watch her.

They are startled, because they see her in worn dungarees and makeup that indicates a head wound. And they see her toting a rifle. It's so unlike Goldie, the dizzy blonde of Laugh-In fame, an Academy Award winner in her first film (Cactus Flower).

They're working on a shoot-out scene in a picture titled The Sugarland Express. Goldie plays a young mother who, along with her husband (played by Bill Atherton), holds a highway patrolman (Michael Sachs) hostage because authorities have taken her child and won't return the infant.

Unzipped

Director Steve Spielberg yells, "We're rolling," and gun shots sound off, the trailer door opens and Goldie, clutching the rifle, jumps out.

As she jumps, the snap unexpectedly pops open on her dungarees. The fly zipper starts to unzip, and the pants start to drop. Plain to see by Goldie's embarrassed expression, this is not part of the scene.

"My pants are falling," Goldie exclaims as she crouches to keep them from dropping further. An aide rushes over to grab the rifle so Goldie can clutch her drooping dungarees, laughing hysterically now along with the others.

That's the Goldie audiences know, and love.

A few minutes later the scene is done properly and Goldie gets work respite. So, now we're sitting in her trailer dressing room. I start to ask her a question, and she leans over and says, "Huh...?"

Candid

Then she remembers she has plugs in her ears, and removes them.

I never had experience with guns," she explains. "That's the problem. My nervous system is very sensitive to noise. I used to go crazy in New York."

There's a lot of shooting in this film. So Goldie plugs her ears.

In her dressing room, she conducts a mini press conference with a handful of visiting press. She puts aside her cross-stitching, on which she's embroidering. "The most wasted day is that one which you have not laughed."

The public knows her as the

somewhat dizzy blonde, but she is expressive, and sensitive, and frequently her emotions emerge. She talks candidly about her career, the successes, the fun — even the disappointments.

Yes, the disappointments, like not being nominated this year for an Academy Award. She thought she deserved a nomination for Best Actress for her role in Butterflies Are Free.

She has a strange reaction to her first Academy Award. "If I had won it now," she asserted, "I'd have appreciated it more. I wasn't in the motion-picture business then (when she won the Oscar for Cactus Flower). I only had done one picture."

She says she now has the same reaction when she reflects upon her Laugh-In days.

"It's mind boggling. I see the tapes of those shows now, and I see I was important on that show. I didn't see it when I was doing the show," she observed. "If I lived on the level of a big star, I'd probably kill myself in the end. I can't maintain it (the star image). It's a world of fantasy, and I don't live it. I live in reality.

This is a Goldie Hawn the outside world rarely gets to observe. They expect giggles and cute actions, nothing more meaningful in conversation than the condition of the weather, or of the days when she was a chorus girl in Vegas.

Time Off

Perched on top of the kitchen bar in her trailer, she unravelled an ace bandage from both knees, explaining it protected them from splintered glass and ground scrapings. She had to do a lot of crawling in this scene.

The Sugarland Express is her first film in nearly a year. She took the time off because she and her husband bought a house, and she wanted time to fix it without an interior decorator. Her kitchen is early American Indian, she disclosed, and her office in the house is decorated East Indian style. She says each room in the house gives her a different feeling.

When Goldie finishes this picture, she's going back to Las Vegas, as a superstar with her name in huge letters.

She is putting an act together for a June engagement at the Las Vegas Hilton. "I don't remember the opening date, but I know I close July 4," she reported. "It will be musical comedy, 'hopefully personable.' Gladys Knight and the Pips, popular rock act, will be the supporting act on the bill."

Complicated

"I love to sing," Goldie declared. "My most favorite thing is singing."

She recalled years ago (not really that many) she was in the backup group (chorus) for Diosa Costello and later in the Vegas chorus line.

"Actually, my main dream in those days was to work a lot, and mainly interested in finding a man and getting married."

"Then my life got considerably complicated," she reflected. It sure did. There was Laugh-In, movies and an Oscar.

Was the Oscar the most important thing in her life?

"Not more important than the trophy a man gave me recently in New York," she revealed. "This man from Brooklyn waited three hours outside the studio (while she was taping an appearance on Jack Paar's show) to give me the trophy. It was inscribed, 'To the Best Actress in the World'."

That left a deep impression on Goldie.

Divorce: American Style (xxxx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. This 1967 comedy is one of the very few deft satires produced by the U.S. film industry. Directed by Bud Yorking, it casts a perceptive eye on the American institution of marriage in suburbia and stars Debbie Reynolds, Dick Van Dyke, Jean Simmons and Jason Robards.

The Stogie (xx), on 5 at 3:30. A 1952 Dean Martin-Jerry Lewis comedy-drama.

Betrayed (xx), on 7 at 3:30. Clark Gable, Victor Mature and Lana Turner star in this 1953 spy melodrama set in Holland.

The Road to Hong Kong (xxx), on 12 at 7. The latest (1961) and probably the last of the "Road" comedies starring Bob Hope, Bing Crosby with a brief appearance by Dorothy Lamour. An excellent supporting cast includes Robert Morley, Joan Collins and last but not least, Peter Sellers.

The World in His Arms (xxx), on 13 at 7. A rugged, romantic 1952 adventure with old-fashioned escapes, rescues, brawls and love scenes set in 1850 San Francisco and Alaska. A good cast includes Gregory Peck, Ann Blyth and Anthony Quinn.

Warpath (xx), on 11 at 8. Routine 1951 "cowboys and Indians" yarn starring Edmond O'Brien and Polly Bergen.

Situation Hopeless - But Not Serious (xx), on 4 at 9. A gentle Second World War farce about two GIs who parachute into Germany and become prisoners of a kindly but eccentric shopkeeper. Starring in this 1965 comedy are Alec Guinness, Michael Connors and Robert Redford.

The Secret War of Harry Frigg (xx), on 5 at 9. Paul Newman plays a Second World War private and part-time escape artist who is asked to perform a dangerous mission in this 1963 comedy.

Kansas Raiders (xx), on 13 at 11. Jesse James and other outlaws join up with the infamous Quantrill raiders in this 1950 western drama that stars Audie Murphy and Brian Donlevy.

Harpy (x), on 7 and 12 at 11:30. A dreary made-for-TV feature about an impossible woman who'll stop at nothing to win and woo back her ex-husband—who's about to remarry someone else. Starring in this 1971 drama are Hugh O'Brien and Elizabeth Ashley.

Suddenly, It's Spring (xx), on 2 at 11:50. Fred MacMurray and Paulette Goddard star in this 1947 comedy about a lawyer who wants to divorce his wife. She doesn't want to divorce him, and away we go.

Supergo Against Diabolus (x), on 6 at midnight. Italian-made adventure.

Suddenly, Last Summer (xxx), on 8 at midnight. One of Tennessee Williams' macabre one-act plays has been watered down and transferred into this effective 1960 movie starring Elizabeth Taylor, Montgomery Clift and Katherine Hepburn. The drama probes the violent and erotic aura surrounding the mysterious death of a fashionable poet.

The Lady From Peking (xx), on 13 at 12:45. A 1971 espionage tale about a reporter seeking an explosive diary covering events in China starring Carl Betz and Nancy Kwan.

Garbage to Gold On Nature of Things

Recycling, a universal process of nature, was essential to the earliest societies. Today, in North America, it offers a likely solution to a modern-day headache — garbage — and in the near future, may save us from the unhappy prospect of literally sinking in our own waste.

On Monday, April 9 at 10 p.m., CBC-TV's The Nature Of Things will examine the growing problem of garbage pollution in Canada, and look at feasible solutions, in Recycling: The Garbage Ouroboros, a half-hour exploration of modern uses of an age-old alchemist's dream: turning garbage into gold.

Produced by Milan Chvostek, the program draws its title from Ouroboros, the mythological tail-eating serpent, symbol of the unending cycle of nature and all being.

"The whole aim of recycling is to eliminate any such thing as waste, to re-use everything," comments Dr. Athelstan Spilhaus of the Woodrow Wilson International Centre for Scholars, Washington. "If you eliminate waste, you eliminate pollution."

Examined on the program are recycling projects in Ohio, Hamilton and Kingston, Ontario, and Calgary. In Hamilton, a SWARU — Solid Waste Reduction Unit — converts municipal waste into heat energy. First of its type in Canada, it creates its own power, with surplus steam available for industry. And in Kingston, Dr. R. H. Clark and Dr. J. H. Brown of Queen's University are designing a new type of reclamation plant, to turn waste into new resources.

In Calgary, the LIP-funded Project Recycling is being organized as a pilot project for the rest of Canada to follow. To date, it has recycled nearly 700,000 pounds of waste, and plans to expand, according to its director, Don Dixon.

Recycling: The Garbage Ouroboros was written for The Nature Of Things by Terry Alson, and directed by Milan Chvostek. Narrators are Harry Mannis and Corky Rawson.

National Geographic, on 7 and 12 at 8. Pursuing the legend of the American West as National Geographic's cameras follow modern-day cowboys breaking horses, branding cattle and enduring those long dreary cattle drives. Narrated by Leslie Nielsen. (60 mins.)

Hamlet, on 9 at 8. Nicol Williamson's portrayal of Hamlet launches Humanities Film Forum, a series of eight international productions. For this 1969 movie, Williamson (and director Tony Richardson) break away from classical interpretations, portraying less romantic Hamlet — an anti-hero, an angry young man who is intensely introspective, full of self-disgust and capable of great rage. (2½ hours.)

at 9. A generally amusing 1968 farce about marital infidelity and divorce in suburbania starring Dean Martin, Stella Stevens and Eli Wallach.

The Dangerous Days of Kiowa Jones (xx), on 12 at 9. Robert Horton and Diane Baker star in this 1966 western about a wandering cowboy who is deputized to bring in a killer.

The Magic Christian (xx), on 13 at 11. Peter Sellers plays the world's richest eccentric in the 1960 comedy that co-stars Ringo Starr and Raquel Welch.

Q: Why are we getting so many reruns so early in the year? And how can they call it a TV season when the reruns start coming with the first snow?—H.L.C.

A: It's a cost-cutting gimmick by the networks. They're sprinkling reruns through the season to make the fewer new episodes last longer.

Q: I want to know how old is the actor who plays Shaft and are there going to be any more Shaft movies? I think Shaft is the greatest.—B.B.D.

A: Richard Roundtree, who plays the role, is 30. And yes, the third in the series of Shaft films, Shaft in Africa, now is being made.

Q: They keep canceling better TV shows than Lucille Ball's, so please tell me why she goes on and on? Does she own CBS? I thought Ed Sullivan was going to die of old age, but Lucille is going to do it on stage herself.—T.K.

A: After 22 years of doing the same character in the same situations, Lucy still is getting the same ratings — high — she had two decades ago, and that translates to money. In short, if the audience would continue to tune in, CBS would exhibit her stuffed.

Q: Is Mia Farrow still active as an actress? I think she's great.—B.H.C.

A: She's in a position to pick and choose her roles, so she doesn't have to jump for parts. Her next big thing will be a remake of The Great Gatsby, in which she'll star with Robert Redford.

Q: Is Susan Raye any relation to Buck Owens?—R.J.

A: Merely his protegee.

Q: I wish Bob Denver could have haven't TV series. Things haven't been the same since Gilligan's Island went off.—H.D.P.

A: This is your lucky day. Denver and Forrest Tucker have made a pilot film for a spoof Western series and reports are it has a good chance to get on next fall.

Q: I would like to know how long actor John Wayne has been called Duke? My friends say since 1968 when he starred in True Grit. I say for about 10 years. Who is right?—D.G.

A: Neither. The 65-year-old actor, acquired that nickname when he was a child. His dog was named Duke. His playmates couldn't bring themselves to call him by his real first name, Marion, so they nicknamed him after his dog.

Q: I have had an argument with one of my sons about how old Nat King Cole was when he died. I say he was a little over 50. My son said he died an old man, 80 or better.—M.W.

A: Cole died on Feb. 15, 1965, at age 45.

Q: I would like to know if actor John Payne is dead or alive. Also, is actor Steve Cochran still around?—R.P.

A: Payne is alive and well.

Cochran died aboard his yacht several years ago while cruising with a teen-aged Mexican girl and her mother.

PBS Public Affairs Programs Doomed?

U.S. Administration and Ford Foundation Battle Over Funds

By RICHARD K. SHULL

When all the sound and fury in Washington and New York quiets, the nation may discover it has Nixonvision or Fordvision, but it appears public television, as we know it, may not survive.

As the spectacle now stands, the Nixon folks—the Corporation for Public Broadcasting dominated by his appointees are frantically trying to bury all traces of public affairs programs which were on the Public Broadcasting Service network.

And just as quickly, the Ford Foundation, guided in communications affairs by Fred Friendly and headed by McGeorge Bundy (of the Kennedy era) is resurrecting them.

The CPB shut off funds for Bill Moyers' Journal and William F. Buckley's Firing Line to squelch them. Ford said it would pay the tab to keep them on.

Other shows similarly are in balance with the CPB threatening to pull the rug and Ford standing by to catch them.

Now comes Phase II of the battle, with Henry Loomis, the fellow who said he never had seen a public TV show until President Nixon appointed him president of the CPB, threatening to withhold the network facilities from any programs which the CPB can't control.

Ford has countered to that, too, intimating it might create its own network. And that's not an idle gesture. In the past, Ford Foundation has pumped nearly a quarter-billion dollars into public television, including the first interconnections between the stations.

You'll note that so far everything in this has concerned the actions of a group of political theoreticians and a well-heeled private foundation.

So where do the viewers and the licensed broadcast stations which ultimately deliver the shows to the home receivers fit in?

Well, they're now in the process of grouping themselves into a single firm voice capable of loudly and clearly shouting, "Let's cut the comedy and get back to cases." The purpose of public television, after all and in event the CPB or any other special interest has forgotten, is to serve the public.

In the past public television has been like the Tower of Babel, with educational interests, Public Broadcasting Service interests, station interests, political lobbies, and a few loudmouths speaking for themselves, all shouting in one monumental jag of jargon.

President Nixon himself was the catalyst who brought the sorry situation into new focus last June when he gutted the budget for public television proposed by Congress.

There was a panic meeting among the public station operators at Scottsdale, Ariz., to try to determine a course of action to get out from under the thumb of presidential whim.

Out of it emerged Ralph Rogers, chairman of the board of the public TV station in Dallas and president of Texas Instruments (no small concern).

In the eight months since the Scottsdale meeting, Rogers, who has both the political and financial clout to make himself heard, has tackled the problem of creating a single cohesive voice for public television which will reach from the grass roots all the way to the halls of Washington.

Rogers favors the disbandment and elimination of the various contentious and quarrelsome units which have grown up in public television, replacing them with one new stratified organization.

At the top he'd have a supergroup of powerful people drawn from the boards of directors of the public TV stations. These would be men and women of sufficient economic and political power to stand eyeball to eyeball with the government officials.

In turn, they would be advised by a board of managers composed of station managers from the public stations.

And they in turn, it says here, would be responsive to the needs and desires of their viewing public.

Obviously, Rogers believes such an organization should be the logical group to make the decisions on what programs would or would not be fed out over a national public television network.

In short, the fans of public television, their station operators and board members, along with a financial assist from Ford Foundation, may be in a position to turn their backs on the President and his CPB and continue operating without any federal funds or interference.

NEW YORK — Now it is fireman who are going to be treated in a comedy series. NBC is preparing Kibee Hates Fitch for a 1973-74 half-hour skein, with Michael Bell and Chuck McCann on the respective title roles.

Schedule Switch Ups Ratings For Pop Music Duo

By LAWRENCE LAURENT
The Washington Post

This season began badly for The Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour. The comedy-variety series had been one of the big hits of last year's second season, leading to a re-discovery of the singing team by national publications. For several months, you could hardly pick up a magazine without an article on Sonny and Cher.

The good ratings of the spring, however, didn't follow in the autumn. Placed opposite Sanford and Son (NBC) and The Brady Bunch (ABC), The Sonny and Cher Show came in 52nd among the prime time programs. Nor did things improve much after the first ratings. By mid-October, the show was in 55th place, clearly a loser.

It picked up slightly, but the competition on Friday nights was too much. Friday, in terms of national TV audiences, is one of the toughest nights of the week. It tends to be very young and very old with the middle component taking the night out, away from TV.

The quality of the Sonny and Cher ratings would have brought immediate cancellation for many programs, but CBS executives have a particular fondness for this show. For one thing, it is a program that causes no trouble, and this is a prize attribute after all the trouble the network has had with such performers as the Smothers Brothers. There is rarely trouble, because the program is guided by Allan Blye and Chris Bearde, two exceptionally talented producers who have been through the "freedom" wars in television and who have learned that in all battles, whatever the merits, the eventual winners, like undertakers, are going to be networks.

Blye and Bearde list themselves among the nine writers who regularly turn out the material with which Cher puts down her husband. They have complete control over what is written and can decide whether a skit or even a particular joke is likely to offend either a network censor or, eventually, enough viewers to cause a protest.

Also important, Sonny and Cher tended to attract younger viewers, and CBS has long tended to be the network that attracted an older audience. Besides, Cher — if not Sonny — has the makings of a television super star.

Still another reason for the disinclination to kill the show is the ease with which the weekly shows are produced. The husband-and-wife team is "easy to handle," meaning that they show up on schedule, do what they are told and depart. After a year and a half, confided one of the aides on the show, "Sonny still doesn't know the name of a single member of the crew." Or, put another way: "Cher speaks only to Sonny and Sonny speaks only to Chris Bearde."

Instead of cancellation, CBS juggled the schedule and got the Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour out of the Friday evening death trap. Just before Christmas, the program was moved to Wednesday nights, where the competition is softer. The results were immediate.

Playing against the Christmas week re-runs and specials, Sonny and Cher jumped to eighth place in national Nielsen ratings.

Of course, it couldn't remain that high, but it did settle rather comfortably among the top 25 programs in prime time. And everyone was happy.

Well, not entirely. A certain amount of friction is inevitable when a husband and wife perform as a team. Cher is given to headaches, and Sonny Bono, like so many who kicked around for a long time before finding success, is suspicious and hostile toward strangers. He is 12 years older than his wife, and while she puts him down on a stage and before a camera, he is very much the boss of the team.

According to reports, Cher walked off a stage one night in Vegas, complaining: "Who needs you?" Things were patched up. He bought her another new automobile, and life in the huge Beverly Hills mansion went on.

Trouble is, Cher had a point. She has become the star of the series. She can probably have a career all by herself, but the same isn't true of her 38-year-old husband. When they were married 8 years ago, Cher was only 18.

Whatever their problems, however, they will be worked out. The series is almost certain to be renewed for next season, a certainty that doesn't go with such variety programs as those headed by Bobby Darin, Bill Cosby and Julie Andrews.

That kind of certainty can patch up all kinds of breaks, and besides, they are the stars of one of television's most polished variety hours. The season that began so badly will end pretty good.

CBC Radio Establishes Awards For Young Canadian Composers

CBC Radio, English and French Services Divisions, and the Canada Council have announced the establishment of the CBC Radio-Canada Council Awards for Young Composers, 1973.

The competition is open to composers who are Canadian citizens or landed immigrants, 29 years of age and under by the closing date of the competition, October 31, 1973. Employees of CBC, Canada Council, Ontario Arts Council or Le Ministère des Affaires Culturelles du Québec are not eligible.

Up to four equal prizes of $3,000 will be awarded, with a possible runner-up special prize of $1,000 to be awarded at the discretion of the jury. The winning works will be performed at a CBC Radio public concert. In addition, the Ontario Arts Council will award $3,000 for the best work by a Québec composer, and Le Ministère des Affaires Culturelles du Québec will award $3,000 for the best work by a Québec composer.

There will be a jury consisting of four members plus a chairman: two from the Canadian League of Composers, one from the CBC, and one from the Canada Council. The chairman will be jointly chosen by the CBC and the Canada Council.

Candidates may submit up to three scores, each, for no more than 12 performers plus conductor, also using electronic tape if desired, or electronic tape only. Works must be between 12 and 24 minutes in length. Tapes and scores should be submitted to The Canadian Music Centre.
